Respectable Old Age.
Wine Propaganda.
Poison Gin: Needled Beer.
Miami Is Ready.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1927.

ON A 1,000-acre tract near Baltimore there will soon be shown the history of American railroading, from the beginning, with locomotives and cars from various epochs—all in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

THE Baltimore and Ohio, first in the United States "to handle for the public, passengers and freight," reminds you that this country is gradually becoming respectably ancient.

TWO big stores in New York City, Hearn's and Arnold, Constable's have just reached the respectable age of one hundred. And the age is less important than the marvelous improvement in one hundred years.

The next step will be the flying machine, with a rearrangement of man's living habits, recasting of population centers and land values.

Buy the right hill and mountain tops within two hundred miles of big industrial centers now, and your grandchildren will bless you.

AMERICAN Legion members, with their families, are invited to lectures on French wines, describing their qualities, value to health, vitamin content, etc. After the lecture samples of various wines are offered, also small souvenir bottles to be carried. Good prohibitionists will be grieved by this propaganda.

IN ITALY the wine crop is enormous this year, and establishments for working people, where wines of modest prices are served, charge customers "by the hour."

You pay four cents—in our money—spend an hour and drink as much wine as you choose, in your hour—as you hire a billiard table by the hour here.

"Four cents an hour" for wine drinking will horrify the good. But it is not as bad as the sign that once decorated English gin houses: "Here you may get drunk for a penny, dead drunk for twopence."

YOU are told that abundance of wine causes no drunkenness in Italy or France. Once when wine was at its cheapest, the Italians mixed it with the feed of horses and said they throve on the diet. Prohibitionists will call that more propaganda.

JAMES H. BIMSON, teacher in the Paterson, N. J., high school, aged 55, and his wife, 52, died last Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital after drinking home-made gin.

Dr. Norval, county physician, says the gin was made of "poison alcohol." There is much drinking of such poison, and you can never be sure that it is not in the "pre-war stuff" offered by your well-meaning friends.

ALSO, remember that so-called "genuine beer" is usually near beer that has been "needled." Denatured alcohol is bought at gasoline stations. Some of the poison—not all—is extracted by redistilling. Then a huge syringe, with a needle point, is used to inject the alcohol into the near beer keg, through the cork or wood opening. And with such "needled beer" tens of thousands of Americans are poisoning themselves, ruining their kidneys.

Only a fool drinks bootleg liquor.

THE rest of the country will be glad to hear that Miami, and Florida generally, have wiped out

"Answer These," Jack Says to Gene

WHY did a lot of gamblers, steered, perhaps, by your friend, Abe Attell, make a huge betting plunge on you to win that fight (at Philadelphia) after you and Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff and Billy Gibson, your manager, had one of those conference things?

WHY did you borrow $20,000 from Hoff on fight night when it would have been a simpl[illegible] matter for you to have borrowed the money from Tex Richard without a bonus agreeme[illegible]

WHY DID YOU SIGN YOURSELF AS EUGENE TUNNEY WHEN YOUR REAL N[illegible] JAMES JOSEPH TUNNEY?

WHY is it that the Attell crowd of gamblers was lukewarm in support of you before th[illegible] ment was signed but immediately after it was signed—about 6 o'clock at night—u[illegible] passed and the terrific plunge on you to win was of a sensational nature?

HOW about making all the facts (about the alleged $20,000 bonus to Tunney if he w[illegible] public matter now?

FORBES DESCRIBES NEW FORD, RIDES IN IT

By B. C. FORBES.

DETROIT, Sept. 18.

"YES, I'm getting a thrill out of turning out the new car that recalls memories of building my very first car," Henry Ford declared as he pointed out features of the eagerly-awaited new Ford, in one of which we were sitting. "Only in those days I had to make everything and do everything myself. It's different, it's easier now.

"But," he added, "it's a big job, for we must do it right. We are not yet quite through experimenting. Some of the details have yet to be worked out. You know, it's one thing to make designs on paper and another to get them suitable for speedy and economical production on a very large scale.

"We didn't first fix a price and then set ourselves to building a car to come within that price. We are doing the job right. When we have got it right, then we will take all costs into consideration and fix the price. That hasn't been done yet."

MR. Ford's eyes lit up.

"But it's going to be not only up-to-date but we are trying to make it better than up-to-date—a few years ahead of the times. The other day two of the experimental cars did 650 miles from early in the morning until before midnight. It was forty horsepower. This not only means

Ward Guns Fell 3

Guns flashed in the heart of Oakland over the week-end as the factional war flamed from the Strip toward the residential sections of Pittsburgh. Police Capt. Anthony Forrester is under suspension in connection with the affair.

Two bystanders were wounded when gunmen, racing along Forbes street in automobiles, emptied their revolvers last night at political enemies who were standing on the crowded sidewalks near Atwood street, a few steps from the police station.

JACK CHALLENGES TUNNEY TO DENY PHILADELPHIA FIGHT FIXING CHARGE

Choice of Referee Final and No Switch Made, Says Boyle.

By HAVEY J. BOYLE,
State Boxing Commissioner.

If Jack Dempsey says an eleventh-hour switch was made in the choice of referee for the Dempsey-Tunney bout in Philadelphia last year he is telling a lie.

Until a half hour before the bout the referee, Tommy Reilly, one of the squarest and most dependable officials in the fight game, did not know he was going to work, although the Pennsylvania

Ex-Champion Admits He Was Fairly Beaten, But Demands Gene Explain Boo Boo Hoff's Claims.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH today reproduces an open letter from Jack Dempsey to Gene Tunney, made public in Chicago, four days before the big championship fight, and copyrighted for 1927, by King Features, Inc. The letter:

DEAR TUNNEY:

Before we start swinging punches at each other here in Chicago, how about you making a little explanation to the public and to me about all the angles involved in that suit which Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, of Philadelphia, fired at you?

'Is This Sportsmanlike?' Tunney Wants to Know

By Universal Service.

TUNNEY TRAINING CAMP, LAKE VILLA, Ill., Sept. 19.—Gene Tunney today received a copy of Jack Dempsey's open letter, in which Dempsey challenges him to "tell the truth about the 1926 fight." Tunney wrote the following brief note to Dempsey:

"My Dear Dempsey:

"Your so-called open letter to me was brought to my attention. While my reaction is to ignore it and its evident trash completely, yet I cannot resist saying that I consider it a very cheap appeal for public sympathy. Do you think this sportsmanlike?"

"GENE TUNNEY.

"P. S.—I might add that I wrote this letter myself."

AIR DERBY LEADER REACHES CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 19.—(AP.)—C. W. Meyers, of Detroit, first to get away from the airport at Bellefont, Pa., in the national air derby, landed at the Cleveland airport at 12:19½. He is listed as entry 36, flying a Waco 10.

FIVE PLANES MISSING

Of the 25 airplanes which took off this morning from Roosevelt Field in the Class B race of the Spokane air derby, 20 had been accounted for up to 1 o'clock today.

C. W. Meyers, piloting a Waco 10, entered by Berry Brothers, of Detroit, at that time was the official leader of the race.

He had checked into the control station at Bellefonte, Pa., second, but A. M. Banks, driving a Pitcairn Fleetwing, who arrived at Bellefonte two minutes ahead of Myers, encountered engine trouble and was unable to get away in his proper place.

Up to 1 o'clock a total of 13 planes had checked into Bellefonte, all but one having continued on to Bryan, O., the next control. They were due there early this afternoon.

Four other planes had been forced by fog to land at Tamaqua, Pa. One, the plane of R. E. Dake, of Pittsburgh, had been forced down at Highbridge, N. J., and another, that of R. E. Cantwell, had failed to get farther from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., than Curtiss Field, a mile away.

150,000 ELIGIBLE FOR TOMORROW'S PRIMARIES

ASKS MILLION FOR ALLEGED ATTACK

JUANITA MONTANYA

Juanita, Spanish dancer, called the "Queerest Girl in Hollywood," has entered suit for $1,000,000 against Wallace Beery, film actor, on four counts. He attacked her twice, once at his home and again when they were motoring, and he is the father of her unborn child, she charges.

WALLACE BEERY

Beery, on a hunting trip, does not know of the suit so far as is known. The dancer asks one quarter million dollars on each of four counts: loss of "virtue and chastity;" malice and brutal force used upon her; her "anguish, embarrassment and torture," and "brutal oppression."

all signs and reminders of the big wind, and are ready for another boom, with preparations made for record crowds this season.

The new boom will come, do not doubt it, and what is more important, it will stay. Florida is destined to be the winter sunparlor of millions of Americans.

A LEARNED Christian writer thinks old-time revivalists and modern "high-power converters" of the Billy Sunday type are out of date. Real energy, genuine earnestness will never be out of date. "To convince others, be yourself convinced." To convert others, be yourself converted. Whoever lacks belief in a hell with real fire, or in a devil with a red pitchfork will not cause men to worry about the future.

DID you notice that the question of Russian oil for which one American and one British company are fighting may be decided by the World Court?

The Standard Oil Company can be trusted to take care of itself in that court or any other. But isn't it just as well that the foreign business of this nation, including our action in international matters should NOT be decided by a court made up of one lonesome American and nine foreigners, whose pet name for this country is "Uncle Shylock?"

Wheeler was born in Brookfield and spent his early life there.

CHECK-UP FOR FRAUD FUTILE

While gangs of hired thugs and gunmen continued the reign of terror in the Strip and downtown wards, Allegheny county prepared today for tomorrow's primary election.

In Pittsburgh more than 152,000 men and women are eligible to participate, the largest registration in the hectic political history of the city.

Principally because of this registration, which far exceeded the expectation of politicians and official statisticians, the printers today were ordered to rush thousands of additional ballots to the pooling places to take care of what promises to be an unexpectedly heavy vote.

REPORT LISTS PADDED

Spurred by reports that the registration lists have been padded heavily in the Third and Fourth districts of the Second Ward, which are controlled by the Kenna-Anderson faction, employes of the registration commissioners and city police conducted a vain search for the books last night. The books were located today and are being investigated.

A member of the board in one of the precincts is quoted in the registration office as reporting, "We had to put these names on, or else—." He finished the sentence by making a motion imitating a gun being held to his head.

The Fourteenth Ward, where there is a hot aldermanic fight, led the registration list, with 9,329 voters. The total by wards follows:

Ward.	Republican.	Democratic.	Total.
1	3,764	141	3,916

DANDELIONS BURST INTO BLOOM AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—The flowers that bloom in the fall included a fine crop of dandelions and buttercups on the lawn of the Washington County Court House here. They sprung up almost overnight during the recent warm wave.

Morin Fist Replies to Taunt

Congressman John M. Morin and P. F. "Paddy" McKnight swapped punches in the Oakland Police Station yesterday.

The police stopped the bout before either man scored a knockout. As the affair had not been licensed by the State Athletic Commission, no referee was on hand to render a decision.

The congressman, according to eye-witnesses, looked somewhat the worse for wear after the battle.

The fist fight between the chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs and the Soho politician occurred when Morin went to the police station to inquire into the status of two men arrested in connection with a shooting affray Saturday night, when an automobile load of gangsters emptied their pistols at a group of supporters of Dr. C. B. Quailey, Fourth Ward aldermanic candidate. Morin is supporting John H. Carr for alderman in the Fourth Ward.

Those who had ringside seats said today that the fight was a good one while it lasted. McKnight is quite a scrapper. Morin as a youth had considerable reputation in amateur athletic circles.

The two men met at the station. They were heard to exchange remarks that became more and more uncomplimentary.

"You're a stool pigeon," McKnight was heard to say. It was not difficult to hear him, because he made no effort to prevent the world from hearing his opinion of the congressman.

That remark rang the gong and the brief but furious battle was on.

ASSAULT LAID TO POLICEMAN

Three warrants charging pointing firearms, forcible entry and assault and battery were served on Plainclothes Policeman Michael Barry in Constable Harry Fink of Alderman John J. Verona's office today, after a habeas corpus hearing in Common Pleas Court in an effort to gain the release of Jacob Rosenberg, 1644 Colwell street, James Papello, and Irving Schwartz, arrested in connection with the Oakland election gun fight last night. Bail of $1,000 on each count was asked.

Judge John A. Evans postponed the habeas corpus hearing until later, but meantime refused to permit bail for the defendants.

BIND WACHMAN, THEN ROB KNITTING MILLS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—Six masked and armed bandits, apparently possessing "inside" information, police say, bound and gagged the night watchman of the Philadelphia knitting mills today and escaped with a truck load of women's hosiery valued at thousands of dollars. The robbery was perfectly executed, the men leaving the building within 30 minutes from the time they entered.

3 ARE SHOT IN VOTE WAR

of inciting to riot and carrying and discharging firearms.

Five were taken into custody in an automobile, in which, the police say, firearms were found. These are Nick Christy, 26, Webster avenue; Max Leventhal, 27, Colwell street; Pat McGinnis, said to be a prohibition agent; Mike Russo, 32, Sheffield street, and Joseph Falino, 26, Edgemont street.

The other five were picked up in the neighborhood as suspicious persons. They are Robert Rosko, 23, Allequippa street; Frank Butler, 31, Juliet street; John McKnight, 25, Coltart street; William Mathews, 23, Soho street, and John McGann, 36, Protectory place.

The wounded are John Mutz, 21, of 3411 Forbes street, and William Meade, 48, of 414 Portland street. Ten men are being held in connection with the shooting, one of them being "Pat" McGinnis, a prohibition agent, who is accused by police of driving one of the cars.

The gunplay was the second affair of its kind in the Fourth Ward during the day. Early Sunday morning gangsters in an passing machine shot and possibly fatally wounded John Rohan, 19, of 3723 Orpwood street. Jacob Rosenberg, of 1644 Colwell street, and James Papello, arrested in connection with that shooting, are being held awaiting the result of Rohan's injuries.

Rohan was operated on in the Homeopathic Hospital in an attempt to save his life. A bullet was removed from his back and his condition was reported very serious, due to perforation of the intestines with a liklihood of peritonitis developing. Mutz will be subject to X-ray examination at the hospital to determine the extent of his injuries.

FORRESTER DISARMED

Police who took the two men in custody accuse Capt. Forrester, of the First and Second police districts, now on a short leave of absence, of drawing his revolver in an effort to prevent their arrest. Forrester was disarmed by Patrolman George Fishky, Michael Carney and Frank McNichols, who took the suspects to the Oakland Police Station. The arrests were made in an restaurant at 1200 Fifth avenue.

Forrester, aided by several officers from his own police district, later arrested Fishky, Carney and McNichols, sending them to the Penn Avenue Station, where they claim to have been badly beaten. They later were sent to Oakland, where they were released under orders from Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, who said he believed that they had done their duty.

Walsh early today announced the suspension of Forrester, Patrolman Thomas McGuire, who is alleged to have attacked the Oakland policemen after they had been arrested by Forrester, and of Patrolman E. K. Coberly, who is charged with not having detained the car of the gunmen who shot Rohan before it left Oakland.

MORIN AID FAILS

When efforts of Congressman John M. Morin to get the two suspects out of jail proved unavailing, Police Magistrate John J. Verona, political leader of the Third Ward, took a hand in the move to secure their release. Inspector Albert Beebe insisted that they be held in jail without bail pending a report on the condition of Rohan. Walsh backed up his subordinate and the men were held.

Scores of additional police and detectives patrolled the Fourth Ward last night and the guard will be maintained until after the election, because of reports that gangsters plan to invade the polling places in an effort to prevent the election.

The shooting last night occurred shortly before 11 o'clock, when Forbes street was crowded with automobiles and pedestrians. Three machines filled with gangsters swung along the street, guns blazing at a group of supporters of Dr. C. B. Quailey, aldermanic candidate. Mutz, who was not one of the group, was struck in the right arm. Meade, a taxicab dispatcher on duty there, suffered flesh wounds on the cheek, arm and leg.

Two of the cars got away before police from the Oakland station, a few doors away, rushed to the scene. They stopped what was said at the station to be one of the gunmen's machines. McGinnis, the prohibition agent arrested, was said to have been driving that car. Police say they found three revolvers, a box of cartridges and a number of baseball bats in the machine.

MANY SHOTS FIRED

The license number of a second car was obtained. At the station it was said that this car belonged to Capt. Forrester and was driven by a man named Burke from the First Ward.

The official report on the docket states that 15 shots were fired by the gangsters.

Gunplay came to the front more than a week ago in this campaign when adherents of the Kenna-Anderson and the O'Malley-McManus factions in the Second Ward staged a gun battle in front of the Nixon Theater as the audience was leaving. Several participants in that battle were beaten unconscious. None of the shots took effect.

This affray was followed by scores of fights, big and little, in the First and Second wards. Friday night gunmen in a machine that raced out Penn avenue fired into a group of O'Malley-McManus supporters, hitting two North Siders, one of whom still is in the hospital in a serious condition.

SHOT IN BALLOT FEUD

JOHN ROHAN

Rohan, 3723 Orpwood street, Oakland, was wounded when election gangsters opened fire from a speeding automobile in Oakland avenue. Rohan was sitting in a parked machine when the ward thugs' bullets spat. He was seriously wounded.

Film Villain Sued By Dancer

By International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—Blood tests may determine the paternity of the expected child of Juanita Montanya, 19-year-old Spanish dancer and film actress, who is suing Wallace Beery for $1,000,000 damages on charges that the screen ''villian'' is the father of her unborn baby.

Miss Montanya, who charges Beery attacked her while she was a guest in the actor's home, says she expects to become a mother within a month.

The scientific test to determine the child's paternity was suggested today by Louis Greenbaum, attorney for the young actress.

Beery, who set out six days ago on a hunting trip in the Sierra Mountains, had failed to return to his lodge at Carson's Camp last night.

ALLEGES TWO ATTACKS

Miss Montanya, who came here from New York two years ago seeking a film career, charges she was twice attacked in the actor's Hollywood home in December, 1926, during Mrs. Beery's absence.

The first attack, she alleges, took place in the bedroom of the actor's home, despite her "protests and use of her utmost physical strength."

The second attack took place, the actress charges, on the day she ended her visit and Beery insisted on driving her to her home, stopped his machine on the way, and carried her into a vacant house.

Miss Montanya broke into print here when police arrested her following complaints that she had been peering into the homes of film stars.

Later she was caught in the home of Richard Dix by a night watchman who reported she was carrying a revolver wrapped in a black handkerchief.

AGREE TO DROP 'SPEED' ADS

Support of the Pittsburgh Better Traffic Committee's protest against emphasis of "speed" in auto ads is pledged by one of the country's largest automobile manufacturers in a letter received today by Gen. Albert J. Logan, chairman of the committee, from A. Brown Patterson, director of advertising of the Buick Motor Company.

"The Buick Motor Company is heartily in sympathy" with the local committee's campaign to minimize the mention of high speed, Mr. Patterson's letter says.

The appeal sent out by the Better Traffic Committee to the manufacturers did not protest the building of speedy cars, but merely called attention to the dangerous consequences of constantly holding before prospective purchasers of automobiles promises of ability to travel 60, 70 and 80 miles an hour, speeds which are illegal on most highways in the country.

BEDFORD, Pa., Sept. 19.—Gilbert Ruby, 23, of Bean's Cove, near here, is dead, and Joseph Wilson, 25, of Cumberland, Md., is in jail here facing a charge of murder as a result of an argument Saturday over the alleged theft of a still, more than a year ago. Wilson is said to have accused Ruby, who recently returned from service in the army, with the theft. After a fight which followed, Wilson is said to have gone home for a revolver, and shot Ruby near his home.

STORM DAMAGE HEAVY IN STATE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 19.—(INS.)—Borne on the wings of a 20-mile gale which swept through the Cumberland, Juniata and Kishacoquillas valleys late yesterday, rain and hail did damage today estimated at several hundred thousand dollars, disrupted communication lines and threatened death in this vicinity.

The storm, which broke late yesterday after several hours of oppressive heat, caught scores of canoeists unawares on the Susquehanna River here, and before they could reach the shore the high, white-capped waves of the storm-tossed river threatened to swamp the frail boats.

Hundreds of tourists, caught on highways, were forced to abandon their cars when the full force of the storm broke. Lightning which accompanied the storm did considerable damage, several buildings being destroyed by fire. In York county the crops suffered heavy damage.

From Lewistown came reports that several mountain streams overflowed, sweeping into the city with sufficient force to clog the sewers.

He is in Allegheny General Hospital. Richardson was at a fishing camp at Neshannock Falls, near New Castle, when the accident happened Friday night, and was brought to the local hospital Saturday night.

PROBE ALLEGED REGISTRATION BOOK THEFT

The reported theft of a registration book from a private home at 216 Watson street, used as headquarters of the Third district of the First ward, has given police more than one mystery to solve.

Mrs. Catherine Egan, 25, of 15 Hooper street, screamed when, she says, she saw a man rush into the place, pick up one of the books and flee. Patrolman George Schwartzmiller heard her cries and saw a man running from the place. After a chase during which he fired into the air he captured Nick Christy, of 907 Webster avenue.

Christy had no book and the patrolman says he did not see him dispose of one during the chase. When a check of the books at the registration headquarters was made none was found missing, but Mrs. Egan insists one was taken, so Christy was held on a suspicious person charge pending an investigation.

'Mixed Baby' Mystery Baffles Physicians

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 19—(AP.)—Palmistry and prayer, medicine and law—even a device for "measuring corpuscle vibrations"—were a few of the agencies that had been offered today to solve the disputed identity of ''Baby Smith, female,'' at the Fairview Park Hospital.

DOUBT POSSIBILITY

A number of Cleveland's leading physicians and blood specialists at a conference today with Common Pleas Judge Carl V. Weygandt decided that medical science could not conclusively prove that Mrs. Sam Smith is the mother of the baby girl she now is nursing at Fairview Park Hospital and which she claims is not the baby she gave birth to August 22.

Mrs. Smith asserts that a mistake was made at the hospital and several days after birth of the baby she was given a baby girl for a boy.

Dr. Clyde L. Cummer, one of the physicians, does not believe there is a definite way to determine the infant's parentage. Dr. Herbert L. Koekcert, gave as his opinion that "there is only one blood test which might be of assistance, and that is in no way definite."

Dr. Garry C. Myers, a child science authority, said he knew of no way to determine without doub, who is the mother of the month-old baby.

Two other women named Smith, to whom sons were born about the time Mrs. Sam Smith became a mother, remain unshaken in their confidence that they have their own babies. The hospital, meanwhile, has reiterated its explanation: That Mrs. Sam Smith's belief a boy was born to her was due to an error of recording and that in reality it was "Baby Smith, female."

WOMAN HANGS HERSELF

Ill-health and loneliness since the death of her husband, William, last winter, is believed to have prompted Mrs. Henrietta Speer, 52, to commit suicide today by hanging herself in a bedroom of her home, 1223 Irwin avenue.

The body was found by Mrs. Anna Earhart, 152 Fairview avenue, Elliott, who has been caring for Mrs. Speer and her mother, Mrs. Dora Glass, and Mrs. C. L. Jones, 1221 Irwin avenue. A son, Howard B. Speer, left Friday to undergo an operation in a New York hospital and this is thought to have added to the mother's worries.

GAY PARIS HOLIDAY MARKS FIRST LEGION SESSION

CRY FOR SACCO INTERRUPTS WELCOME

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TROCADERO PALACE, Paris, Sept. 19.—Against the colorful background provided by the French government, the ninth annual convention of the American Legion got off to a whooping start this morning.

The falling gavel in the hands of National Commander Howard P. Savage called the delegates to order in the grand hall of the ancient palace at 9.30, half an hour later than the scheduled time. The commander experienced some difficulty in herding the legionnaires into the convention hall for the opening ceremonies. First it was necessary to entice them from the boulevards, decorated in holiday colors in gay festoons of red, white and blue and joyous in the spirit of the holiday.

FRANCE DECREES HOLIDAY

All of Paris, and in fact all of France, sat in at the convention opening, for today was a national holiday, decreed by the government as a tribute to the 20,000 American visitors who had come to relive the memory of war days. All places of business, with the exception, of course, of the cafes, were closed and Parisians of all classes thronged the boulevards and avenues to watch the "Second A. E. F." get officially into its stride.

Thousands thronged the square in front the Trocadero Palace to see the former doughboys, many of them dressed in brilliant uniforms such as they never wore in the old days, gather in the convention hall. They were there to see President Doumergue, Marshal Foch and other of the most distinguished figures in French official, military and political life participate in this American convention, a colorful spectacle such as has never before been seen even in the brilliant history of Paris.

In spite of the precautions the Paris police had taken to guard against any radical outbreaks, hardly had Commander Savage called the convention to order when the voice of a Communist rent the air with cries of "Vive Sacco et Vanzetti." The disturbance came shortly after Savage had introduced Louis Marin, French minister of pensions, as formal welcomer to the Legion hosts on behalf of the French government.

Amid the thunderous applause which greeted Marin when he stood up on the rostrum, the Sacco-Vanzetti cries came from an unidentified Frenchman perched high up in the gallery. A pair of husky gendarmes immediately ejected the disturber from the palace and Minister Marin went ahead with his address of welcome.

ONLY DISCORDANT NOTE

The incident afforded the only discordant note of the convention's brilliant inauguration.

"The French nation," M. Marin declared in his address, "does not admire you solely on account of your participation with us in the great war. It knows in the human struggle for progress and especially the progress of moral conscience, how its American sisters are also imbued with the same care for ideals and the same worship of faith and justice, and the same desire for progress in all objects for which generations of French people for centuries have suffered, fought and died for.

"Your pilgrimage increases the mutual affection which exists between our two countries," M. Marin continued. "We all acclaim you most heartily and are happy to find again in the glorious combatants who came back to us a most admirable image of our sister republic, the United States.

"I greet you in the name of combatants, of heroes, of civilian victims, of widows and orphans, of all those who have been stricken by the great tragedy, and as minister of pensions, minister for remembering and worship of the glorious dead of the war. This hour, when French hearts understand you and acclaim you, the government of the republic, in the name of the entire nation, wishes to express to you its whole gratitude."

"Vive Legion!" France Hails 15,000 Paraders

PARIS, Sept. 19.—Paris today gave America a ringing welcome of good fellowship when between 12,000 and 15,000 men and women marched in the American Legion parade beneath the Arc do Triomphe and to the Cathedral of Notre Dame, where the marchers disbanded.

Jean Chiappe, chief of the Paris police, estimated that 100,000 persons saw the parade. They filled windows, clung to street lamps and stood on sidewalks and taxis to see the "Second A. E. F.," a peace-time army, march.

Cheering with one breath, the French laughed with the next at the unusual costumes and mascots chosen by the various state delegations. From the Legionnaires the French had learned the English word "Hurrah." They mixed it with their own "Vive" today in a thundering roar of welcome that echoed from one end of the parade to the other.

The parade took place after the ceremony at the Trocadero, where the convention was inaugurated formally. Today's events constituted a marvelous reception to the men who arrived 10 years ago to help the battered Allies.

There was a moment of unpleasantness in the Champs Elysees. Six workmen on a roof shouted "Vive Sacco-Vanzetti." It was the same shout which had interrupted the Trocadero formalities a few hours before.

The crowd booed. Police entered the building and arrested the offenders. Soldiers with drawn bayonets lined the route of march. France was taking no chances with troublemakers.

Only a hundred persons attended the meeting, which was held under the auspices of the Sacco-Vanzetti Conference of Western Pennsylvania.

The Sacco-Vanzetti case is but the first of a series of outrages that will be meted out to the working class, declared Powers Hapgood, young Pittsburgh protester, who was arrested in Boston while on picket duty previous to the executions.

NATIONAL C. OF C. TO AID FLOOD LEGISLATION

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Lewis E. Pierson, of New York, president of the flood control committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will leave Washington Tuesday with a group of associates for a trip through the Mississippi flood area.

The purpose of the trip is to obtain by personal observation and through contact with business leaders and others first-hand information to be incorporated in a report which the committee will make to the board of directors of the chamber.

The committee hopes to foster measures for flood control in the next Congress.

"The effects of disasters of this character are reflected in all parts of the country. One region cannot suffer without loss to other sections. What we are attempting to do is to make business experience and judgment available in a situation which calls for the most constructive kind of leadership.

"Congress undoubtedly will enact flood control legislation at the approaching session. It will be helpful if all interests will unite in supporting a constructive policy. American business is ready to lend its help in furthering any sound plan."

On Arms and Body. In Rash and Blisters. Cuticura Healed.

"My husband suffered with eczema on his arms and body. It was in a rash form which caused itching at intervals, especially while working. Scratching caused small blisters, which were very slow in healing.

"He tried different remedies which helped for a time and then the trouble would break out again. After sending for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and trying it with such good results, he purchased more, which healed him." (Signed) Mrs. Ada J. Shanks, 273 Breck St., Rochester, N. Y., June 10, 1926.

The Great ANNUAL SALE CHINESE & PERSIAN RUGS

More Than $150,000 Worth at Retail at Amazingly Low Prices—Now Every Home in Pittsburgh May Own These Luxurious, Enduring Rugs!

While the war lords of northern and southern China battle for supremacy, the Chinese monetary unit touches lower and lower levels, and Chinese rug makers are ever more eager to dispose of their wares for good American dollars. In Persia, a similar situation, but from various other causes, is current. Our representatives in the Far East were quick to realize that rug prices were never lower, and might never again be as low. They made enormous purchases and hurried them over. In this event we offer fine Rugs at prices that are lower than normal wholesale in many cases—at equal prices, and even less, than asked for finer grade domestics. There are many hundreds of them—of typical Oriental beauty and richness in coloring—distinguished by heavy, deep piles that are incomparable for service.

Three Extraordinary Groups of Chinese Handwoven Rugs

$95 Sizes 8x10 and 9x12 Feet
$125 Size 9x12 Feet
$165 Size 9x12 Feet

Chinese Rugs of even mediocre quality sell usually at far higher prices—and these are by no means mediocre. Many appropriate designs. Border effects that add a note of distinction.

Soft colors to harmoniously blend with your color scheme. Blue, taupe, sand, mulberry, gold, etc. Backgrounds patterned with pagodas, scattered center or border arrangements. Curious corner motifs.

Persian Handwoven Gorovan Rugs

Slightly Varied in Size, But All About 9x12 Feet

These exquisite rugs are adaptable to many decorative requirements. The soft colors are particularly lovely, and the deep, heavy piles are the sort to last indefinitely, regardless of the service it is given. Persian red, old blue and ivory that will lend color to any room in your home.

MISS ELDER MAY START OCEAN FLIGHT TOMORROW

GIRL FLIER PASSES TEST

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Miss Ruth Elder, who intends to be the first woman pilot to cross the Atlantic Ocean in an airplane, passed her physical examination for a pilot's license yesterday, but was unable to go up for her solo flight test because of the congestion on Curtiss Field.

Maj. Luther H. Kice, who examined Miss Elder at Mitchell Field, said: "She certainly is the American girl. Her physical condition is splendid."

The Stinson plane in which Miss Elder intends to make the flight, perhaps Tuesday, if the weather is propitious, is named The American Girl. It is said to be in condition for the takeoff.

Miss Elder went to Curtiss Field today with F. E. Cornell and T. H. McArdle, two Florida business men, who said her venture is backed by them and by J. H. Holloway, a banker of West Virginia. The idea was originated during the height of the enthusiasm over Col. Lindbergh's accomplishment, they stated.

"We'd just as soon, now, that Miss Elder would stay in the United States and make flights in this country," the backers said, "but she seems determined to make the ocean flight."

Cornell, McArdle and Miss Elder insisted with apparent sincerity that there is no publicity stunt behind the plans of the aviatrix.

"The flight will be made in the interests of aviation," they said.

BOY PADDLES 1,300 MILES

By Universal Service

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—A university of Chicago student paddled 1,300 miles alone through the wilderness of Northwest Canada, steeping himself in the lore of the North woods and learning the ways of the Indian, it was disclosed here today.

He is Cornelius Osgood, 22, a graduate student in anthropology. The purpose of the canoe trip was a survey of the obscure Indian tribes about the Great Bear Lake, a region from which certain tribes are said to have come south hundreds of years ago and absorbed the culture of the Pueblo Indians.

Starting from Fort George, B. C., a lonely outpost of civilization, Osgood traveled north along the Fraser and Parsnip rivers, between the two major ranges of the Canadian Rockies. Then he journeyed east along the Peace River to Lake Athabasca, which is about 650 miles north of Edmonton, Alberta.

U. S. PRINCE-FARMER GLAD HE SHED TITLE

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(Universal.)—Prince Eric of Denmark, now an American farmer, who has surrendered his birthright, stopped off in Chicago Saturday for a visit en route to Copenhagen to get away from the excessive heat in California. He was accompanied by his wife, Princess Lois; their daughter, Countess Alexandra Dagmar Francka Marie Margarethe of Rosenberg, 7 months old, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Frederick Booth. "In spite of the rather warm weather we've been having," he said on his arrival, "I'd rather raise crops and cattle than hobnob in the courts of Europe."

Hill has declared his faith in his son, and will stand by him.

RECORD PRIMARY VOTE EXPECTED IN MERCER

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 19.—With every county office to be voted for, a record vote is expected in Mercer county at Tuesday's primaries. CONSTITUTION DAY OBSERVED IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Sons of the American Revolution today celebrated the one-hundredth and fortieth anniversary of the adoption of the United States Constitution by special exercises at the statue of George Washington on the steps of the Sub-Treasury Building in the heart of the financial district.

Representatives of the University of Pennsylvania placed a wreath at the Benjamin Franklin monument, and Columbia University and Hamilton College groups placed wreaths on the tomb of Alexander Hamilton in Trinity churchyard in connection with the Constitution Day ceremonies.

Music Dealers Start Melody Way Classes

Classes for members of the Melody Way Club are now under way in a score of stores.

Affiliated music dealers who are offering free piano instruction and free use of the instruments have organized a number of their entrants and have begun instructions. They have promised to start other classes as the Melody Way members present their certificates. Classes will be started at hours that will be convenient to both children and adults.

More than 2,500 members have been listed in the club up to today. Many thousands more can be accommodated. Some mothers, with their early piano training forgotten and neglected, have decided to bring their children and take the lesson themselves, along with them. With the indorsement of Will Earhart, director of music in the public schools, who Sunday declared that the Melody Way system was O. K., many mothers previously hesitant have inquired about the plan and will encourage their children to follow the lessons.

The second of the series of 12 lessons was printed in Saturday's Sun-Telegraph. The third will be printed next Saturday. Those who wish back copies can secure them by writing the Melody Way Club, Sun-Telegraph.

Dr. Miller, a graduate chiropractor, naturopath and osteopath, came here from Washington, D. C., about six years ago and has built up a practice which extends to several states. He denies the charges, declaring that he frequently referred patients to medical doctors when he believed their condition warranted such treatment. Dr. Miller is a member of the Amish-Mennonite church, a sect whose members rarely figure in the courts.

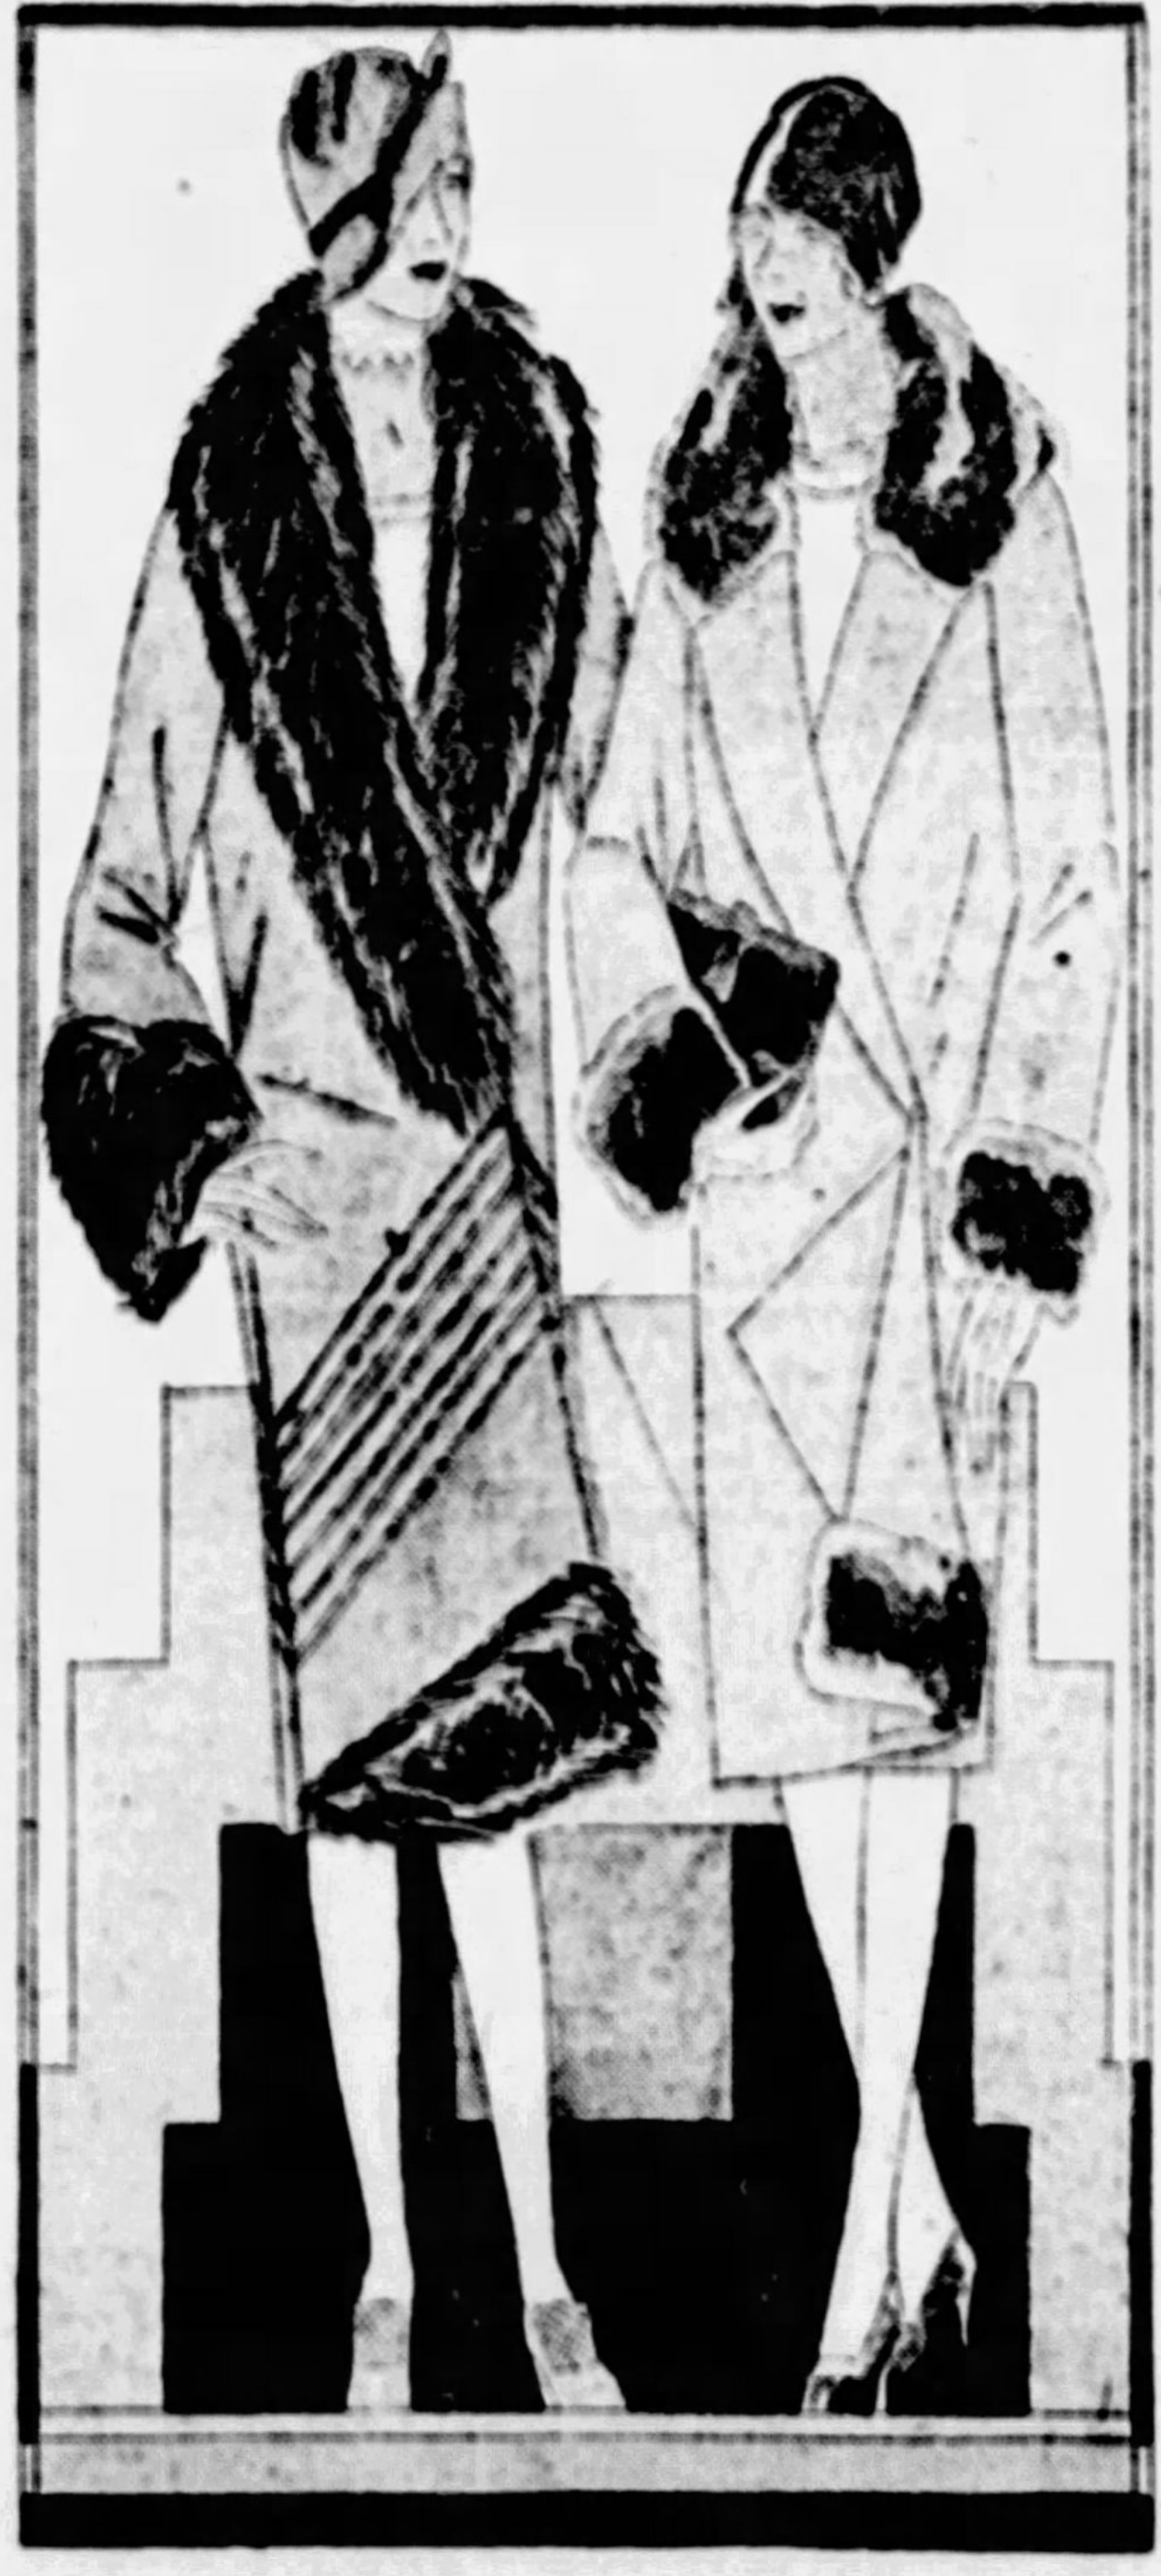
Barbara Lee Coats



A New Standard of Value at

$100.00

BARBARA LEE has been synonymous, for years, with outstanding style and quality in frocks, at a moderate price, and now the same principle which has proved so successful in the development of Barbara Lee Dresses is applied to the production of fashionable coats for women and misses.

The stylists of 17 leading stores, representing the various sections of the country, joined in the selection of the models—so that their charm and style authenticity is vouched for by not one, but 17 opinions. Many styles were rejected for every one chosen, and each Barbara Lee model represents the unanimous choice of this national committee of style experts.

The making of the coats was then entrusted to manufacturers approved by this committee, and the buying power of 17 large stores was brought to bear to obtain a price which would be impossible to a single store.

One may, therefore, look forward expectantly to brilliant style and unusual values in these new Barbara Lee coats.

8 Styles for Women—9 for Misses

The materials are the new soft, flat cashmere weaves, besides malina and rich broadtail cloth, in black and the fashionable coat colors.

The furs, used lavishly as Paquin and regulation shawl collars, glorified mushroom collars and Queen Anne effects, also as cuffs and sometimes as borders, include beaver, skunk, baby lynx, kit fox, wolf, badger, black caracul kid, and dyed squirrel.

Estelle Taylor Offered Chance To Star in First National Film; Circus Folk Visit De Mille Set

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Estelle Taylor must be on the high road to health. I have been told by a member of the First National company that an offer has been made to her to star in a forthcoming First National picture and that she was able to discuss the terms of the contract.

I know very well unless she is greatly improved Jack Dempsey would have refused to let her so much as discuss movies. And, just between us, who is there would care to brook Mr. Dempsey's displeasure? Not with that strong right arm in the pink of fighting condition.

There is no secret that First National would have liked to have had Miss Taylor as Helen in "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," if she had been free to accept their offer. Her work as Lucretia in "Don Juan" would have made her an ideal Helen. I would like to see her return to the screen in a part that would give her the opportunities she had in Barrymore's picture.

There is a strong rumor that First National may unite with Producers Distributors. At the time Cecil De Mille had his spell of amalgamation and the Keith-Albee theaters and Pathe did a merger, First National was prominently mentioned as one of the producing companies that would enter into the agreement. Then First National decided to go it alone. Watterson Rothacker was called in as general manager of business and production. Now again the old report is revived. We hear from some one who speaks with a certain amount of authority that the deal between First National and Cecil De Mille is very much on. Richard Rowland had said again and again that this is his last year as executive head of First National—so mebbe our informant is correct. Sounds reasonable to me.

It must be a new experience for the circus folk to be invited to watch someone else perform. Yet that is what happened when Mr. and Mrs. Ringling and their leading performers were invited to spend the day at the Cecil De Mille studios. The invitation was given and accepted after the members of "The Leopard Woman" cast were given inside information on how a circus is conducted.

DOROTHY SEBASTIAN appears to have been stung by the aviation bug. With text-book in hand, she is trying to figure out how to start the blamed thing.

CHARLES FARRELL either has been in the water or he mussed her hair purposely for this picture. Chas is the Chico of the film version, "Seventh Heaven."

JEANNE EAGLES here is being presented with a movie make-up box by Jack Gilbert. Monta Bell, whose story is the initial Eagles film, is the audience.

SPANISH COMEDY ON STAGE

"The Cradle Song," a modern Spanish comedy by Gregorio and Maria Martinez Sierra, this evening will begin an engagement of one week in the Nixon. The cast includes Mary Shaw, Harry Davenport, Phyllis Rankin, Zita Johann, Mary Hone, Fanny Davenport, Alexander Kirkland, Virginia Gregori and Mary Arden.

"Rose-Marie" will be seen in the Alvin for one week only, beginning tonight, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. In the cast are Beulah Berson, Paul Donah, Peggy Pates, Charles Meakins, Hazel Gaudreau, Houston Richards, Daisy Gibson, Santo Marco, Ross Gibson, Neil Moore and over 90 others.

"Honor Be Damned," by Willard Mack, which appeared in the Ambassador, New York and in the Nixon last winter, will be the offering of the George Sharp Production Stock Company in the Pitt, beginning tonight. There will be matinees Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The faithfulness of a dog for his master is the theme of the screen feature in the Davis this week. Joseph Schildkraut is the star of "His Dog."

Arthur Hammerstein's music drama, "Golden Dawn," will follow his "Rose Marie" as occupant of the Alvin. The latest Hammerstein entrant in the national musical sweepstakes is to have its Pittsburgh premiere next Monday, September 26, and it will hold forth a week, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday. In "Golden Dawn" are Louise Hunter, from the Metropolitan Opera House, and a cast of 21 principals, including Robert Chisholm, Olin Howland, Marguerita Sylva, Paul Gregory, Reginald Pasch, Gil Squires, Jacques Cartier, Mydia d'Arnell and Barbary Newberry.

Willard Mack's new play, a racing romance of today, "Weather Clear Track Fast," with Joe Laurie, Jr. and William Courtleigh in the cast, will be the attraction at the Nixon for one week only, beginning Monday night, September 26, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

In connection with the presentation of "Happy Hours," this week's burlesque in the Academy, the returns of the Tunney-Dempsey fight will be received Thursday night. Dempsey-Sharkey fight pictures are to be shown throughout the week.

"White Cargo" will be seen in the Gayety next week. Christine Cooper again plays Tondeleyo. Robert Burns, Joseph Forte, Maurie Morris, Edward Hudson, William Marble, Denny Mullen, John C. Louden, Tom G. Jones and Punghi Banda complete the cast.

VIOLENCE, DARK CHARGES USHER IN PRIMARY

FIGHTS CENTER ON M'GOVERN, JUDGES

Gun battles and shootings in the Second Ward where the Kenny-Anderson faction attempted to maintain control against the O'Malley-McManus force which is carrying the city administration's banner into the fight.

Similar battles in the Fourth where there is an aldermanic contest between C. B. Quatley and John H. Carr.

Street fights and brawls in the First and Twenty-second wards, scenes of hectic political contests between rival factions. Ward Chairman Thomas A. Flanigan battling Alderman A. M. Maloney in the First, and Ward Chairman John O'Donnell in a struggle with Ward Secretary Chris McCormick in the Twenty-second.

The arrest of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and his chief clerk, William M. Zeitel, on charges preferred by Mrs. John O. Miller, head of the League of Women Voters, the complaint dealing with a meeting which Mrs. Miller claims was illegally held and entered several years ago.

The investigation and audit being conducted by Controller C. C. McGovern, and his charges of financial mismanagement and corruption, aimed chiefly at Commissioners Armstrong and E. V. Babcock, together with his threats of arrests and prosecutions.

These are the features of the campaign that closes tonight.

OPINIONS DIFFER

"The fight is over. Our entire ticket will win easily, including our nine candidates for the Common Pleas bench," was the message from Republican organization leaders.

"The fight is not over until every voter in the county has honestly cast a ballot and has had it honestly counted," was the substance of the retort of independent candidates.

The fight being waged by independent candidates to break the organization judicial slate, the battle between McGovern and Robert G. Woodside for the Republican controller nomination, and the aldermanic and constable fights in 13 Pittsburgh wards hold the chief interest at tomorrow's primary.

The only fight in the Democratic primary is between Commissioner James Houlahen and his running mate, P. F. Brennan, against W. K. Hodgkinson and John P. Bracken, independents, for the two county commissioner nominations.

The primary is spiced by rumors that no matter what the result of the Republican election might be, an independent ticket will be placed in the field for the November election. This ticket, according to reports, will center around the candidacy of Controller McGovern either to succeed himself or, more probably, for one of the three places on the Board of County Commissioners.

LARGE CROWD AT REVIVAL

Despite inclement weather last night, the Second Presbyterian Church's revival tent in West Park, North Side, was crowded with men, women and children from all parts of the Pittsburgh district for the second Sunday night service of the fall season. The Rev. Dr. Percival H. Barker, pastor of the Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, conducted the service.

Dr. Barker's topic was "The Changeless Christ." He said, in part: "Christ is the same today as He was yesterday and will be forever. I have no patience with those who are striving to tear down Christian ideals, those who are seeking to 'explain' Christ. Jesus was the Son of God!"

A fine musical program was given by the chorus and solos were sung by the Rev. Alvin L. Carter, of Springfield, Mo., leader. Meetings will be held every night this week.

PYTHIANS HOLD RALLY IN GROVE CITY FRIDAY

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 19.—State Knights of Pythias officers will attend a big rally here Friday by Mercer and Butler county members of the order.

Factions Confident As Campaign Ends

Confidence was the keynote of statements issued by organization and independent candidates as they closed their campaigns today.

Independent

JUDGE R. W. MARTIN

Judge Richard W. Martin, shunted aside by the Republican organization, is waging an independent fight to succeed himself on the bench, insisting that politics should be kept out of the judiciary. During the campaign he dared fate by promising to withdraw if he was not indorsed by the lawyers in the polls conducted by the Allegheny County Bar Association. He led the poll and since has waged an aggressive campaign to break the organization slate.

At the Republican organization headquarters it was predicted that Robert G. Woodside would beat Controller C. C. McGovern by at least 60,000 votes and that the lowest man on the organization judicial slate would lead the highest independent by 75,000 votes.

The independents, while making no predictions, issued statements reiterating their views of the campaign issues and expressing confidence.

"I say that the judiciary should be kept free from political influence and political control," said Judge Richard W. Martin. "My appeal has touched the chord and the response is sure and clear. My fight is to remove the menace of politics controlling the bench."

Asserting that the organization leaders "have not the right to arrogate to themselves the sole right to the mantle of the Republican Party," a statement issued from the headquarters of Judge Frank I. Gollmar said that in actual practice "he has demonstrated the possession of every attribute required of one who would sit upon the bench."

The nomination of Judge James H. Gray is assured "if the great body of honest, true Republicans, believing in the principles of Lincoln and Coolidge, go to the polls tomorrow," said a statement from Gray's headquarters.

McGovern, reiterating his charges of waste and extravagance and reviewing his audit and investigation, caused some surprise by declaring that even if his suit to keep Woodside's name off the ballot in the general election should prove successful, he would not continue in office, but would leave at the end of his present term, after prosecuting his investigation to the limit until that time. This case was decided against him in the Common Pleas Court and has been appealed to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

The construction of 22 major bridges, the addition of 120 miles to the county's highway system, the improvement of roads generally, the development of the two new county parks and other improvements made during their administration, were stressed in a pre-election statement issued jointly by Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock.

The Republican organization "never felt more confident as to the kind of public servants it is offering for the party nomination," said Councilman James P. Malone in a statement in which he expressed confidence in "a smashing victory."

Councilmen Daniel Winters, Robert Garland, Robert J. Alderdice and Charles Anderson, in a joint statement, declared that the present harmony "has brought about a co-operation between the city and county that has not been in evidence for years and the result has been that the city is getting improvements that would not otherwise be possible."

Mrs. John O. Miller, head of the League of Women Voters, yesterday issued a statement repeating her charges that Commissioner Armstrong held a "one man" meeting of the board and illegally awarded contracts.

Senator M. G. Leslie will be the principal speaker at the closing meeting of the organization campaign in Forrester Hall, Ninth Ward. A Twenty-second Ward meeting will be held in the North Side Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Judge Martin will close his campaign with a radio address tonight at 7:45 o'clock. Frank F. Canuti will speak tonight in his headquarters, Fourth avenue.

"Full confidence in the result" is expressed in a joint statement issued by the nine organization judicial candidates. The statement said: "Each of us asks you not to vote for him alone but for the entire nine regular candidates."

Woodside, after reminding the voters that no money can get out of the treasury of Allegheny county except on a warrant signed by the Controller, declared his intention of making a survey of the office as soon as he is elected and added "I will give the people the best that is in me as the watchdog of their treasury."

PRIMARY PAY LIMITED BY M'GOVERN

The death knell for "padded" election overtime payrolls and uncertain records of time and money was sounded at least for Tuesday's primaries by County Controller C. C. McGovern today in a letter to the County Commissioners, which dictates the only terms under which the Controller will approve warrants for overtime pay.

The Controller's terms are stated in no uncertain manner. "In order that a regular system may be established for the payment of clerks and salaries for overtime election work, the Controller prescribes that the following shall be the condition under which warrants for election overtime work," the letter states, "will be honored by this office:

"No warrant for election overtime work will be approved by the Controller unless accompanied by a payroll showing the date, hours and rate of pay of each individual claiming money for this work. These rolls should be supported by time sheets in proper form.

"In order that the work of checking election returns and preparing ballots for the returning board will be in the proper form, the Controller will furnish a clerk from his office as timekeeper. This clerk shall keep complete record of all the time of the men on post-election work and no warrant will be paid for any work of this nature not shown on the time sheets of the Controller's timekeeper."

Heretofore all overtime payrolls were handled exclusively in the Commissioners' office.

THEIR FIGHT HOTTEST

ROBERT G. WOODSIDE

CHARLES C. M'GOVERN

Six of the organization candidates are sitting judges and three are attorneys chosen by party leaders to replace Judges Richard W. Martin, James H. Gray and Frank I. Goollmar, who are making independent efforts to break the slate. The judicial contest will be a high-light of tomorrow's election.

ASKS ELECTION BOARD SHIFT

Attorney Joseph Marcus, counsel for Thomas A. Flanigan, Republican candidate for alderman in the First Ward, today filed a petition in Quarter Sessions Court asking that a vacancy be declared in the post of majority inspector, First District, First Ward, on the ground that the incumbent, James O'Toole, is a city employe. The petition asks that Lillian Kramer be named.

SEE BIG VOTE AT HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 19.—A record enrollment of voters for the primary election tomorrow was indicated today by election officials here.

Rickards, former head of the Militia Bureau, United States Army.

Machine Gun Used in Holdup

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—When a funny-looking man entered the Red Parrot Inn, a roadhouse northwest of Chicago, and mounted a machine gun in a strategic position, commanding a sweep of the dance floor, 40 men and women patrons were curiously fascinated.

What a novel act this is going to be, they thought. It was. A moment later four other men entered, more sinister looking than funny. Two carried sawed-off shot guns and two were armed with revolvers.

"Everybody lie flat on the floor," commanded the leader. The terrified patrons obeyed. Then two bandits went through the crowd and took all cash and jewelry available.

In the twinkling of an eye the bandit quintet was gone, escaping from the scene in an automobile after disabling all other machines nearby to keep from being pursued.

PUT VARE VOTES IN MAIL SACKS

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 19.—Messengers bearing mail sacks were being rushed to the 95 voting precincts of Beaver county today by the county commissioners to preserve the ballots in the Vare-Wilson senatorial contest at the general election last November.

The order issued by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson in Pittsburgh for impounding the ballots found the commissioners with no provision for an extra set of ballot boxes, with the result that mail sacks were ordered into use to keep the old ballots, thus releasing the boxes for tomorrow's primaries.

It was found that the ballots cast last November in Ohio township had been destroyed.

M'GOVERN AIDES PREPARE TO NIP POLL FRAUD

HONEST COUNT, AIM OF PICKED WATCHERS

Trained investigators will watch 221 election districts where "cheating" is looked for tomorrow, in an effort to see that Controller C. C. McGovern gets a fair count, a committee organized to aid his campaign and to guard against election frauds has announced. The committee, headed by Gen. A. J. Logan, has secured a staff of 25 trained attorneys and others and will use $100,000 if necessary to bring in ballot boxes where fraud is suspected.

Under a law passed by the last Legislature, ballot boxes can be brought into court and opened on petition of three electors of the district who declare that there is fraud or error. A deposit of $35 for each box must be made to be forfeited in the event no fraud is discovered.

14TH WARD TOPS REGISTRATION

The hottest political fight in the history of the Fourteenth Ward has resulted in giving the Squirrel Hill and Point Breeze sections the largest registration in the city.

The battle began when Edward M. Kenna, former chairman of the Second Ward and now a resident of the Seventh, entered Sol S. Goldstein as a candidate for alderman. The Kline city administration, through the influence of Edward B. Frichertshauser, ward chairman, swung its strength at the start to Alderman R. C. Dever, who wants another term, but, dissatisfied with Dever's showing during the primary, seems to have picked upon P. F. Casey, whose original supporter was Sheriff Robert H. Braun, as the real administration candidate.

Sylvester Bierman, for many years secretary of the ward committee, is waging an independent fight for the place, and the battle has developed into one of the hottest in the city.

81 NEW BALLOT BOXES ARRIVE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 19.—New ballot boxes for the 81 voting districts of this county, to replace those impounded in the Vare-Wilson senatorial controversy growing out of the November election, arrived here today by truck from West Virginia, a rush order for them having been issued Saturday night. Tie-sacks for use in impounding the ballots reached here after the order for the new boxes had been given.

RUSH SEIZURE OF VOTES TO FREE BALLOT BOXES

Prothonotaries in six Western Pennsylvania counties were busy today impounding ballots from several hundred election districts so voters may use the ballot boxes in tomorrow's primary.

The prothonotaries were acting in behalf of United States Marshal James E. McGregor who has been instructed to forward the ballots in last November's election to Washington where they are to be counted by the Senate Elections Committee investigating the Vare-Wilson contest.

Because Senator-elect Vare has not placed a deposit for each box to be collected it was indicated at the Marshal's office that no effort will be made to take the ballots from the prothonotaries. The boxes in the 15 other Western counties, which have duplicate boxes for primaries and election, will not be collected until the November election approaches. By that time Marshal McGregor expects to have cost deposits.

SUE TO ENFORCE BALM AWARD

A $10,000 hart balm award, now in the form of a California judgment, in its present state, is of little value in Pennsylvania, counsel for Mrs. Mary Jackson indicated in Common Pleas Court today. The award is against Mrs. Delia Martin, who is said to have been found in California with Mrs. Jackson's husband, James R. Jackson. The award followed suit for alienation of affections.

Mrs. Jackson's counsel wishes to have the case advanced in order to obtain judgment here soon and to prevent Mrs. Martin from disposing of western property.

'New' Old Testament Eliminates 'Thou'

CHICAGO, Sept 19.—(AP.)—A new translation of the Old Testament in which "thou" becomes "you" and a portion of the Book of Genesis is put into a conventional form of poetry, has been completed and published by the University of Chicago. J. M. Powis Smith, professor of Old Testament language and literature at the university is the editor.

"Much of the Hebrew text that heretofore passed as prose has been found to be really poetic both in form and spirit," Dr. Smith said. Adam's words on the creation of Eve, therefore appear in the "American Translation" this way:

"This at last is bone of my bone,
And flesh of my flesh,
She shall be called woman,
For from man she was taken."

New language replaces some of the more familiar passages. Joseph's "coat of many colors" becomes merely a "long cloak," and Eve becomes Adam's "helper" instead of the "helpmeet" of the King James version. "Vinegar," meaning wine or liquor, is not used in the new translation.

Page "headlines" which state the main theme of each page have been placed in the new version. "David's Family Troubles," "Job's Interview With the Lord," "Prophecy on the Drought," "The Categorical Imperative," are some of them.

Verse numbers such as were used in the older translations are carried in the margin, but the text is paragraphed only at the conclusion of each thought or group of sentences.

Prof. Smith explained that the translation seeks to be American "in the sense that the writing of Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson are American." The language of the translation, he emphasized, "cannot be allowed to fall to the level of the street, because the content of the Old Testament is on a high literary plane."

RARE VINTAGE, RUM GONE, HOLD NEIGHBOR

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 19.—When about 20 cases of pre-war whisky and wine, some as old as 18 years, disappeared from the cellar of Jules J. Quertinmont, Jules suspected his neighbor Charles Jennewine.

Saturday Jennewine's home was searched, 25 quarts recovered, and he was arrested.

COHEN DISOWNS BALLOT

Judge Josiah Cohen today vigorously denied he had authorized a sample ballot marked for himself and Judges Martin, Gray and Gelmar. He reiterated his statement that he is urging the nomination of the nine organization candidates. The sample is being distributed in several sections of the county.

Mrs. Margaret B. Schiller, former vice chairman of the Republican city committee, disclaimed all knowledge of an eleventh-hour communication broadcast by one of the Fourteenth Ward aldermanic candidates in which she was named as aiding his campaign.

TELEVISION FOR EVERY RADIO PREDICTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Television [illegible] every home that has a radio is the [illegible] exhibit to be seen at the [illegible] world's fair which opens [illegible] at Madison Square Garden.

Not the least interesting item to the radio enthusiast is the fact that the inventor, himself an amateur, has devised a means of installing a television apparatus that is so simple that almost anyone can build it, and the cost is about $100.

The inventor, A. G. Cooley, began work on the system some years ago while a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

So simple is his device that several manufacturers of radio instrument parts have begun producing the component parts on Cooley's machine, preparing for the day they believe at hand when anyone can take pictures out of the air.

Visitors to the radio world's fair will have the first opportunity of seeing Roxy's gang actually broadcasting.

This organization never has worked under the eye of the general public, but tonight they will put on a program of an hour and a half's duration.

BOY DIES, DOZEN HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

A boy is dead and a dozen persons are in hospitals today as the result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district yesterday.

Howard Jungo, 6, of 412 Church street, Turtle Creek, was killed when an automobile driven by his father, Henry Jungo, 35, in Yost boulevard, Forest Hills, overturned after skidding. The boy was pinned beneath the car.

3 HURT IN CRASH

Jungo, his daughter, Margaret, 8, and Tillie Kapinsky, 16, of 707 Swissvale avenue, Wilkinsburg, were seriously hurt. They were taken to Columbia Hospital. Four other passengers in the car were slightly injured.

Lois Kellar, 11, of 2128 Columbia avenue, suffered minor hurts when the automobile driven by her stepfather, Frank Sanning, crashed into the wrecked Jungo machine.

The condition of Jacob Tvantah, 38, and his brother, George, 35, of 1018 Strong street, was reported as serious at the West Penn Hospital this morning. They were hurt when their machine collided with one driven in Bigelow boulevard near the Bloomfield Bridge by John Chernick, 26, of South Second street.

Mrs. Mary Homolok, 58, of 322 Fairmont avenue, Glassport, is in a serious condition and her daughter, Miss Ada Homolok, 27, and Mrs. Anna Ocunthak, 38, of 431 Erie avenue, Glassport, are in McKeesport Hospital today as the result of a crash between an automobile driven by John Homolok and another said to have been driven by Frank Oscilion, of Ulsen street, in the Pittsburgh-McKeesport road.

The women were taken to the hospital by G. L. Chipps, a passing motorist. Chief of Police A. W. Hatchem, of Mifflin township, later arrested Oscilion on a charge of reckless driving.

SKIDS OVER EMBANKMENT

Skidding on the River road, near Hays, an automobile driven by Julian Vargos, 23, of 241 Laden street, Clairton, plunged over a 25-foot embankment to the tracks of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, where it was demolished by a freight train a few minutes after the occupants extricated themselves from the wreckage. Vargos and his two companions, Patrick Lowdas, 26, and Andrew Ramun, 24, both of 210 State street, Clairton, were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where they were treated for severe bruises and lacerations.

SEE REED HELP IN M'ADOO'S PASSING

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—With William G. McAdoo out of the 1928 race for the Democratic candidate for President, Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, looms as one of the chief contenders to oppose Gov. Al Smith, of New York, in the next convention.

McAdoo's statement that he will not be a candidate was regarded in capital circles as decidedly helpful to the Reed boom. For one thing, it removes the McAdoo-Smith deadlock, which tied up the Madison Square Garden convention three years ago, and opens up the field.

Gov. Smith, of course, remains very much in the running, political observers pointed out. In spite of suggestions from Democratic leaders opposed to the Smith candidacy, that now is the time for Smith to follow McAdoo, and in the interests of "party harmony" quite the race, no one here believed that he will do any such thing. To do so would be but a betrayal of Smith's immense following, it was stated.

McAdoo's statement, however, made it plain that he would oppose Gov. Smith or any other of the so-called radical wets for the Democratic nomination. Just where the line will be drawn is the problem to face the Democratic drys.

Senator Reed is known to be a "liberal," but he has stood firm for enforcement and against subterfuges to evade the law. It was believed here that Reed might easily win a good part of the McAdoo strength, which will be pitted solidly against Al Smith. Part of it may be swung to Gov. Vic Donahey, of Ohio.

Thus far Senator Reed has withheld comment on the McAdoo statement. His friends, however, were certain that he cannot but benefit in the present situation.

Carnegie Apple Tree Blooms 2nd Time

For the second time this year apples are hanging from the branches of an apple tree on the property of James Schindler, at King's highway, Rosslyn Farms, Carnegie. According to residents, a second blossoming of an apple tree is unusual, although it is common among peach and pear trees.

CHARTIERS TRADE BOARD MEETS TO PROTEST TUBES

The Chartiers Board of Trade of the Twenty-eighth Ward will meet tonight to express disapproval of the proposed tunnel through Mt. Washington to connect with a contemplated bridge across the Monongahela River. Residents of the West End hope to have this tunnel terminate near McCann's corners instead of close to the south end of the Liberty tubes, as planned, it is said, claiming that the former idea would save much road construction and would benefit a district of 50,000 residents.

ERIE DOCTOR FINED ON PRESCRIPTION CHARGE

Dr. H. E. McLaughlin, of Erie, was fined $50 today by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson when he pleaded no defense to a complaint charging him with issuing five prescriptions for whisky to patients without giving them a physical examination, as required under the provision of his permit to prescribe spirituous liquor.

Hemorrhoids Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles.

The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in hundreds of cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at May Drug Co. Stores, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

Prepared to halt a political gun battle, scores of police and detectives riding patrol wagons, automobiles and motorcycles rushed to Liberty avenue and Thirty-first street last night to answer a riot call. 4 MORE PLANE CRASH VICTIMS NEAR DEATH

By Universal Service.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Sept. 19.—Four of the five persons who survived the plane crash near Hadley Field, in which seven were killed Saturday, were making what appeared to be a losing fight for their lives this morning in Muhlenberg Hospital.

The survivors are Miss Bessie Heater, 15, whose father was among the dead; Lorraine Dunavan, 14, and her sister, Verna, 15, who lost their mother in the crash; Louis Pellis and Matthew Lutz, of New Brunswick.

Pellis is the only one who appears to have a chance to recover, according to the hospital authorities. The others are so badly injured internally that they cannot speak. Most of the time they are unconscious.

The Dunavan girls, in moments of consciousness, made the precincts of the hospital ward hideous with hysterical screaming through the night and today had periods of delirium.

All the injured, except Pellis, had their bodies badly crushed in the wreckage of the plane and are suffering from internal hemorrhages.

Miss Heater's mother was at her daughter's bedside all night. For a moment or two the girl seemed to recognize the grief-stricken woman, but soon lapsed into unconsciousness again.

The fact that seven persons lost their lives in the accident did not prevent large crowds from assembling at the Hadley Field for a chance to take short flights.

TRAINS COLLIDE, 1 DEAD, 4 HURT

By Universal Service.

LAPEER, Mich., Sept. 19.—A brakeman was killed, three trainmen were hurt, one probably fatally, and a passenger injured when Michigan Central passenger train 203, en route from Detroit to Bay City, crashed head on into an extra freight on a siding at Carpenter station, eight miles north of here.

Four empty baggage and passenger coaches, immediately back of the passenger tender, served as a buffer and prevented serious injury to the half hundred passengers.

The dead: Ralph Steele, 29, passenger brakeman, Detroit.

Immediately after the crash the four empty cars and a freight car caught fire and burned.

According to the company's report, a new brakeman misunderstood a signal. The crews of both engines jumped just before the impact.

TRAIN ROBBERS HAVE SLUMP

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Business with freight train robbers was rather dull during the first six months of 1927, the American Railway Association reveals.

The losses from the robbery of freight cars were the smallest on record. They amounted to $636,041, a decrease of 11.6 per cent. During this period the railroads broke all previous records for the amount of freight hauled.

But while robberies decreased, accidents increased and the railroads paid the heaviest losses for destruction or damage of freight on record. The bill was $19,820,000, an increase of 3.5 per cent.

Guests at the party said considerable liquor was served at the midnight lunch. Mitchell and Van De Mark are said to have got into an argument, subject unknown.

Mitchell suffered rifle shots in the chest and leg. He is said to have named Van De Mark, who is missing, as his assailant.

NEW CASTLE TO REPLACE SEIZED BALLOT BOXES

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 19.—Eighty-one new ballot boxes were ordered by county commissioners Saturday to take the place of those impounded by the Federal Court at Pittsburgh. Prothonotary R. M. Campbell was notified by United States Marshal James McGregor to impound the ballot boxes and new boxes were ordered by telephone. Arrangements were made to send a transfer concern to West Virginia, where the boxes are made, and trucks are now en route. The new boxes will be distributed Monday. The impounded boxes have been locked in vacant cells in the county jail.

Milly, Home From Hospital, Vents Fury on Beau and Mabel; Nye Listens

What Has Gone Before

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the twins, BEAU and MILIE, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework for her mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY afternoons. In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's in the Nye-Naylor building. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her. Millie likes him but admits that she prefers a bond salesman named DAVIDSON, and she tries to get him a job with Nye. Millie moves into Beau's old room to prevent his ever coming home with Mabel. But while she is in the hospital following an appendicitis operation, Beau and Mabel return to the flat because they can't support a home of their own. Mr. Jerome comes home because of Millie's illness, but does not stay long, and leaves just as Beau and Mabel move in. Sally, who is working for John Nye part time, during Millie's illness, predicts that there will be fireworks when Millie discovers that they are living at home again, and have put her things out of her room to have it themselves.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"YOU'VE taken my room, you little sneak!" she blazed out at her sister-in-law. "You've moved your things back into Sally's room without even telling me about it! Well, you're a fine lot! All of you!" Her glaring eyes went from her mother to Sally and on to Beau.

She stamped her foot and opened her lips to tell them what she thought of them. And then, all at once, she stopped and glanced at John Nye, as if she had just remembered that he was there.

In the twinkling of an eye she had changed completely. All the fury went out of her face, and she sank weakly against the pillows on the couch.

"It's all right, I suppose," she said, closing her eyes. "After all, it doesn't make much difference to me where I sleep. Johnny's office is the only place that really is home to me, anyway."

She smiled up at him adorably and begged him to stay to have dinner with them.

But there was no keeping John Nye that day. He said he was expecting friends to have dinner with him at home, and ran down the stairs as if he were very glad to get away.

Mabel looked pleased as Punch as the sound of his departing car died away out in the rainy street.

"Well, that's the time that he saw Millie with her horns and hoofs!" she said with great satisfaction. "I'll bet she's cooked her goose forever, as far as he's concerned. No man would want to marry a fish-wife temper like that, if you ask me!"

But Millie did not seem to have "cooked her goose" with John Nye.

A week later she went back to work, and for three nights running she had dinner with him down town.

On the last of these nights she came into the bedroom at night, scenting the air with the leathery white gardenias that were pinned on her shoulder.

"My Johnny buys me everything!" she sighed happily. "He has more dollars than Rockefeller has oil cans, and he sure knows how to spend them! Sometimes I think I like him better than I did Davy Davidson, after all."

Then for three nights she came home early and went to bed.

It was on Saturday night that Sally woke up with a feeling that somebody had called her.

She listened. The flat was wrapped in silence and in darkness. Outside the neighborhood seemed to be wrapped in darkness and silence, too. . . . It must be very late, she reasoned.

Then, all at once, a faint ray of light flashed across the wall of the hall outside her door. It faded and was gone.

By this time Sally was on her bare feet and moving slowly towards the open door.

The light flashed out upon the darkness before her once more, and she saw that it came from the room where Beau and Mabel were sleeping.

She tiptoed down the hall, making no sound, scarcely breathing.

At the door she paused and cautiously peered into the room.

A small flashlight lay on the floor beside the big double bed, and by its light Beau knelt, packing a suitcase!

Mabel, with her small, three-cornered mouth open, was snoring peacefully, in the bed above him.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

FOR a minute it seemed to Sally that she must be dreaming. She stood there, rooted to the spot, wondering why Beau was packing a suitcase in the middle of the night.

Where was he going? Why was he getting ready to leave the house like a thief in the night?

Like a flash the answer wrote itself across Sally's quick brain: "Money! It's because of money!" She knew Beau and his great weakness.

Then, like a flash she was in the room, bending over him. At her light touch on his shoulder he jumped as if he had been shot, and turned quickly.

Her whisper was hardly more than a quick breath: "Come here!"

Without a sound she was out of the bedroom, across the hall and the dark dining room. She could hear him paddling close behind her as she groped for the switch in the living room to turn on the lights.

They flashed up, and she faced Beau tensely. Her lips opened stiffly, not to ask a question, but to state a fact.

"Beau, you've taken some more money. . . . Tell me how much."

It seemed to her that she had known for weeks that this would happen.

She was not like a girl of 20 in that moment. She was a woman—with a woman's knowledge looking out of her blue eyes with their

But Beau wouldn't meet her look. His eyes went from one corner of the room to the other—from the floor to the ceiling. Finally he just flicked her with that shifty gaze of his.

"What do you mean, more money?" he asked bitterly. "When did I ever take any money?"

"Why, those bad checks you gave Ted Sloan," replied Sally, wondering how he could forget them, when she had only begun to pay them off for him.

"Oh, those!" His voice was sulky. "Aren't you ever going to get through, throwing those up to me. They were nothing—I'd have paid them off myself if you hadn't butted in."

For a minute Sally was speechless with surprise.

Then she began to understand him—that he would never take the blame for anything, not even in his own thoughts.

Just as Mrs. Jerome preferred to think that her husband had left her because of another woman, instead of admitting that it was because he couldn't live the way she wanted to live—with unmade beds, hit-or-miss meals taken from cans or delicatessens, dust and untidiness.

"What's the trouble now, Beau?" Sally asked gently. "Please tell me—I'll try not to butt in, as you call it, this time. But maybe I can help."

She could see that he was in desperate trouble about something. He was like a hunted animal in his terror—afraid, almost, to tell his own sister what he had done.

He stood still for a minute, picking at his fingers nervously, looking around the cozy, familiar room as if it were some place that he never had seen before. Then suddenly he turned as if he were going to leave it.

But, just as suddenly, he swung back to Sally, and began to tell her what was wrong.

"I've taken some money, see?" he asked, and his voice was low and hoarse. "From the bank where I work. I've just taken it. Get that through your head. Stolen it is what I mean."

Then he looked squarely at her with his light-blue eyes, and there was defiance in his face.

"It's sure to be found out, and they'll come here for me—and that's why I'm going now. I'm not going to be arrested, and ruin Mabel's life for her. She's the one I'm thinking about—Mabel!" His voice broke on his small wife's name.

By the time he had finished speaking, Sally was ready with her answer. "But, Beau, it isn't going to help matters for you to run away. It's going to make them all the worse."

Beau stared at her. He shook his handsome blond head dully, and, as Sally looked at it, she wondered how so handsome a head could hold so many dishonest impulses as Beau had.

"What you've got to do," said Sally, thinking quickly and sharply, "is to stay right here and put back the money you've taken. How much was it, and how did you manage, to get away with it?"

Beau's lips curled. "I don't trust you or anybody enough to give myself away to them," he said. "I won't tell you how I got the money—but what I did was one grand."

"One grand? How much is that?"

"A thousand dollars," explained Beau. "And it's all gone. I played the ponies with it—and lost it all,

Call 10 In Probe of 'Private Contracting'

As the outcome of their being implicated by testimony in "private contracting," subpenas were issued today for Joseph Gaussa, division superintendent for the county Public Works Department, and nine employes of his division to testify Wednesday morning when County Controller C. C. McGovern's public audit of county finances will be resumed. Criminal actions are expected to result from their testimony.

Gaussa is alleged to have sold and delivered three carloads of county-owned slag to H. H. W. Schuchman of Brentwood, who testified to this effect Saturday. In payment for the slag, Schuchman alleged that he gave his personal check to Gaussa and received it later as cancelled with Gaussa's indorsement. The proceeds of the sale, McGovern charged, never got to the county treasury.

OTHERS SUBPENAED

In addition to Gaussa, those subpenaed today are Frank Gaussa, warehouse watchman; Adolph Sposato, Alfred Sposato, N. A. Sposato, laborers; F. J. Fusca, clerk; Michael Burns, foreman; Joseph Marmo, foreman; Eugene Mauch, timekeeper, and Peter Speicher, watchman.

Counsel for McGovern were preparing the perjury charges today under watch the Controller hopes to indict Frank Forrest and W. L. Evans, whose testimony was refuted by a bookkeeper formerly employed by Evans. Forrest is a county employe who McGovern charges took advantage of his position to have a fence built free of charge at his home.

MYSTERY LETTER CLUE IN DEATH OF DOCTOR

HAMMONTON, N. J., Sept. 19—(AP.)—Authorities today were investigating the possible connection a letter said to have been found in the vicinity of the lonely spot where Dr. A. William Lilliendahl, 61-year-old retired physician, was shot to death last Thursday, might have with the slaying.

The letter was said by the police to have been addressed to Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, 41-year-old widow of the physician, who since the killing has remained at state police headquarters here. Its contents were not divulged, but it was reported to have referred to financial difficulties the writer was encountering. The missive was signed with an alias, but the authorities said the writer was known to them, and that he might be questioned later in connection with the case.

Prosecutor Louis Repetto, of Atlantic county, announced that he would have Mrs. Lilliendahl held under "substantial bail" as a material witness today. The woman, who has been questioned a number of times since she was brought to the police barracks here maintains that Dr. Lilliendahl was shot by two Negroes who later robbed her. The police said there were no footprints other than those of a woman about the automobile in which the man's body was found.

as usual" is bitterness was in his voice and face. "I always lose. I never get any kind of a lucky break."

"A thousand dollars," said Sally to herself. Her earnings for a whole year! The mere thought of it was paralyzing.

For two or three minutes she could not think of a thing to say. She stood looking intently into Beau's blank face. And he looked back at her, with his lips hanging loosely and his shoulders sagging.

"Well!" she said at last. "We'll have to get the money from somewhere. Won't we, Beau? And then you'll have to put it back and quit the job at the bank. It's no place for you to work."

"I'll say it isn't," Beau answered. "When I see all the jack lying around, and then think how Mabel wants a new dress and how I haven't got a single shirt with whole cuffs, I go kind of nutty, I guess—"

"You wouldn't have to have ragged cuffs if Mabel would mend them up once in a while," Sally spoke sharply, for she was out of patience with Mabel. "And you know you can't afford that car of yours!"

Beau shrugged his shoulders and looked ugly. "Well, don't rub it in! Don't kick a guy when he's down," he growled ungratefully. "Where are you going to get that grand for me?"

"Aunt Emily," Sally told him. "If she has it, she'll lend it to me. I'm going to start working for her pretty soon, and I can pay it back to her if she'll just give me enough time."

Beau looked brighter. He knew that somehow or other, his women-folk would save him. They had.

"Goodnight," he said briefly, and went to bed.

Sally tiptoed back to her own bed. But she could not sleep. She lay awake, listening for the sound of a board creaking or a suitcase lock snapping. She was afraid that Beau might try to get away after all.

* * *

The next morning at 9 o'clock Sally was marching up River road on her way to Aunt Emily's.

The house on River road looked just as it always did, facing the eastern skies, and catching the pale autumn sunshine on its window panes.

The only difference was that over the gate a wooden sign hung:

THE HOUSE BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD
CHICKEN DINNERS SERVED
FROM 6 TO 8

"By jinks, she's doing business already!" said Sally to herself with an amused twinkle in her eyes.

It was like Aunt Emily to go ahead with her own plans, saying nothing to anybody about them. There was nothing namby-pamby about Aunt Emily. She stood on her own feet. Only she did not stand. She ran. She galloped ahead.

When Sally rang the doorbell a strange woman answered it. A large, plump, comfortable looking woman with sharp blue eyes, pink cheeks, and a smudge of flour on her apron front.

"Yes, Miss Jerome's here," she said in answer to Sally's question. "She's in the office."

She led Sally into the small room that once had been the linen room of the big old house.

It had nothing in it but a desk and two straight chairs. And on one of the chairs sat Aunt Emily, looking very stiff and prim in a dark blue silk dress.

"Well, if it isn't little Sally!" she exclaimed when her niece stepped into the bright business-like little place. "And what brings you 'way out here this morning?"

She always struck straight to the heart of things.

Sally was like her—direct and quick. "Money," said she. "Aunt Emily, would you lend me a thousand dollars and not ask what I want it for?"

Aunt Emily's fine, firm lips came together with a snap. "I would not!" she declared promptly and forcibly, "because I'd know what you wanted it for. For Millie—or for Beau! And they've had enough of my money, thank you!"

She got up and brushed the palms of her hands one against the other, as if she were washing her hands of the whole Jerome family.

"Let me show you my dining room," she said, and as she held open the door she deposited a kiss on Sally's velvety flushed cheek. "You know I'd give my niece Sally anything I had, don't you? But the rest of the family have had the last nickel I'll ever give them."

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Mary Harrison's Future As An Actress in the Balance

MARY HARRISON'S fatalistic little speech, "I suppose that's the end of me," called forth by my message to Philip Veritzen in answer to his wireless, was, despite my pity for her, something I welcomed. For a little while, at least, I would have something besides my own personal perplexities to consider.

That Dicky's young niece was suffering poignant suspense as to Philip Veritzen's attitude when he found out her deception I knew, and realized that she had ample reason for her fears. The great theatrical producer zealously guarded his dramatic "finds" from contact with any other members of the theatrical profession during their years of novitiate with him. He wanted the appearance of one of his stars to be an absolute novelty to the audiences, who have become accustomed to the last word in artistry of setting and acting from his productions. A hint that anyone undergoing his training had appeared in any public way even as an amateur for charity would mean the instant dismissal of his protege, for he would reason, and rightly, that the publicity would have robbed his future star of the elements of mystery and surprise upon which he so strongly counts in his premieres.

How then could Mary expect clemency, Mary, who because of the glamour thrown over the affair by Jack Leslie, the cabaret dancer, whom Dicky had dubbed the "capering cockroach," had rebelled with all the unreason of her 16 years against the rigid discipline of her training and made the sensation of the year as "the masked dancer" at the cabaret where Jack Leslie danced and Noel Veritzen played the violin?

I tried to keep this thought from tinging my voice as I answered her plaint with a banal, "Let's not cross that bridge until we come to it, Mary," but I was conscious of its futility even before she had flashed me an unconsciously reproachful look.

"I'm afraid I'm already across it," she said. "You know, Auntie Madge, the worst thing to me is the fact that I was such a contemptible little liar, creeping out that way and deceiving you and breaking my agreement with Mr. Veritzen not to go anywhere except the places you took me. But that won't be the worst thing to Mr. Veritzen. What he'll be maddest about is the idea that somebody might have recognized me, and be able to say that anyone in his training was appearing at a cheap cabaret. I don't think he'd worry his head if I broke every one of the Ten Commandments, so long as his pride wasn't hurt."

I suppressed an astonished smile at the child's reasoning, for she had put her finger unerringly upon Philip Veritzen's chief characteristic—and weakness.

"I think you're right, Mary," I said, "and in that very fact lies the only hope I have for you. Remember that the secret of your being the masked dancer is confined to people who under no circumstances would betray you—with of course, the exception of Jack Leslie, and I am sure he was so thoroughly cowed by Maj. Grantland upon the night we rescued you from Leslie's apartment that he never will dare to breathe a word to your detriment. In fact"—this slowly, carefully averting my eyes from her, "I do not think there is the slightest danger that Mr. Veritzen will ever discover the fact if you do not choose to tell him."

It was a deliberate testing of her, an unfair one perhaps, but one which I nevertheless felt justified in making. I love Dicky's young niece very tenderly, but I cannot forget that the whole episode of her adventure as the masked dancer revealed a capacity for gross and cheap deceit as well as a propensity to be influenced by plausible and evil companions which augured ill for any future stability of purpose, or present strength of character. That she had suffered agonies of remorse, I knew, when she found that she simply had been the tool of my malignant enemy Grace Draper, in her attempt to poison Dickey and throw the blame upon me. I also remembered her extreme youth—only 16 years—and hoped that her terrifying experience with Jack Leslie from which we had rescued her had brought her to a salutary realization of the littleness of her own soul. Therefore I waited tensely for her answer to the hint I had dropped. Upon her reaction to the temptation my words must have given her, depended my future course of action concerning her.

Your Kidneys
Are the Sentinels of Your Health.
Don't Neglect Them!

YOUR kidneys! Do you realize what an important part these organs play in your bodily health and length of life? The kidneys are the blood filters.

To be well they must thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous waste. Sluggish kidneys permit waste impurities to remain in the blood and cause slow poisoning of the system.

One is apt to feel tired and drowsy—to have a dull, nagging backache and annoying headaches and dizzy spells. That the kidneys are not working right is often shown by scanty or burning excretions.

Assist the kidneys with a stimulant diuretic.* Use Doan's Pills. They have been winning new friends for more than forty years. Doan's act on the kidneys only—are endorsed from coast to coast. Ask your neighbor!

*Diuretics are agents which increase the secretions of the kidneys.—Encyclopaedia definition.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

All Roman Roads Led to Medicinal Springs

ONE of the common failings of mortal man is his neglect to drink enough water. It is doubtful if individual tendencies are more strongly shown than by the water drinking habit. Everybody should drink at least five pints of water per day. While some persons take more than this the average individual consumes much less.

DR. COPELAND

If water cost 10 cents a glass it would be in greater demand. Its very cheapness and abundance appear to make it less popular than it should be.

When I get thirsty invariably my mind turns to a spring in the outskirts of my native village. It seems to me no other water tastes half as good. To the end of life "Palmer's Spring" will haunt my dreams.

There is something romantic and appealing about a spring of crystal water. Let the public learn that a given spring contains valuable minerals or other health giving qualities and it becomes the Mecca of the neighborhood.

It was ever thus. Away back at the dawn of civilization society recognized the importance of mineral waters. The earliest healing establishments dedicated to Aesculapius, the Father of Medicine, were found near famous springs.

According to some authorities the only medicines used in ancient Rome were mineral waters. For a period of five centuries or more sole dependence in every illness was placed on their virtues. The traveler to Rome and to every part of Europe reached by the Romans finds the remains of the Roman baths to be the chief objects of interest.

There is an abundant foundation for this ancient faith in such waters. There can be no doubt that the combination of mineral salts found in some spring waters creates a drink which has more than the virtues of plain water. When chemical salts are thus dissolved they appear capable of producing different physical effects than the same salts have in their free state.

In my opinion the chemical analysis of a mineral water does not give a true estimate of its value to the human system. The solution may contain soda, lime, potash or other elements. To drink the water containing one or more of these ingredients does not give you the effect of taking upon the tongue so much soda or lime or potash. The water appropriates these mineral salts and passes them through the mysterious laboratory of Nature. What results is something more potent and healthful than the dry salts.

You are not interested in the various theories put forth to explain this remarkable fact. But in plain language scientists mean simply that Nature, the great Chemist and Master-Workman, has caused the forces of the earth and the properties of the minerals to be transformed so that the human body can absorb them.

Space does not permit extended consideration of the special virtues of mineral springs found in North America. In various parts of New York and Pennsylvania and Indiana and West Virginia, indeed, in almost every state in the Union and the Provinces of Canada, are found mineral springs from which bubble waters of great value to mankind. When properly selected for their peculiar qualities, these waters can be counted as friends of the human family.

Among the mineral waters it is probable that the "saline," the salty waters, are the most popular. They possess laxative and purgative properties which make them of value when such effects are required.

In many instances such waters are to be preferred to pills, powders or the usual cathartic.

Sugar-coated pills are pleasant to to take—that is the reason they are coated with sugar. But the fact that they are made so attractive may add to their danger. They are no less habit-forming and drastic simply because they appeal to the taste.

For this reason there can be no doubt that mineral waters of the right sort are preferable to many of the cathartic compounds in the market. Their power to overcome the immediate effects of constipation is unquestioned. In their effects upon the bowel and its lining membranes, I am confident they are far less irritating. Indeed, many mineral waters possess qualities which make them soothing and healing to the tissues.

Whenever your system fails persistently to eliminate as it should, you will be wise to consult your doctor. He will advise the treatment. An abundance of drinking water and, in all probability, a mineral water will be included in his prescription.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

LIFE BEING WHAT IT IS—

ALL the brilliant wit, intelligent philosophy and beautiful sentiments a woman may utter have less weight with a man than the lightest flutter of her eyelashes.

* * *

It is always fatal to try to straighten out a misunderstanding before breakfast when a woman's thoughts are usually as scrambled as the eggs, and a man's nerves are as jumpy as the percolator.

* * *

The oftener a man falls in love, the more gracefully and lightly he falls; the oftener a woman falls in love, the more foolishly and desperately she plunges.

HELEN ROWLAND

Somehow, in the rosebud garden of husbands, it is so difficult to find just that happy medium between a lump of inanimate clay who starves out your soul, and a live wire who wears out your nerves.

* * *

In Oriental countries, a man's wealth is estimated by the number of wives he keeps; in America, by the number of ex-wives to whom he pays alimony.

* * *

Closing the window won't keep love from flying out by the dumbwaiter when the bills begin coming up that way.

* * *

Two are company—but not much, after they're married.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, September 20

Benefic aspects dominate today, according to astrology, which finds it most stimulating for certain of earth's activities.

This should be a fortunate rule for all sorts of trade and appears to presage for merchants and manufacturers great profits.

The seers prophesy that cheap commodities will give way to those that are more costly, the period of bargain hunting being on the wane.

This is read as a fortunate sway under which to consult physicians or to begin health culture.

There is a promising sign for those who would collect debts or set their business affairs in order.

Appendicitis is to be more prevalent than usual, it is forecast, and there should be quick recognition of symptoms.

Great extravagances will be indulged in by the wealthy in the coming winter, it is foretold, and this is always a sign to be read gravely, since it presages some national calamity.

All the signs appear to indicate for Russia real political development that will interest the United States.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year good in all respects.

Children born on this day usually will succeed best in public offices. Many soldiers are born under this sign.

I HAVE heard of reasons manifold
Why love must needs be blind,
But this is the best of all I hold—
His eyes are in his mind.

And though he poses as a blind one, the little faker is hard at work planning and plotting affairs of the heart. No matter what disguise he assumes, he is never insensible to beauty and romance.

ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, at present United States Senator from New York and formerly Health Commissioner for the City of New York, is a national authority on public health and the record he achieved in New York at the head of the Health Department has never been equaled. It is natural that his opinion should have decisive weight.

Dr. Copeland says: "Mineral waters of the right sort are preferable to many of the cathartic compounds on the market. Their power to overcome the immediate effects of constipation is unquestioned. In their effects upon the bowel and its lining membranes, I am confident they are far less irritating. Indeed, many mineral waters possess qualities which make them soothing and healing to the tissues. Sugar coated pills are pleasant to take—that is the reason they are coated with sugar. But the fact that they are so attractive may add to their danger. They are no less habit-forming and drastic simply because they appeal to the taste. On the other hand, mineral waters contain elements which are found in the blood. Most of these substances are there in higher percentage than in the blood. For that reason they are unattractive to the blood-stream and therefore pass through the system, doing nothing else but to flush and cleanse the intestinal tract."

Pluto Water, with its mineral content, has been the dependable agent of the American people over the years in successfully battling constipation, the source of so many bodily ills. It "flushes the bowels and washes away impurities", gently, naturally and thoroughly. It neither gripes nor is habit-forming. Acts in 30 minutes to 2 hours.

Sold at all drug counters and at fountains.

Teddie

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your column for some time and enjoy it very much. I agree with you in many things, but not in your necking, drinking and smoking question.

I am 17 and in love with a boy two years my senior. He loved me once, but my parents objected to my going with him. Because I was not in the humor of necking one evening we quarreled. We have not spoken for three weeks. I doubt if he still loves me.

My best friend did not help me in the least to win my parents over. She told me she would not be seen on the street with him. The day we quarreled she had a date with him.

How will I know if he still loves me? How can I win him back?

TEDDIE.

You disagree with the very fundamentals of this department, my dear, and some day you will know better. No doubt your parents have a very good reason for objecting to this boy, so why not trust their judgment?

WOMEN GOLF STARS ·:· PLAYING IN NATIONAL ·:· CHAMPIONSHIP TOURNEY

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell HURD

FORMER PITTSBURGHER

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia is one of the real veteran contenders for the national crown now held by Mrs. Stetson. She is expected to make a real bid at Cherry Valley this week.

Mrs. G. Henry STETSON

DEFENDING CHAMPION

Mrs. G. Henry Stetson of Philadelphia pulled a big surprise when she copped the championship last year. She has been playing good but erratic golf and is not expected to retain her laurels.

Mlle. Simone Thion de la CHAUME

FRENCH CONTENDER

Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, French champion, who is giving the tournament an international aspect. Much is expected of the little tri-color girl this week.

GLENNA COLLETT

BEST IN LAND

Little Glenna Collett of Providence is the best woman golfer in the United States. She is the Bobby Jones of the fair sex. She is determined to make the entire field feel her force this week as she trys to regain her lost crown.

Maureen ORCUTT

NEEDS EXPERIENCE

Maureen Orcutt of "somewhere in Jersey" is one of the nation's coming women golf stars. She needs, most of all, experience, and were she fortified with a little more of this she might be expected to make a good showing this week.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

ONE more major league manager has come out with the flatfooted and unqualified prediction that the Pirates are going to win the pennant.

The latest to prophecy the eventual triumph of the Buccaneers in the struggle for the National League's 1927 championship and the right to vie with the larruping Yankees for the world title next month is Wilbert Robinson, veteran manager of the Brooklyn club, which resumes its series at Forbes Field today.

And he makes the prediction, too, without any "ifs" or "buts," adding only that the Corsairs must play carefully in their four-game series with the Giants here next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the final events of the National League season in Pittsburgh.

"I BELIEVE that Pittsburgh will win the pennant without being pressed hard," said Uncle Robbie yesterday when asked his opinion as to the outcome of the race. "Coming from me, that is not a new prediction by any means, for I said 'way last spring that Pittsburgh would be the winner.

"Even when the Pirates were thrown back for a heavy loss as the result of having a record-breaking number of star players on the injured list, and again when they fell to a point more than five games behind the leaders about a month ago, I did not change my views. I felt sure that they would come back and win out and now I am sure they will do so. With such a lead as the Buccaneers hold at this time it will be practically impossible for any rival to beat them out.

"IT WILL be on merit, too, when the Pittsburgh club cinches the flag soon, as I fully expect it will do, for it is a great team and has fought its way to the top in the face of some very discouraging handicaps.

"There is just one thing more that the Pirates will have to watch in order to make the pennant safe, and that is the coming series of four games with the Giants. By playing carefully and making a fair showing in that series they can make the pennant a certainty."

THOUGH giving all due credit to the clever leadership of Manager Bush and the work of all the regulars and reserves, "Robbie" paid a special tribute to the Waner brothers.

"If you are looking for one of the biggest factors in Pittsburgh's prospective pennant victory — or rather two of the biggest factors, for they are too good to be referred to as one—you will find it in those Waner boys," he said. "The part they have played in the pennant winning cannot be too highly estimated. They have been the marvels of the year and the brilliant work they have done all through the sea-

ABE DIDN'T "SWITCH" BEFORE FIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Tele Sports Editor.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.— For the first time in his fistic career, Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, let out a squawk today, and the reaction of the fans and critics was startling to behold. They never believed Jack, who had endeared himself to them because he always was a fighter from the word go, and never alibied, would be guilty of such a breach of what is considered the code of ethics of the fight game.

The sensation was sprung this morning, when the Herald-Examiner of Chicago, a Hearst newspaper, came out with an exclusive signed and copyrighted open letter to the public by Dempsey challenging Tunney to "tell the truth" about their battle in the Sesquicentennial arena in Philadelphia last fall, in which the title was transferred to Tunney by the unanimous decision of the judges at the end of 10 one-sided rounds.

WANTS EXPLANATION

Dempsey in his letter asked Tunney to explain chiefly his dealings with Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff, some inklings of which has burst into print at various times and intimated that they had to do with an attempted betting coup engineered by Abe Attel, former featherweight champion. Only the switching of the referee at the eleventh hour, Dempsey hints, would have saved him from getting the "works" in the event he had fairly won the fight.

The fans gobbled up the extras on the letters and stood about in excited groups discussing the incident. The consensus of opinion after digesting the "scandal" seemed to be that "it will be a good fight now; they're 'mad' at each other."

That Hoff matter has been a bugaboo to Tunney for some time. Boo-Boo is the biggest moneyed manager of boxers in Philadelphia and is, as Dempsey says in his letter, a powerful influence. Some months ago, Hoff announced to the world that he was ready to go into court and make Tunney live up to the terms of a contract entered into with him whereby he was to receive 10 per cent of Tunney's and 10 per cent of Manager Billy Gibson's money for all engagements in which Tunney appeared, boxing or otherwise, in the event that he won the title, in return for a loan of $20,000 advanced by Hoff just before the Philadelphia fight. Max gave out for newspaper publication photostatic copies of the contract and Tunney did not deny having signed the document. However, the contract was vague as to its purpose and Tunney denied that it had anything to do with the manner in which the bout was to be handled. The matter appeared to rest there, but now it's up again, and just in time to kick up quite a fuss. Hoff was out this way last week and it was thought that he

Odds Favoring Gene Drop to 6-5

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(US.)— "Yes, I thought so," spoke up the silver-thatched Leo Phossie Flynn today when informed that the betting odds, which were 8 to 5 a week ago that Tunney would win, had suddenly dropped to 6 to 5.

"And they aren't through flopping—not those odds" added Flynn. "It'll be even money in a hurry and I say that Jack will go into the ring a favorite. That's all because the good people have suddenly gone in for deep thinking and reached the logical conclusion that Jack Dempsey will knock all the intellect out of that master mind of pugdom on Thursday night.

170,950 Will See Dempsey-Tunney Battle

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Completion today of arrangements for handling the record-breaking crowd expected to witness the Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship battle Thursday revealed a recount of seats that boosts the originally figured total of 160,000 to 170,950.

Of this number, 42,000 are of the "ringside" variety, priced at $40 each. This section comprises 104 rows northward and 137 rows southward of the ring at Soldier Field. All had been disposed of, according to an announcement by Tex Rickard several days ago, but latest information is that a considerable batch of the top-priced pasteboards has been returned and will be put on sale at the box offices.

With tickets at virtually all prices thus still available through regular channels, speculators faced "slim pickings."

Tex Rickard does not expect a sell-out, but the promoter still is confident the gate receipts will reach his estimated figure of $3,000,000. He promised to disclose today definite figures on the advance sale.

18-YEAR-OLD FRENCH GIRL FAVORITE

BULLETIN.

CHERRY VALLEY CLUB, GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 19. —(UP.)—Miss Maureen Orcutt turned in a sparkling 78 in the qualifying round of the women's national golf championship today. The early finishers reached the tenth hole in a pouring rain.

Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn of Kansas City tied Miss Orcutt with a 78.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.— Mlle. Simone Thion de La Chaume, petit daughter of France, who at the age of 18 holds the golfing titles of both her native country and England, today will begin her attempt to establish her queenship over the realms of American women's golf.

Mlle. La Chaune will be one of the 148 ladies of the links who tee off in the qualifying round of the women's national championship tournament this morning in the idyllic environs of the Cherry Valley Country Club, at Garden City.

The vivacious French girl who, like her sister sportswoman, Betty Nuthall, possesses genuine beauty, and has inherited the French woman's piquant native personality which made Suzanne Lenglen such a striking figure, is expected to inject rare color into the national links event.

Those who have caught the fancy of the fans are three—Glenna Collett, former titleholder, and perhaps the most striking of the American women players, Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Canada, and Mlle. La Chaume. Mrs. Fraser, who was once the pride of the South made famous by Uncle Tom, Stonewall Jackson and Bobby Jones, has, since her marriage, moved to Canada and will represent that country in the play.

JACK CHALLENGES GENE TO DENY "FIX" CHARGE

It seems to me that if you did, it might give the folks a somewhat different idea about that Philadelphia fight of ours than they now have. And perhaps such explanation would make it clear to the public why a lot of gamblers, steered, perhaps, by your friend, Abe Attell, made a huge betting plunge on you to win that fight after you and Hoff and Billy Gibson, your manager, had one of those conference things.

Up to this time you have been extremely bashful about the whole matter, so far as discussing it publicly is concerned, but I think the time for silence is over. You owe the truth to the public. Why not give it to them?

If you are still unable to speak the English language, maybe your manager can do the talking for you, Or if he is in the same plight as you, maybe Jimmy Bronson, the chief second for your Philadelphia fight, and the man who is to be your chief second in this Chicago battle, would be only too happy to speak up. I mean the same Jimmy Bronson who was the inspiration in 1919 for the "Draft Dodger" charges that were hurled at me; the same Bronson who hid behind the cloaks of several American Legion posts and fired shots at me; the same Jimmy Bronson who picked me out of about 2,000,000 American men who were exempted from war duty and tried to wreck and ruin me in public opinion for no other reason in the world than that he thought he could toss me into the discard and get for his fighter, Bob Martin, the shot at Georges Carpentier.

TIPPED ON PHILADELPHIA "DEAL"

Or, if you and Gibson and Bronson cannot trust your own voices, and need an official spokesman, why not let your little chum, Attell, the tool for a gigantic gambling clique in and around New York, speak in your behalf?

Before I go any further, I want to say to you that before I got in Philadelphia on fight night I was tipped off that "There's something phoney about this fight." I pressed the point and was told that some sort of deal had been made whereby somebody was going to steal my title for you; that when I went into the ring I didn't have a chance to win unless I knocked you out by hitting you on top of the head—and that I might get disqualified even then.

I was told that somebody with some sort of political power—or power in boxing affairs—in Philadelphia, was going to see to it that a referee and one of the judges would be in there to assist you; that if we both were on our feet at the end of the tenth that I'd lose the decision; that if I hit you at any point lower than the top of your head and dropped you, that somebody would yell "foul" in your behalf; that somebody in or around your corner would jump up and exhibit a dented cup; that a doctor would jump in and find that you were fouled.

When I arrived in Philadelphia I learned that along about 6:15 that night a band of gamblers had started to bet on you to win and had taken any odds that were offered; that they bet thousands and tens of thousands that you'd beat me.

I also learned that about 8:45 or 9 o'clock the backing of you suddenly ceased. When I made inquiry as to the reason for the quick halting of the plunge on you, I was told the boxing commission had switched referees.

The man who was to go in is not going to handle this fight. The commission will put in Tommy Reilly, of Wilkes-Barre, who is on nobody's payroll, who is clean and and honest morning. The Giants broke even with the Reds, they still being 4½ games below the Pirates, The Cardinals picked up some ground by winning two from the Phillies. They are five games out of first place.

BUCS HOPE TO ADD TO WINNING STREAK

Manager Bush stated this morning that he probably would call upon Carmen Hill for slab duty, and in the camp of the Dodgers it was expected that Manager Robinson would give the pitching slip to Dazzy Vance.

The remarkable drive of the Pirates, which has reached 11 victories, has proved the Bushwackers to be one of the greatest clubs in the game. The fact that the Buccos have won three doubleheaders in their streak has added to their prestige. Two doubleheaders in succession with the Braves brought four victories and the Pirates cut a wedge through Brooklyn defenses Saturday for a double triumph.

The Buccos were faced with the toughest sort of pitching on Saturday. Jess Petty and Jim Elliott are two of the ranking southpaws of the game. If Pirate fans had any fears regarding the left-handed batters in the Pittsburgh lineup they were dispelled during the warm bargain bill, particularly in regard to the Waner boys.

Paul and Lloyd faced the two giants like the great little batters they are, and when the afternoon was finished the reckoning showed that the two youngsters had collected seven blows and four sacrifices.

Victor Aldridge and Remy Kremer continued the fine stride which has marked the work of Pittsburgh hurlers in the present offensive. The masterpiece achieved by Kremer gave the French ace three shutout victories in his last four games, only two runs having been made off his delivery in the last 38 innings.

The Dodgers will remain in town for three single games on successive afternoons, and when they leave the Giants will follow them into town. Four battles in three days with the Polo Grounders are on the cards. A twin bill will be played Thursday. The Giants have been playing great ball for the past six weeks and they are still much of a threat to the Pirates. At the present writing it would appear that the Pirates will have to win a couple of battles from the New Yorkers to make their position at the top comparatively sure.

SERIES TICKETS

nounced yesterday that the mail orders would be received starting today, but that no tickets will be distributed until the Pirates have clinched the pennant.

The annual meeting to make arrangements for the world series will be held tomorrow morning at the Hotel Schenley, according to information received in Pittsburgh from Judge Landis, commissioner of baseball. Landis expects to arrive here in the morning and he has instructed representatives of the various clubs in the two flags fights to convene with him as soon as they can get together after their arrival.

Landis presides at these sessions at which the important matters relative to the playing off of the titular battles are worked out. Prices of seats, appointments of umpires and other big questions are settled at the annual meetings which are held far enough in advance of the big fights to allow the various clubs to make their plans.

Landis has asked for representation from the Pirates, the Giants, the Cardinals and the Cubs, as all of these teams still have mathematical chances of winning the National League flag. As the Yankees have clinched the honor in the American League, only officials of the New York team have been requested to be here. Col. Jacob Ruppert, principal owner of the Yanks, or one of his aids, is expected to attend.

Barney Dreyfuss will represent the Pittsburgh club at the meeting. The Cubs are so far out of the race that it is believed they will not be represented at the session.

Rules governing the distribution of world series tickets in Pittsburgh, approved by the Baseball Advisory Council, are as follows:

All box and reserved seat tickets will be sold by mail. Contingent upon the Pittsburgh club eventually winning the National League pennant, orders by mail only will be received at once. Address Pittsburgh Baseball Club, Forbes Field, Pittsburgh.

All box seats, $6.60 per game, tax included.

Entire grandstand reserved, $5.50 per game, tax included.

Tickets will be sold for three games (games 1, 2 and 6) and will be arranged three on a strip. No tickets for a single game of the first three will be sold. Should an additional game in Pittsburgh be necessary to decide the series, single tickets for such game will be sold. Should three games in Pittsburgh be not necessary, price of tickets for Game 6 will be refunded after the completion of the series upon return of the Game 6 ticket for redemption.

FAVOR REGULAR PATRONS

In order to make as wide a distribution as possible and to give the regular patrons of Forbes Field every opportunity to view the series, the following limitations will be put upon all orders:

Season boxholders will be permitted to purchase their regular boxes, but no additional tickets. This will be strictly adhered to. Notices to boxholders now are in the mail.

Box seats remaining after sale to season holders will be sold to the general public, but no one will be allowed more than four (4).

Positively no order for more than four (4) tickets of any kind for the series will be accepted, season boxholders alone excepted.

Positively no parties for more than four (4) will be taken care of.

The acceptance of an order, or the cashing or depositing of draft, money order or check attached to an order is not evidence that such order will be filled, and the baseball authorities in charge of the ticket distribution reserve the right to refund on any unfilled orders by returning either the original check or another check for a similar amount. Orders are accepted only with this understanding.

Any order disregarding limitations or rules, or unaccompanied by remittance, will be stricken out of the distribution and returned to the sender.

Remittances should be for any one of the following amounts:

'Last Hours' Most Painful

By JACK DEMPSEY.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—I'd rather fight 200 rounds against the toughest battlers in the world than live through the 24 hours that precede a battle in which I'm going to figure.

The day before the fight seems to be a million years long, with nerves tense all the time, with the mind full of worries and with nothing seeming to help do [illegible] this cheering up stuff.

Very often I feel that maybe I was an exception in this thing, that I was the only fighter who felt that way. But I've talked to a lot of the great ones in my own game and they all feel about the same way. Jim Corbett often has told me that he'd get so that he felt he just couldn't wait any longer and that he'd almost begin running around in circles trying to get the clock to move along faster to the moment when the gong was scheduled to ring.

And I guess every other athlete, on the eve of some big contest, has felt the same way that I do. Lots of golfers who have gone along through a tournament and have reached the finals say that the night before and the morning during the waiting is a touch of hell for them. Ball players about to take part in a world series clash are the same. So are the stars in other fields of athletic endeavor.

DOES PLENTY OF WORRYING.

When the old training siege is over and there's nothing to do but wait through a night and through the day for action—well, with nothing physical to do to get the mind tuned away from worry a fellow just naturally does plenty of worrying.

It's funny how the old mind works then. When I'm in actual training or in an actual fight I never give a thought to the possibility of spraining my ankle in a fall or getting my arm or hand hurt or getting my stomach upset by some sort of food. But when I'm waiting around through those 24 hours for the bell to ring I get to worrying about those things.

All during my fighting career it has been that way.

I've never worried while training. But during the waiting I've worried enough in 24 hours to last an ordinary human for a thousand years.

And when I climb into the ring and have to go through the final stuff, the taking of pictures, the waiting during the announcements, the listening to the referee's instructions, and all that—well, my nerves get completely and absolutely out of control and I'm close to being a wreck before somebody bangs that old gong.

SHAKY AND QUAKY

Out I go, shaky and quaky. And that's the way I remain until I land a punch on the other fellow—or he slams me. When either of those things happen it's like an act of magic. The nervousness is gone in a flash. I become forgetful of my worries and my fears. I'm fighting—at last. And from then on, to the end of the battle, I never think of the possibility of a broken head, a twisted leg or anything else in the world.

I'm happy then, whether I'm losing or winning, for I am in a battle—and the actual business of fighting ever has been—ever will be—the source of a mighty gladness for me.

CHOICE FINAL

State Athletic Commission had decided on him about a week before the fight.

At a secret meeting of the commission, at which Chairman Frank Wiener, Commissioner Harry T. Farrell and this writer were present, we discussed the various candidates for the referee position, and after going over the list carefully, decided on Reilly. Once the choice was made, each commissioner pledged the other to absolute secrecy, and we all shook hands to make the pledge binding.

It was decided at the meeting, too, that Reilly should not be apprised of his assignment until the last possible moment, to eliminate any possible chance of any unquestionable characters getting close to him to say as much as one word about his work in the ring. The commission wanted to be certain that Reilly would in no way be harassed or intimidated and to be certain, too, that no matter how the fight turned out no one could point a finger at the decision or the men who made it.

REILLY CLOSELY GUARDED

About a half hour before Dempsey and Tunney were to enter the ring, Chairman Wiener selected Reilly from a large group of referees, dressed for work and close to the ringside, and told him he was to work. From that moment until Reilly entered the ring Wiener was with him and no one got close to Reilly.

The referee went to the dressing rooms of both fighters and gave them their instructions, and he was accompanied on these trips by Wiener. There was no eleventh hour switch, as Dempsey implies in his letter to Tunney, and to impute that anything was wrong with the officials of that bout, to my mind, is the lowest kind of cheapness. As matters turned out, Dempsey's brother, had he been working as referee, could not have helped Dempsey, so inferior was the then champion's work against the superior Tunney.

Dempsey's charge that the referee was switched is witless, too, in view of the fact that the referee had nothing to do with the ultimate decision, as the Pennsylvania law says that when the two judges agree on a winner the referee's vote is not necessary. In the Dempsey-Tunney bout, Frank Brown, of Pittsburgh, and Mike Bernstein of Wilkes-Barre gave the verdict, a verdict that no one disagreed with, so one-sided was the bout. I might say that the judges were selected in the same careful, secret way the referee was decided upon.

NO DOUBT IN VERDICT

The two judges sat between Commissioner Farrell and this writer at the ringside and a couple of moments before the champion and Tunney entered the ring they were told they were to act as judges. Noting how closely they were being protected from any outside influence, these judges might have surmised they were to work, but they were not assigned definitely until a few moments before the fight started.

If the decision was questionable, if Dempsey had put up a good fight, or if there was any doubt in the [illegible] to question the officials who worked, but as the fight turned out, one-sided, and showing Dempsey to be helpless against Tunney it is absurd for Dempsey to make such an implication now.

In all the conferences between Dempsey and the commission and Tunney and the commission, and between their representatives and the commission, not one word was ever said about the names of officials to be appointed. Both principals were given plainly to understand that neither would have the slightest thing to do with the naming of the officials. Both were assured that honest, fearless men would be appointed, and both expressed satisfaction and confidence in the commission's appointment.

Personally, I don't think even Dempsey is serious about this questioning and his inference that an eleventh hour switch was made. I believe it is a publicity dodge to strengthen the ticket sale at the last hour.

Up to this time the public has expected just a championship battle, but with Dempsey's blast in his letter to Tunney the appetite of the public is being whetted for a grudge affair, a very old dodge in the promotion of championship as well as tank town battles. Although on a grander scale, I believe, this will deceive no one. Knowing the temperament of Dempsey and Tunney from observation and interviews I question ever now whether Dempsey is as "sore" as he is being made out to be.

At any rate, in earnest or simply playing a part in the general publicity scheme, Dempsey is lending himself to cheap stuff, harming men who took every precaution to give him a square deal. If it is a plea for public sympathy it should be abortive as it is nothing but a weak alibi cry from a poor loser.

Incidentally, it may be interesting to know that a few days after the fight was over Dempsey presented Referee Reilly with a watch as a token for his splendid services in the ring. That is hardly the action of a man who now says an eleventh hour switch was made.

and a one hundred per cent "square shooter," and so he was. I never fought with a man in the ring who was better or cleaner than Reilly. I want to thank him for his fairness and the commission in Philadelphia for its choice.

SAYS TUNNEY WON SQUARELY

You whipped me fairly and squarely that night. The ring experts say that you easily took eight of the ten rounds. I agree with them. I'll give you credit for giving me the worst beating anybody ever handed me in my lifetime.

But since then I've often wondered what would have happened that night if I had decisively outpointed you and if the first referee that I heard named as the official for the fight had been in there. What was the meaning of the secret conference you had with Attell, what was the meaning of Gibson conferring with Attell, what was the meaning of Attell seeing Hoff in behalf of you both? And, finally, what was the meaning in the secret conference you and Gibson had with Hoff on the evening of the fight day, after which the gamblers passed out the word: "Sink the ship on Tunney, he can't lose."

As the story comes to me, Attell went to see you in your camp at Stroudsburg. After a lengthy conference with you, he raced back to Philadelphia with your pure and innocent manager, Billy Gibson, and then Attell hurried along and had a meeting with Hoff.

CALLS HOFF POLITICAL POWER

As I understand it, Hoff is something of a political power in Philadelphia. He is supposed to be a rather mighty figure in boxing affairs, and the old saying goes that "whatever Boo Boo wants, well, that's what Boo Boo gets."

Attell, the tool for the gambling clique; Boo Boo Hoff, the political and boxing power in Philadelphia, and Gibson, your manager, had various meetings, all secret, and then you arrived in Philadelphia for the fight and the next chapter in the story finds you in a meeting with Hoff and Gibson—one that lasted until about 6 on fight night. Since then it is learned that some sort of written contract was entered into involving Hoff, Gibson and yourself. Stories about it differ considerably. But the document is one that puzzles the public as it has puzzled me. And it is one that I think should be explained. The contract stated, in substance, that Gibson borrowed $20,000 from Hoff and that Gibson agreed to pay back the $20,000 and nothing else if you did not win the fight. But it contains a peculiar clause to the effect that if you won the fight that Gibson was to pay back Hoff the $20,000 and, as a sort of bonus, or something like that, that you were to give to Hoff 20 per cent of all your earnings as champion. You signed as party to that agreement.

TITLE WORTH $1,000,000

Can't we all have a little explanation about this? You knew that if you won the title it would be worth at least $1,000,000 to you. Why were you agreeable to paying Hoff approximately $200,000 bonus for a loan of $20,000? What could Hoff do to help you on to victory that would be worth $20,000? I think that you did make some explanation to the public like this, as regards the agreement: "Gibson needed $20,000 to put through some real estate deal in New York and borrowed the $20,000 from Hoff—and that's all there was to it."

It always has seemed to me as very strange that Gibson, with your sanction, would have to borrow $20,000 from Hoff on fight night, and agree to give Hoff about $200,000 possible bonus, when it would have been a simple matter for you or for Gibson to have borrowed the money from Tex Rickard without a bonus arrangement. And why did Gibson have to have the money that night?

Why couldn't he wait until the next day? He couldn't get to New York until the next day anyway and if the real estate deal was the reason for making the loan, he could have made it the next day just as well. Furthermore, if it was a loan made merely to put over a real estate deal, why was it that Hoff's crowd now says that you rejected several of the early drafts of that agreement?

Why were you so fussy about how such an agreement was worded? And finally, if it was an agreement entirely on the up-and-up, why didn't you sign your real name or your official ring name? Why did you sign yourself as Eugene Tunney when your real name is James Joseph Tunney and your ring name is Gene Tunney—not Eugene Tunney?

Can you explain why it was that the Attell crowd of gamblers were lukewarm in their support of you before that agreement was signed, but immediately after it was signed—which was about 6 o'clock on fight night—word was passed, and the terrific plunge on you to win was of sensational nature?

How about making all the facts a public matter now, and telling the folks what happened when you chummed around with Attell; what happened when you were in secret conference with Hoff and Gibson—and all the whys and wherefores of that strange document that bound you to pay Hoff a bonus around $200,000 if you won that fight?

Does the public get the story—unvarnished and complete? If not—well, why not?

Very Truly Yours,
JACK DEMPSEY.

Havey Boyle.

WHEN a manager wins a pennant he naturally figures his team is pretty well set and does little worrying about the year to follow. But the situation in Pittsburgh perhaps is one of the most extraordinary recorded in many a day. With a club that looks like a sure winner, Owen Bush, the Pirate manager, even now has in mind, no doubt, shifts to be made for the 1928 season.

An infielder and a pitcher no doubt will be sought; an outfielder and a pitcher, and possibly two second-string infielders, may hit the road for another ball club.

Fans throughout the country noting the great strength of the Pirates, now that the pennant seems assured and now that the crippled list is eliminated, may imagine that the Pirates are set for next season. They will likely be surprised at the shifts that will come in the winter time.

OWEN BUSH is enjoying his greatest baseball period now. It is the ambition of every rookie and every grizzled warrior to lead some day a club in the well-known World Series. At Washington Bush as a pilot found things far less congenial than he has found them in Pittsburgh. He had great difficulty with the owner of the Washington club and finally he found the only decent thing to do was to get out. He found success at Indianapolis and from there he was promoted to his present berth.

HE FOUND a great club awaiting him, but a club that brought so many hazards in the way of injuries as he ever noted in his long career. Mainly he stayed close to orthodox baseball in leading his club through a morass of strange adventures. He placed great reliance on Kid Waner, a trust well rewarded, and this was a little unorthodox since it is seldom a first year man is given such responsibility.

Then he had his brush with Cuyler and he determined to get along without what fans all over the country believe to be a first flight, seasoned star. The other bold stroke he made was to put Comorosky into the lineup when Barnhart was not available. Seldom has a pennant been won under such strange circumstances, but only the most captious can find fault with a successful man. The thing to do is to win and that is what Bush did.

IT IS given to but few men to lead a club into a pennant in the first year of service with that club. Bush had made that riffle, too. The late Pat Moran performed the miracle twice. Serving his first year at Philadelphia in 1915 Moran won the flag and then in 1919, his first year with the Cincinnati Reds, Moran repeated the performance. In the American League there are similar cases, but in the main managers have had to wait much longer to taste of the World Series plum.

BUSH, already signed up for next year, a gesture made to give his men confidence and to bolster the morale of the proletariat, obviously, will luckily miss the fate of Pat Moran, who, after having won a pennant for lean Philadelphia, found himself kicked out at the end of the year. Very few men have suffered such a terrible break.

A PENNANT usually establishes a manager for a number of years to come. George Stallings, manager of the miraculous Braves of 1914, got a swell five-year contract for his effort, and did little after his 1914 splurge. McKechnie, too, late of the Pirates, got a tumble from the fates, in that one year after he led a pennant winner, he was looking at the help-wanted advertisements of the majors and the bush leagues.

BUSH'S bad luck at Washington, of course, helped make him a philosopher. He will not be carried away by his present success or by the gushing econimums being heaped upon his deserving head now. In baseball there is a saying that today they wildly ask you to take off your cap and tomorrow they just as wildly demand you take off your uniform. It is the wise man who smells of today's boquet with a furtive glance for the suspended sword of Damocles.

If Bush followed Napoleon's advice he would drink deep of the victory cup now, enjoying every gulp. Napoleon said the man who thinks of tomorrow is a coward. Other savants, however, have said it is best to be moderate in the glow of success to offset the disappointment of the uncertain morrow.

MANY a deserving fair-haired boy in baseball goes to sleep at night to find on the morrow his whilom friends saying: "Why, Grandma, what great horns and cloven hoofs you have." Evan Lucifer in his pristine youth once strummed a harp.

Squads Drill For Openers

THREE Pittsburgh gridiron machines—those of Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne—will hop off Saturday in the great 1927 football derby, and if the dreams of Pilots Sutherland, Steffen and Layden come true they will be non-stop flights to championships.

Thiel is to be flattened as the Panthers take off at the stadium. Westminster will assure the Tartans soft landing at Youngstown and the Bluffites will refuel at Olean, N. Y., at the expense of St. Bonaventure.

Despite the fact that there is hardly one chance in 1,000 that the local elevens will meet with defeat, the coaches this week will drive their charges at the fastest pace they have experienced since the training campaign opened. Hot or cold, wet or dry, there will be no "off days," work and then more work is to be the bill of fare.

The Panthers, back from Camp Hamilton, will continue their keen fights for varsity berths in home atmosphere. Sutherland has a potentially powerful machine. His task is to select the strongest of the strong.

The patching up of holes in a team riddled by graduation is the aim of Coach Waddell at Carnegie. The perfection of the Rockne system is the ambition of Layden at Duquesne.

would attempt some legal moves to stop the fight, but he suddenly disappeared.

DENIED REPORT

When the Hoff story first broke I encountered Boo-Boo, whom I have known for a number of years, in New York, and asked him about it.

"Nothing to it," he said. "It's just a plain case of welching. Tunney and Gibson made their little bargain with me and then welched out. But I'm going to fight them until they come through. I'm not afraid to drag the thing through the courts, but perhaps Tunney will be. The truth will hurt him more than it will me."

Tunney has other legal battles on his hands. One concerns a suit brought against him for $15,000 back salary which a former social secretary named McHale claims is due him, and there was talk yesterday that papers would be served on the champion tomorrow in a suit brought by a well-known manager of boxers, who also claims he has some money due him.

In addition to these legal matters both Tunney and Dempsey have been summoned to appear in court here tomorrow in a suit brought by a Rev. Elmer Williams, a reformer, who seeks to stop the fight on the grounds that the fight is being run for profit, whereas it is supposed to be unlawful to stage anything in Soldier Field for private gain. Deputy sheriffs trailed Gene yesterday, and the boxer's personal bodyguard, Sergt. Bill Smith of the Chicago police department, accepted service as Gene was departing to attend mass at Antioch. It is unlikely that Tunney will appear in court in person, as he does not plan to leave camp again until the day before the fight.

In addition to attending church today, Gene also went to the Chain O'Lakes Country Club, hard by his camp, to tee off with Chick Evans, Jock Hutchison and two other famous pros for a benefit golf match. He did not play the round, merely putting in an appearance to help along the cause.

HOUCK LOST OUT

In connection with the attempt to fix the Philadelphia fight, as alleged in Dempsey's letter, it might be pertinent to mention that Leo Houck, former middleweight boxer of Lancaster, Pa., was understood to be the man originally selected to referee the bout. Leo is a capable arbiter. He holds a license, has refereed a few times in Pittsburgh and is coach of the Penn State College boxers. Wonder if he is the man Dempsey is shooting at in his letter?

Also in connection with the alleged tampering episode, I happen to know that Abe Attel was picking Tunney to win well before the day of the fight. I spoke to him at Tunney's camp at Stroudsburg, Pa., the Sunday before the bout, which was on a Thursday, and he told me then that he liked Tunney, coinciding with my own view.

I spoke yesterday with two New York newspapermen of wide reputation, who told me that Jerry the Greek Luvadis, Dempsey's long-time and faithful trainer, swears that Dempsey was poisoned by something in his olive oil just before leaving his Atlantic City quarters last year and that this accounted for the rash that broke out on Jack's face and body after the bout.

"De chomp (champion) is a fool," these scribes quoted Jerry as saying. "He knows he was poisoned, but he won't tell. On the way over to Philadelphia for the fight he faint on the train and he call to me, 'Jerry, come help me. I'm falling,' and I had to help him up. He was very sick."

My two informants also said Dempsey told them conflicting stories of his impressions of the Philadelphia fight. They said he recalled various stages of the battle with marked vividness of detail and later said he was in a daze all of the day and night of the fight and couldn't recall anything that had transpired.

It will be remembered that Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's new manager, declared after Jack's recent bout with Jack Sharkey that Dempsey became ill from eating a ham sandwich on the train en route from Albany to New York for the fight, showing symptoms of ptomaine poisoning. Flynn couldn't explain how this happened.

The Dempsey open letter undoubtedly is intended as a bold psychological stroke at this crucial moment, intended to affect the morale of Tunney even as Dempsey's morale is said to have been shattered by the persecution of Jack Kearns, his former manager, at Atlantic City last year.

SHOULD HELP GENE

However, if I know Tunney, it is likely to have just the opposite effect. His calm demeanor at his training camp yesterday demonstrated this. Gene has ice water nerves and it takes a great deal to upset him. Last year he steeled himself for a great effort, despite the fact that public opinion was almost solidly against his chances of winning, and he has the will power to ignore the present thrust at him, which seems much like the "He'll holler foul" propaganda circulated against Sharkey by Manager Flynn before Dempsey's tuneup bout two months ago.

I wrote the other day from Dempsey's camp that Jack is in an ugly mood as the day of battle draws near, and in this I am supported by a couple of his closest friends among the scribbling hounds.

"He uses short and ugly words when he refers to Tunney and Tunney's advisers," one of the scribes told me. "I've never known him to be so vindictive against anybody before. He's always been vicious in the ring, but seldom out of it. Now he's that way in both respects. He'll kill Tunney if he gets a chance."

Tunney looked to be in the well-known "pink" yesterday as he did his stuff before probably the largest crowd that yet has seen him work. He went through seven rounds of priming, and it was announced there would be no more public sessions. He will box again for the newspapermen today, and that will wind up his strenuous labors. Dempsey put on his last boxing session at Lincoln Fields last night.

Big Bill Edwards, Bernard Gimbel and the widow of Bob Fitzsimmons, one of Tunney's predecessors on the heavyweight throne, were among the notables who saw him go through his paces in the open air ring yesterday.

Gene started off with a round of punching against the light bag and then walked about for a minute with a towel across his shoulders to protect him from the chill wind that swept the place. Then he attacked the small bag for another round and then hopped into the ring and boxed five rounds with two sparring partners, Jackie Williams, of Chicago, who went two rounds, and Billy Vidabeck, of Bayonne, N. J., who traveled three.

TAKES THINGS EASY

The first round was a desultory affair, with Tunney not warming up until the last few seconds, when he hooked Williams solidly to the head with a left. The second was more spirited, with Tunney hitting his sparring parter at will with both fists. Against Vidabeck, who weaves and bobs a la Dempsey, Tunney cut loose harder and got in a good workout, at the same time showing that his judgment of distance and timing are just about perfect. He let Vidabeck do most of the rushing, as he likely expects to have Dempsey fight him, and dropped many right-handers to the head and left hooks to the body in the region of the liver as Billy came close. Early in the second round with Vidabeck, Tunney crossed over a right to the head and had to grab Billy and hold him up to keep him from hitting the floor. They mixed at a lively clip in the last round, with both rushing it up frequently at close quarters. At the finish Tunney's damaged right eye showed no fresh marks of the session, although he boxed without a headguard as usual. There need be no fear that he will go into the ring against Dempsey handicapped by a sore optic.

If anything, Gene's boxing was of a higher order than I saw him put on tap at Stroudsburg the Sunday and Monday before he boxed Dempsey last year, and he looks like a standout to repeat his victory. He weighed 191 pounds after yesterday's workout.

CRACK BOXERS ENTERED IN AMATEUR RING SHOW

A number of Homestead, McKeesport and Braddock lads will take part in the amateur boxing show to be staged by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Playground Association at the Hunter street grounds in Wilkinsburg on Thursday evening. They will be matched for the most part with capable lads from Jack Metz's Willow Club stable.

Those already lined up include the following from Homestead: Young Peterson, 158 pounds, and Jack Uhrine, 135 pounds; from McKeesport, Sam Goss, 112 pounds; Jack Mercer, 135 pounds; John Young, 126 pounds; from Braddock, Sam Parriser, 112 pounds, and Young Rossi, 126 pounds.

The wrestling matches will show Simon Brown, Young William Turner and Alexander against lads from the Downtown or East Liberty Y. M. C. A.

SPORT COMMENT

son is one of the biggest reasons why the Pirates are on top.

"GEE, but I like those two kids. It is a treat to watch them work, even when they are beating my own club. They are two of the sweetest kids that ever came up to the big leagues, and that goes not only for their ability, but for their dispositions.

"Success has not spoiled them a bit, and there isn't the faintest sign of swell-headedness about them, though they have been praised to an extent that would have turned the heads of most youngsters.

"Why, you would not realize that either of them knew he was in the big leagues, as both of them are so modest and quiet in all their actions.

"Do you know what I think they ought to do with that most valuable player prize of $1,000 in the National League this year? I believe it would be a mistake to give it all to Paul Waner, as many persons are suggesting. They ought to add about $500 to it, make it a real prize, and then divide it equally between Paul and Lloyd Waner."

"IT GIVES me a headache every time I watch those Waners and recall that we lost Paul by only one day," continued the catching star of the old Baltimore Orioles and the veteran leader who has been manager of the Brooklyn team since 1914. "Our scout, Spencer Abbott, had watched Paul play in San Francisco in 1925 and had O. K.'d him for immediate purchase. The Brooklyn club opened negotiations with Secretary Putname of the San Francisco club, but before they were carried very far we learned that Pittsburgh had closed a deal for Waner with the San Francisco club.

"And if we had landed Paul, Lloyd naturally would have come to us, too, when he obtained his freedom later. That's what I call losing something."

BESIDES picking the Bucs to win the National League pennant, Robinson also thinks the Bushmen have a good chance to beat the Yankees in the World Series.

"When the Pirates can beat my two left-handers, Petty and Elliott, as they have done several times this season, I believe they will also be able to beat Pennock and Ruether, the Yankee southpaws," he said. "I have no doubt that Huggins will make a strong play with Pennock and Ruether in hope of being able to stop the two Waners and Grantham, Pittsburgh's left-hand hitters, but I do not think the two pitchers named will succeed in fooling the Pirates' south side swingers. Any club that can beat Petty and Elliott can beat any other two left-handers in the land."

WHAT Pittsburgh pitchers would you guess as being picked by Robbie as having the best chance to beat the Yankees and therefore being Pittsburgh's best slab bets in the big series? No, you're wrong. Not Kremer and Hill, or Meadows, but Aldridge and Miljus.

"That's my honest opinion," said the Brooklyn manager. "Aldridge will be your most-promising bet against the Yankees, because he has the best curve ball of any of the Pittsburgh pitchers. As for Miljus, he was always a great pitcher in my estimation, and we let him go only because his arm had gone wrong. Now that it is in its old form again, I rank him with the best in the game. He not only has lots of stuff, but a good head besides. I don't think Meadows has a good enough curve to fool the Yankees, but maybe he will surprise us. Anyhow, I think the Bucs have a fine chance to win the big series."

MOTOR SQUARE SPECIAL TO LEAVE WEDNESDAY

All reservations disposed of, everything is in readiness for the departure of the Motor Square Special for Chicago Wednesday night for the Dempsey-Tunney battle in Soldier Field. John McGarvey, former matchmaker at Motor Square Garden, in charge of the arrangements, announces that close to 115 local fans will make the trip in the Motor Square Special.

The train will arrive in Chicago early Thursday morning, giving the local fans a chance to take in the sights of the Windy City. During their stay in Chicago the train will be used as hotel quarters. The Motor Square Special starts its return trip two hours after the battle is over.

Once Enough For Muldoon

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Having seen Dempsey and Tunney perform on one occasion, William Muldoon, New York Athletic Commission head, does not care to see them in action again. "I went to Philadelphia and saw the fight," Muldoon said. "That was enough for me."

Schafer Meets Tarzan In V. F. W. Battle

Ray Schafer, Bloomfield middleweight, has been substituted for Stanley Simmons, Red Mason's middleweight, in the semi-final bout of the boxing card to be offered at Duquesne Garden by the Veterans of Foreign Wars Friday night. Schafer will meet Charlie Tarzan, Rochester battler.

The change was made necessary when it was found that Simmons had broken his right hand in a bout at McKeesport last week against Bill Hunter. Schafer has a fine local following and the substitution will in no wise hurt the card.

The main bout between Homer Robertson the colored middleweight of Boston and Indian Jack Elkhart of Salt Lake City is the outstanding attraction of the show, as both boys are near champions, real title contenders with imposing records as knockout artists. Elkhart, who is rated one of the hardest punchers in the middleweight division, is out to win over the Boston colored flash as quickly as possible, as success in this fight will probably mean a chance at the world's championship.

Robertson is rated one of the best men in the middle division with the possible exception of Mickey Walker, and in his fight with Elkhart here he must win decisively or lose his chance at the championship.

Teddy Welsh, of McKeesport, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, furnish the fireworks in the second bout on the bill and two well known featherweights will open the show.

Because of the excellent appointments and convenient location of Duquesne Garden it is expected that a large number of the fair sex will go to see the bouts especially as it is a benefit affair. Reserved seats tickets are on sale at Spalding's. A capacity crowd is looked for.

FRISCH BREAKS NATIONAL LEAGUE FIELDING RECORD

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19.—(U.S.)—Frankie Frisch of the St. Louis Cardinals, established a new National League fielding record yesterday in the first game of the double-header with Philadelphia. Frisch, accepting 10 chances at second base, ran his season's total to 953, eight more than the previous record made by Hughie Critz, of the Cincinnati Reds, in 1926.

C. M. C. SMOKER TONIGHT

Professional, amateur boxing and music will feature the outdoor smoker to be held tonight in the North Side C. M. C. Park, at Antrim and California avenues. The show is being held for the benefit of the football team of that club.

City Detective Eddie McEntee, chairman of the program, has billed the best amateur boxers of the city to appear on the card. The feature bout of the show will be between Midget Mike Moran of Mt. Washington and Tommy Moran of Buffalo. As both boys are in pink of condition, this bout is expected to be a thriller.

Seven amateur bouts are arranged, as follows: Tom Malco, Pittsburgh Lyceum, and Max Ziff, Willow Club; Freddie Mastrean, Pittsburgh Lyceum, and Bob Peterson, Homestead Library; George Ross, Pittsburgh Lyceum, and Young Angelo, Swissvale Club; Jerry Korera, Pittsburgh Lyceum, and Leo Kuberiski, Swissvale Club; George Boley, Woods Run A. C., and Axel Boley, C. M. C.

The fans that will gather in the park to attend the best smoker held by this organization will find Paul Waner and his brother, Lloyd, of the Pirates there to greet them.

Eddie Kennedy and Joe Keally will referee all bouts, with Sam Little and William Seimindinger as judges and Harry Neaman keeping time.

DETROIT NINE BEATEN

DETROIT, Sept. 19.—(U.S.)—Kennedy Clothes finally met its master at Navin Field yesterday. Detroit's sandlot champion, winner of 16 consecutive games, twice bowed before Comello of Cincinnati, 5 to 0 and 7 to 2, and with the double defeat went all hope of bringing the national amateur baseball title back to this city.

Forbes

Facts About New Ford Car; Henry Talks With Forbes.

By H. C. FORBES

plenty of speed but gives a quick getaway, a quick pick-up."

"YES," he replied to my question, "it will be heavier than Model T, but we will also keep it under a ton.

In spite of all the improvements we are making and using the very best material all the way through—we will not be forced to get out of our place—I mean that we will still build the lowest-priced car, the car that will naturally be bought by those buying their first car. Our job always has been to give the public the best quality and the most economical transportation at the lowest figure."

WHAT is the new Ford like?

Well, it is totally unlike the old Ford. It is more like other small low-priced cars. In fact, judging by the latest experimental models, there is nothing revolutionary in its appearance.

Mr. Ford talked less about its appearance than about its mechanical and other features, particularly the sturdiness, the durability, the quality of all the materials.

AS FAR as I could learn, and judging from the experimental—hand-made—cars we rode in, the main facts about the new car are:

It has four cylinders.

It has four-wheel brakes.

It has forty horse power.

It has the regular standard gear shift—three speeds and reverse.

The gas tank is placed directly in front of the windshield.

The square hood has been displaced by a rounded one.

Apparently it is going to be equipped with shock absorbers. The springs are entirely different and much stronger.

The wheels have steel spokes—and all the experimental cars were equipped with a spare in the rear.

The wheel base (I understand) is 104 inches.

It has a self-starter.

Forged steel (not castings) is employed throughout.

The construction of the differential has been completely changed.

The dash board is equipped with a gasoline gauge, a speedometer, an ampmeter, a lock, and a clock.

There is an accelerator and, attached, a device for adjusting the carburetor.

A windshield wiper appears on the experimental cars, and presumably will be standard equipment.

The dynamo-generator, according to report, is of a new type.

The oil system, I gather, is of the forced-feed variety.

Even Mr. Ford's long legs were not interfered with in the slightest by the dashboard while sitting in the front seat, and there is also plenty of leg room for those in the back seat.

All the new cars I saw had substantial bumpers attached.

The car is low-hung rather than high-hung, with strong running board.

It will be made in several colors.

THE number of new orders already booked, the number of men now employed, when production will get under way, Mr. Ford's views on how long it will take to reach the "fifteenth millionth" new Ford and other information will be given in tomorrow's column.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The raw sugar market was unchanged early today at 4.96 for Cuban duty paid with no sales reported.

There was not much activity in the raw sugar futures market and prices were irregular. Disappointing London cables seemed to promote a little liquidation of commission house selling at the opening and first prices were unchanged to 2 points lower, the near months showing the maximum losses. Offerings were absorbed by trade interests and [illegible] with some covering, [illegible] prices [illegible] at midday the market was 2 points net [illegible] to 1 point higher.

No changes occurred in the refined sugar market, with prices ranging from 5.90 to 6.10c for fine granulated.

Florida Pays Top Price for Own Oranges

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Oranges grow in Florida, but the Floridian is apt to pay more for them there than is charged in any other section of the country, the Bureau of Railway Economics figured out today.

It revealed that the average retail prices for the 1925-26 season were highest in Jacksonville, close to the orange groves, at 95.3 cents a dozen. New York was second high 91.3 cents a dozen. Charleston, S. C., was lowest, 31 cents a dozen average price.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 9 to 18 points on buying promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables and reports of unfavorable weather in the south.

December sold up to 21.65c and March to 21.90c in early trading, net advances of 24 to 28 points, but considerable hedging supplied the early demand and prices eased off several points from the best before the end of the first hour.

Private cables attributed the relative steadiness of the market there to local, London and continental buying and said hedge selling had been light, but cloth and yarn buyers were cautious with only a small business for the home and export trade.

The volume of business tapered off later, with the market comparatively quiet and fairly steady. The reaction from the opening advance carried prices off to about 21.75c for March or within 5 points of Saturday's closing quotation but part of the loss was recovered, with the midday market ruling about 12 to 20 points net higher.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Says Market Needs Correction.

Henry Clews & Co. wired the following to A. E. Masten & Co. today: "For the good of the market it is to be hoped that the reaction will be carried farther as no setbacks of consequence have been recorded for some time and the result is that a weak technical stock market situation exists. A corrective reaction, however, is about all that is looked for at the moment as outside conditions continue to improve and there is still a huge investment demand for the well seasoned stock issues. While there is a feeling of extreme conservatism in many quarters regarding the stock market it rather looks as if shares of well known merit will seek a higher level, although this does not mean that occasional setbacks will not take place. Conservatism has been preached so long that not a great deal of attention is being paid to it, nevertheless, it is just as well to bear in mind that the level prevailing for a great many stocks is not a low one and not become too enthusiastic."

From tests already run the company expects this engine will bring increased business, as there is a large market in the military field at present for this size engine. There are indications that this engine will be used, with minor changes, for commercial purposes in air routes.

Southern Baking.

Passing of the preferred dividend by Southern Baking Corporation is not regarded as reflecting conditions in the baking trade generally but rather is a special situation in which a company needs additional working capital. The Southern controls largest chain bakery system in the Southeastern states. With its expansion program completed it seems logical the company will work out its own destiny rather than sell out to one of the northern companies.

Reaction Expected.

Since July 1, last, the market had moved up more than 25 industrial average points. This upswing had been interrupted by only two relatively moderate reactions—the first occurring early in August and the second early this month. Because of extent of this upturn and tendency to take profits in stocks which have showed large gains, belief is spreading that the market is entitled to a corrective reaction of large proportions following such a substantial advance.

STOCKS CRASH ON WAVE OF SELLING

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—A drastic reaction took place in today's stock market. Prices of many of the recent favorites broke 5 to nearly 15 points in a wave of selling which engulfed the general list and caused the first serious setback to the upward movement in more than a month. Industrials were the hardest hit, but several of the so-called investment rails were carried down 2 to 3 points in the mad scramble of traders to get out of stocks.

The decline, which had been widely predicted as a result of the weakened technical position of the market, was stimulated by the marking up of the call money rate to 4 per cent, coincident with the calling of about $11,000,000 in loans. The stiffer money rates reflected the operations of banks to strengthen their reserve position and the character of the collateral behind outstanding brokers' loans.

General Motors (old), which touched a new high at 277¼ on Saturday, sold down as low as 262⅝ today. National Tea broke 13 points below Saturday's close, Dupont 9 and United States Steel common, General Motors (new), General Electric, Woolworth, United States Cast Iron Pipe, American Radiator and several others sold down 4 to nearly 7 points. Among the rails, Union Pacific, Atchison and New York Central sold down 2 to 3 points.

Extensive liquidation developed through commission houses as a result of the advices to lighten up on long commitments. The further advance in sterling to within ⅛ of a cent of parity suggested the possibility of early withdrawals of gold for shipment to England and a further stiffening of money rates.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Cold weather suddenly overspreading the corn belt brought about an early rush to buy in the corn market today and gave prices a big lift. Wheat was also stronger, owing largely to unexpected firmness of Liverpool quotations and to Southern Hemisphere complaints of drought. Opening at 1¼c to 1⅝c advance, corn held much of the gain. Wheat started unchanged to ⅝c up and continued to average higher. Oats were firm, provisions likewise tended upward.

At noon corn was 2⅜c to 3½c net higher and wheat ⅝c to 1⅝c up.

In addition to a severe drop in temperatures throughout the corn belt, reports that the long succession of hot days of late had been too much for a considerable part of the crop acted as an incentive to buy today. According to some advices, firing of the crop has taken place in spots, and now a return to unseasonable coolness has interrupted the maturing of the larger part of the crop which was being favorably affected by heat.

Unlooked for relative strength of the Liverpool wheat market today permitting advances here was attributed in part to renewed assertions that the Canadian estimates of yield have been excessive. Dry weather advices from Australia and Argentina were also the subject of much notice. Meanwhile, receipts today at Minneapolis and Duluth were far in excess of the total a year ago.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

Sees Good Year for Lackawanna.

John M. Davis, president of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, forsees as good earnings for the road this year as in 1926, perhaps better. Improvement over last year began the first week this month which he expects to continue through the fall. Freight traffic in the week ended September 10 was 21,[illegible] car loads, a gain of 784. The increase in general merchandise freight over last year's figures was the most satisfactory feature, he said. The road is moving 35,000 tons of coal daily, and from 150 to 200 car loads of cement.

Pittsburgh Steel Net Lower.

Pittsburgh Steel and subsidiaries earned $1.80 a share on the common stock in the year ended June 30, against $1.10 a share the year before.

Oil Production Decreases.

Daily crude oil production in California last week averaged 628,[illegible] barrels, a decrease of 3,[illegible] barrels daily from the preceding week.

Structural Bookings Drop.

Goodrich Gain Seen.

Akron dispatches to Wall Street say net income of B. F. Goodrich Company for nine months ended September 30 is expected to be around $11 or $12 a share on the 601,[illegible] shares of no par common, while $5 to $6 a share may be earned in the last quarter, should the footwear business, which reaches its peak in the fall and winter, be even as good as last year. This would make earnings for 1927 from $16 or $18 a share on the common, in contrast to $4.14 a share in 1926.

Sears Roebuck Open Store.

Sears Roebuck & Co. has opened its fourth retail store in Chicago, with large free parking space for motorists.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—The unsettlement on Saturday of leading stocks which had been the features of the long-continued upward movement caused acute disturbance of speculative conditions in the curb market today. Selling orders came in from many sources over Sunday and met with absence of support from those who had been most prominent in recent bullish activities. It required some time to arrange for a level at which these accumulated orders could be settled.

The feature was Bancitaly Corporation, which on Saturday sold as high as 121⅞ and whose opening this morning was fixed at 19,000 shares at 112¼. Following these transactions the stock had a further decline before midday, showing a loss of over 10 points so far for the day at that time. Abrupt declines were also recorded in a number of other high-priced issues. Celanese fell 9 points, and a decline of 9 points in Tubize Artificial Silk also was sustained.

Other stocks in the general list were in supply on a large scale at sharp declines. Issues like Gillette Safety Razor, Curtiss Aero and Johns-Manville receded 2 points or more, and a number of the inactive specialties could only find other buyers at even greater declines.

Public utilities moved with other stocks in this unsettled trading.

American Gas and Electric, after advancing over a point, yielded more than 5 points within a short time, and declines of around 2 points were sustained in issues like Electric Bond and Share. Lehigh Power, in which trading was on a large scale, started with a gain and then declined over a point. There were a few exceptions to the general weakness. Swift & Co. moved up 2 points and U. S. Battery made a high record on a gain of over a point.

Oil stocks were fairly well held, showing only moderate changes.

The bond market was steady, a fair demand being in evidence in all the leading issues.

New Airbrake Shares Decline Here

A moderately reactionary tone in the news on Westinghouse Air Brake shares was the only reflection on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange of the nervous, irregular market in New York. While General Motors and a few other stocks in which speculation has been rampant for some time were put to a severe test in the early dealings, the local list maintained a confident tone, and there was no evidence here of urgent selling.

The dip in the new Air Brake shares was apparently not the result of urgent selling. A few lots, most of them less than 100 shares, came on the market on a downward turn from the opening at 48⅝ which figure represented a fractional overnight loss. The quotations on the stock in New York were a little under the local prices.

Miscellaneous issues were quiet and while bids were in the market under Saturday's last quotations there was no evident inclination to offer stocks at the down figures. First National Bank shares were strong, a small lot changing hands at 2[illegible], an advance of four points over the last previous sale. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was quiet and practically unchanged in the early market.

Fuel stocks played a very small part in the day's market. A few trades of Lone Star Gas were recorded at 41¼, a small fractional decline from the previous close, but there was not much interest displayed in the stock. Other fuels were dull and bids were slightly under the sales figures as of the close last week.

Industrial shares continued to hold the trading attention throughout the session. Following its opening at a narrow fractional decline, Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt sold off further, but was bought on a scale down. Blaw Knox was handled at 38, with several hundred shares changing hands at that price. Standard Sanitary was steady at 94⅛ as against Saturday's close at 95.

Love 'Em and Let 'Em Leave, Says Fannie

By JOSEPH S. ROGERS,

Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—If your husband is infatuated with another woman, there's nothing you can do about it. And the less you do, the better.

That is the philosophy of Fannie Brice, who divorced Nickey Arnstein, although she is still in love with him.

ADMITS SHARE IN BLAME

The songstress, whom everyone says is endowed with plenty of "It," made it plain that she was partly to blame for the wreck of her matrimonial bark. She explained:

"In trying to help the man I loved, I didn't. A wife that is too responsible may not be the best for a man.

"Now if you are really in love with a man so much so that you will have children by him, you cannot say a month or two later that your heart has refused to go aflutter when you think of him.

"It simply isn't done.

"Love looks wonderful at first, or else there would be no marriages. Especially so the first time. I presume it does the second time, too, but I am not qualified to go into that now.

"Flattery causes more love triangles than any other factor. That's what this 'other woman' did to Nickey—just gushed and smiled. And Nickey fell—just like any other human being I guess."

Fannie then explained why she was going to sue the woman who says she loves Nickey:

"When I found out that all was not well in Denmark, I sent for this woman and asked her not to keep on seeing my husband. She refused.

"Therefore, I am suing her, not because she loved Nickey, but because she refused to stop loving him after I told her not to.

"There wasn't any scene—I keep scenes where they belong—behind the footlights.

"And if I get any money out of her I will hand it over to the Jewish Actors' Guild."

Cardinal Resigns to Become Simple Monk

By HAL J. HORAN,

Special Correspondent Universal Service, Special Cable Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service.)

ROME, Sept. 19.—For the first time in four centuries a cardinal prince of the Roman Catholic Church has abdicated the crimson majesty of the cardinalate robes for the simple habit of a Jesuit monk.

Today, his eminence, Cardinal Louis Billot tendered his resignation to the Pope and his holiness accepted it. The resignation takes effect immediately and tomorrow Msgr. Billot will start by train, exact destination unrevealed, for a Jesuit Monastery in France. There he will live the remaining span of his years, shrouded in the simple anonymity of a black cassock.

The announcement of Cardinal Billot's resignation will create profound excitement in Rome where he is known as one of the senior cardinals of the church. Pope Pius X created him a cardinal deacon November 27, 1911. Since then he has figured as a member of the most important congregations of the Vatican, notable among them being Holy Office Propaganda and seminaries.

Cardinal Billot's surprising decision to lay down his power and high office is attributed to his great piety and Franciscan simplicity.

The privilege of resignation is retained by cardinals, since their office is one created by the Pope without the special spiritual attributes of bishops. Historians of the Vatican are now busily engaged in seeking precedents for Cardinal Billot's action among the vast underground archives of the Holy See. Authorities on canonical law point out the justification of the Pope's acceptance of the resignation, since the prerogatives were bestowed by the sovereign pontiff and as such are retrievable by him. Before he rose to the dignity of the red hat, Cardinal Billot was a Jesuit priest.

GERMANY REFUTES BLAME FOR STARTING WAR

SELF-DEFENSE, HINDENBURG DECLARES

TANNENBERG, Germany, Sept. 19.—On Sauden Hill amid the Masurian Lakes where the German army led by the then Field Marshal von Hindenberg stemmed the Russian advance the colossal Tannenberg Memorial was dedicated yesterday with a solemn refutation of the charge that Germany was responsible for the World War.

The repudiation of the war guilt charge was made by the Hindenberg of Tannenberg fame, now President of the German Republic, who was clad in full marshal's regalia.

Ludendorff, von Mackensen and other officers who led the German armies were present.

"The memorial primarily commemorates the dead," said Hindenberg, "but their memory and the honor of those still living compel me on this spot and on this your memorial solemnly to repudiate the accusation that Germany was responsible for this greatest of all wars.

"Neither envy, hate, lust nor conquest drove us to unsheath the sword," Hindenberg continued. "On the contrary, war with all its terrible sacrifices and its demand from the nation of extreme measures, was resorted to in preservation of our existence."

FOSSILS FOUND IN ROCK HERE

These bones, found 57 feet below the surface in excavation of William Penn Hotel annex, are said by John Douglas, Jr., contractor, to have been a portion of a pre-historic animal. They had lain buried for centuries, he says, perhaps aeons, near where the traffic of Grant street now rumbles by.

First Guest in Hotel Is A Mastodon—Maybe

The shoulder-blade of a baby mastodon or some other prehistoric beast, embedded in blue shale rock, was unearthed in the excavation for the deepest sub-basement pier of the William Penn Hotel annex and has been turned over to the curator of the department of paleontology of the Carnegie Museum for classification,

Negro rock drillers working 57 feet below the surface were startled when they came upon the huge bones and yelled to laborers on the tier above them. The workmen came to the surface with the information that they had come upon the grave of "a pow'ful large man." They brought up two bones which were recognized at once as the humerus and scapula of a large animal.

John Douglas, contractor in charge of the work, hurried to the scene and, from his knowledge of things osseous, declared the bones belonged to an animal long extinct which probably had roamed around here millions of years before the age of trucks and steam shovels. Douglas broadcast his find and called for reporters of paleontologic leanings and cameramen who dared to go to the depths of the earth.

About 60 men will be employed. No statement as to whether the mine will be operated on an open-shop or union basis has been made, but miners believe Evancho will pay the Jacksonville scale.

CAB COMPANIES ASKED TO HELP CUT AUTO TOLL

In an effort to reduce the number of auto accidents involving taxicabs, after it was revealed that cabs figured in 53 out of 103 auto fatalities in Allegheny county, C. R. Roth, secretary to the Pittsburgh Motor Club, in a letter to taxicab companies, asked co-operation in the campaign for care in driving. Replies from two cab companies said that reckless drivers would be discharged.

9 PLUS 3 MAKE IT A DOZEN

But that's not all of the problem for Daniel Dairs to solve. The advent of triplets among his brood of nine offers a mathematical teaser, which is forcing him to stay up nights to solve. FLOOD ISOLATES MEXICAN CITY

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19.—(AP.)—Submerged under eight feet of water, Acambaro, important railroad center in the state of Guanajuato, has been isolated from the rest of Mexico since yesterday morning.

Rushing waters from the flooded Lerma River carried down telegraph and telephone posts and destroyed numerous adobe houses, making hundreds of families homeless.

News from the flooded area is lacking because of interrupted communications and the continuance of torrential rains increasing the raging river current.

TWO PARALYSIS CASES AT BELLEVERNON, PA.

CHARLEROI, Pa., Sept. 19.—Two cases of infantile paralysis—the first in the Monongahela Valley—were reported Saturday at Bellevernon, Fayette county. The victims are Robert Johnson, 4, and Harold Ritz, 11. Health authorities established a quarantine and announced that schools would close if other cases develop.

STORM FLOODS STREETS

Streets were flooded, gardens damaged and a billboard demolished in the torrential rain which struck the Pittsburgh district yesterday afternoon. A billboard at Broadway and Wayne avenues, McKees Rocks, was demolished and the wreckage delayed automobile traffic for a short time.

Fifth and Seventh avenues and other streets draining the Hill district were hub deep with water at various points. Similar conditions were reported in Sewickley, Coraopolis, Stowe township and McKees Rocks. All of the damage was of a minor nature.

CAT AND DOGS, SCALDED IN SHOP, CHLOROFORMED

Scalds from a leaking hot-water tank in the Eagle Stag Hotel, 110 Smithfield street, resulted in four dogs and an Angora cat in the Fox Pet Shop, on the floor below, being chloroformed Sunday. Their painless death was ordered by the Humane Society of Western Pennsylvania. Besides the cat, a Boston bull terrier, two coon dogs and a fox terrier were victims.

ABANDON HUNT FOR ILL-FATED OLD GLORY

By Special Correspondent of Universal Service and the New York Daily Mirror Searching for Old Glory and Her Crew.

ABOARD S. S. KYLE, 550 miles off Cape Race, N. F., Sept. 19.—Convinced that the only flotsam of the Old Glory has been found and that further search of the seas for traces of her crew of three is futile, Capt. Ben Tavenor has ended his search.

The Kyle was put about in a heavy sea, with a gale blowing from the west, and started for St. Johns at half-speed, so as to minimize damage to the salvaged portions of the monoplane.

Nothing was found to explain the fate of Lloyd W. Bertaud and J. D. Hill, the Old Glory's pilots, nor Philip A. Payne, her passenger.

BUT THIS OPPORTUNITY WILL NOT LAST LONG.

$35 TO $75 WEEKLY

Don't "grope in the dark," dreaming of extra money. You don't have to "pound the pavements" or go off on a "wild goose chase." Every ambitious person in the City of Pittsburgh would be amazed and glad to avail himself of this opportunity if he only knew the facts. YOU DON'T NEED EXPERIENCE AND YOU WON'T BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING. Briefly, the city's new administrative and expansion has made it necessary for us to open an entirely new department and has created an opportunity unparalleled for people desiring EXTRA WEEKLY INCOME. Work WILL NOT CONFLICT WITH PRESENT EMPLOYMENT. No SELLING. No Schooling. No Red Tape.

These positions can be filled during the spare hours (during day or evening) of mechanics, tradesmen, clerks, professional men and business men. Full time positions can be arranged for those desiring permanent work. ABSOLUTELY NO EXPERIENCE REQUIRED; FINANCIAL CO-OPERATION GIVEN from the start. You should earn NOT LESS than $35 PER WEEK from the moment your name is placed upon the company's roll. Of the scores of happy workers recently employed, very few earn less than $50 per week and are working but one hour per day. Positions (part time or permanent) are EXTREMELY SIMPLE in pleasant surroundings and most congenial atmosphere.

Do not confuse this ad with another of similar wording, for YOU WILL NOT BE ASKED TO SELL ANYTHING AND YOU CAN EARN FROM THE MOMENT YOU START.

You can answer other ads every day of the week, but—remember you can only answer this ad Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

YOU SIMPLY CAN'T AFFORD TO MISS IT. Knowing how and why means EXTRA MONEY. Now if you really desire to open a REAL BANK ACCOUNT, DON'T MISS THIS. THE BUNGLE FAMILY

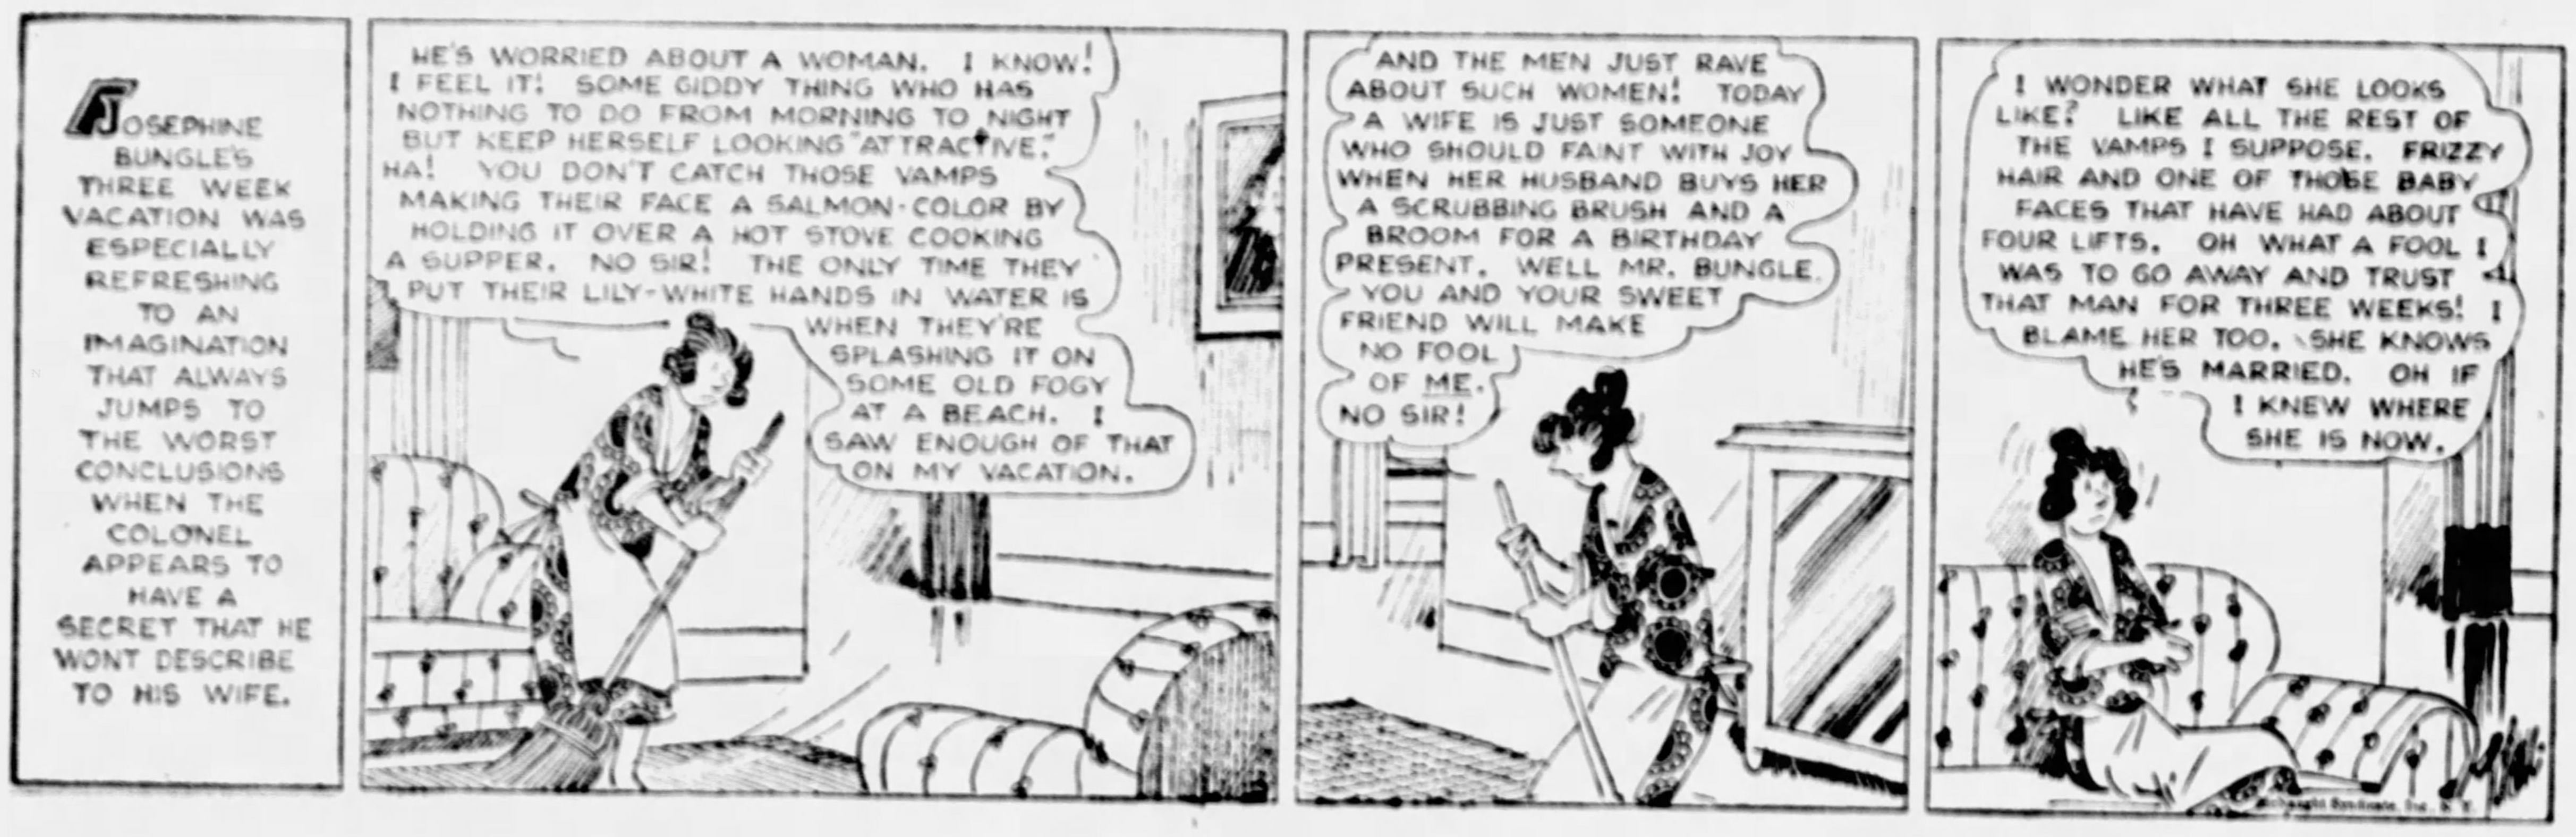
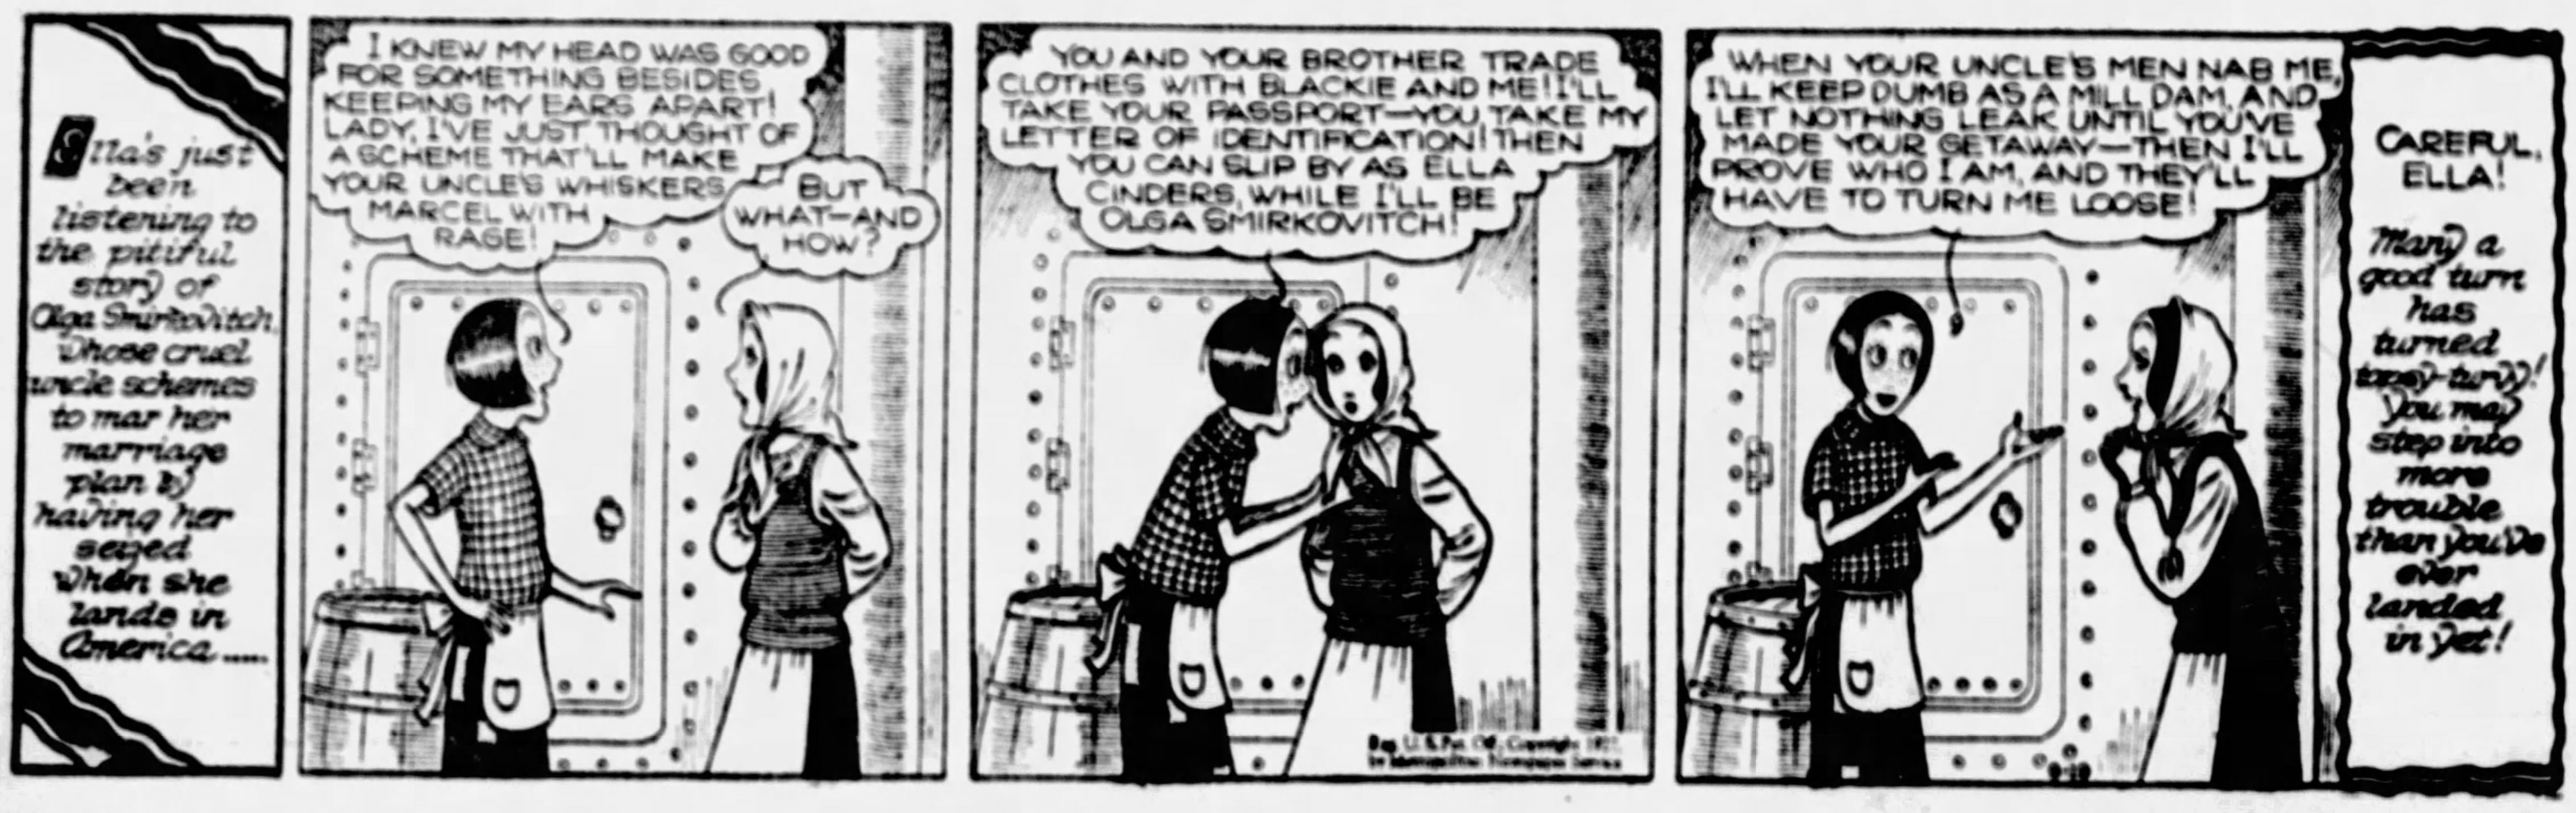
A Visit From the Green-Eyed Monster



JOSEPHINE BUNGLE'S THREE WEEK VACATION WAS ESPECIALLY REFRESHING TO AN IMAGINATION THAT ALWAYS JUMPS TO THE WORST CONCLUSIONS WHEN THE COLONEL APPEARS TO HAVE A SECRET THAT HE WONT DESCRIBE TO HIS WIFE.
HE'S WORRIED ABOUT A WOMAN. I KNOW! I FEEL IT! SOME GIDDY THING WHO HAS NOTHING TO DO FROM MORNING TO NIGHT BUT KEEP HERSELF LOOKING "ATTRACTIVE." HA! YOU DON'T CATCH THOSE VAMPS MAKING THEIR FACE A SALMON-COLOR BY HOLDING IT OVER A HOT STOVE COOKING A SUPPER. NO SIR! THE ONLY TIME THEY PUT THEIR LILY-WHITE HANDS IN WATER IS WHEN THEY'RE SPLASHING IT ON SOME OLD FOGY AT A BEACH. I SAW ENOUGH OF THAT ON MY VACATION.
AND THE MEN JUST RAVE ABOUT SUCH WOMEN! TODAY A WIFE IS JUST SOMEONE WHO SHOULD FAINT WITH JOY WHEN HER HUSBAND BUYS HER A SCRUBBING BRUSH AND A BROOM FOR A BIRTHDAY PRESENT. WELL MR. BUNGLE, YOU AND YOUR SWEET FRIEND WILL MAKE NO FOOL OF ME. NO SIR!
I WONDER WHAT SHE LOOKS LIKE? LIKE ALL THE REST OF THE VAMPS I SUPPOSE. FRIZZY HAIR AND ONE OF THOSE BABY FACES THAT HAVE HAD ABOUT FOUR LIFTS. OH WHAT A FOOL I WAS TO GO AWAY AND TRUST THAT MAN FOR THREE WEEKS! I BLAME HER TOO. SHE KNOWS HE'S MARRIED. OH IF I KNEW WHERE SHE IS NOW.

ELLA CINDERS

Ella's Bright Idea



Ella's just been listening to the pitiful story of Olga Smirkovitch, whose cruel uncle schemes to mar her marriage plan by having her seized when she lands in America.....
I KNEW MY HEAD WAS GOOD FOR SOMETHING BESIDES KEEPING MY EARS APART! LADY, I'VE JUST THOUGHT OF A SCHEME THAT'LL MAKE YOUR UNCLE'S WHISKERS MARCEL WITH RAGE!
BUT WHAT—AND HOW?
YOU AND YOUR BROTHER TRADE CLOTHES WITH BLACKIE AND ME! I'LL TAKE YOUR PASSPORT—YOU TAKE MY LETTER OF IDENTIFICATION! THEN YOU CAN SLIP BY AS ELLA CINDERS, WHILE I'LL BE OLGA SMIRKOVITCH!
WHEN YOUR UNCLE'S MEN NAB ME, I'LL KEEP DUMB AS A MILL DAM, AND LET NOTHING LEAK UNTIL YOU'VE MADE YOUR GETAWAY—THEN I'LL PROVE WHO I AM, AND THEY'LL HAVE TO TURN ME LOOSE!
CAREFUL, ELLA!
Many a good turn has turned topsy-turvy! You may step into more trouble than you've ever landed in yet!

TUM, TUM, TE-TUM! MAURINE'S LOVER IS WEDDED!

Sunshine Girl Woozy as Dangerfield Slips Ring on Helen's Trembling Finger; Review of "Maurine" Goes on Apace

On the night of the wedding Maurine could hardly hook her dress—she was that nervous. She nearly swallowed a safety pin and she had a splitting headache, of course. But she smiled and nodded sweetly to everyone she happened to trip over in the bustle of the dressing room. Her head felt the clang of jangled bells—all unhappy discord. Besides, it was sloppy weather and she had lost one rubber.

The cathedral was ablaze with gorgeous colors.

"The organ
Sent great waves of melody along the air,
But to me, (says Maurine) it sounded far away,
Like waves that broke and fell in liquid spray,
And I, a troubled spirit, in despair,
Paused before the altar. I heard
The solemn service open, through long hours
I seemed to stand and listen, while each word
Fell on my ears as falls the sound of clay
Upon a coffin. The stately father gave the bride away;
The bridegroom circled with a golden band
The taper finger of a dainty hand,
Anon the torture reached the bitter end—
My lover was the husband of my friend!"

Let us tiptoe quietly out and leave Maurine standing there in her hour of pain, her brain whirling dizzily as her sick heart relinquishes love and hope. Oh, Vivian Dangerfield, what are you thinking of, you big bum?

THIS WAGGISH WORLD

OLD MOB PSYCHOLOGY is up to its ancient, bewhiskered tricks and is making a couple of hundred thiusand otherwise sensible people believe they are going to get their money's worth in Chicago this week when they pay a couple of million dollars to see a contender with papier-mache legs go up against a champion who can't hit and never could. But if the champ's legs hold out, he will doubtless win. However, we believe Old Mob Psychology will make Dempsey the favorite before the first gong sound.

MOB Psychology, of which we read so much in the papers, is a trick devil. The other day we went into a Broadway haberdashery to buy a No. 17 shirt, the reason being that we cannot button any smaller sized shirt around the neck. The clerk looked at us in amaze, his mouth open as though he was looking at one of Ringling's freaks. He said:

"Why, no, we don't keep No. 17 shirts. Nobody wears them any more. Everybody is wearing smaller sizes. Crowd Psychology, you know."

Very few know what psychology means, but everybody is talking about it. If ignorance is bliss this is getting to be a great country to be happy in.

TUNNEY will get 1,000,000 cold sinkers for posing in the ring with his dancing partner, Jack Dempsey, for 15 or 20 minutes. The Duke of Wellington got $2,000 for whipping Napoleon, and Washington licked Cornwallis for nothing and asked for no share of the picture rights.

John L. Sullivan fought 48 rounds with bare fists for $500, and Peter Jackson fought for nothing so often that the promoters got to asking him to pay his own railroad fare.

There have been only three fights worth $5 a seat since Jeffries was champion.

The public loves a sock in the jaw and gets them a-plenty.

THE American people are the best-natured people in the world. They will stand for almost anything except murder. Old John Public has an impervious chin and nobody yet has found his solar plexus. Every time he gets stung he comes back for more. He pays 15 times as much now as he used to pay to see real fighters, and knows down in his heart that Bob Fitzsimmons could have whipped four Tunneys in the same ring.

Old-fashioned talk? Oh, a'right! Anyhow, Stanley Ketchel could have done it, too.

A CONGRESSMAN from the once wooly but now virtuous West is planning to introduce a law preventing prize fights on the ground that they are brutal.

Prize fights brutal? That's one laugh for the week, if we don't get any more. The only party brutalized in any fight that has happened in the past 15 years has been the party who bought a ticket.

ON "THE FABRIC AND THE FRINGE"

There are WOMEN in life
Who are like a FINE
And durable FABRIC.
When they LOVE they Are sincere, STABLE,
And when they give—
Are LOYAL.
There are others, GAY,
More animated, more
COLORFUL and appealing.
These are like the PATTERN, the design. In LOVE, they are emotional and TEMPERAMENTAL. Then
There are OTHER women who Seem to be merely the FRINGE. They never touch REALITY. Their Affection may be FANCY,
But, when given, means
NOTHING,
For it is not STABLE.
And then, sometimes,
There are WOMEN who have
All of these things
To GIVE. The fancy
FRINGE, the gay DESIGN,
And both added to SOUND
And reliable QUALITIES.
These, of course, are RARE.

VOTE AS INDEPENDENT CITIZENS—NOT AS SLAVES OF POLITICAL MACHINE

Particularly Keep Our Courts Free From Taint of Boss Control Tomorrow

A BIG issue is involved in tomorrow's election. This issue is concerned with Honesty, Manhood, Independence.

It embraces the question whether a group of politicians shall drive like sheep the citizens of Allegheny county, supposedly of free and independent will, to vote as the bosses have dictated.

It involves this challenge to Americanism—whether our courts are to be made the playthings of political intrigue.

It involves this question—whether members of a political party as a whole constitute the party or a few self-chosen "leaders."

MOST important of the nominations to be made tomorrow are those for the positions of nine judges of the Court of Common Pleas. Our courts are the very foundation upon which American freedom is built. Remember that always, but, especially, remember it TOMORROW!

The nine judges of the Court of Common Pleas, four elected and five appointed by Gifford Pinchot, are seeking the Republican nomination as candidates to succeed themselves. A half dozen Republican leaders say that ONLY SIX of them shall be elected.

These Republican leaders are, for the most part, respected citizens of good judgment, but what talent makes them more capable of selecting judges, or any other officials, than the whole body politic?

Judges Martin, Gray and Gollmar are the ones to whom these bosses have turned "thumbs down."

"Freedom from even the suspicion of political influence or partisan suggestion—independence, courage, integrity, patience and diligence are the requisite qualities of a judge."

Stressed as possibly the most important of these qualities, which were outlined by Judge Martin in a recent address, is freedom from EVEN SUSPICION of political influence on the part of men who shall preside in our courts.

THE character of the men chosen for the "organization slate" is not questioned. All bear excellent reputations and are able representatives of their profession.

From the standpoint of character there probably is little or nothing upon which to base a choice between any one of these twelve judicial contestants except personal preference. But the issue is not a matter of personal preference. It is whether a small group of politicians shall name our judges or the people as a whole!

As Judge Martin says, our courts are the one thing that should be kept free from all suspicion of political influence. If they are politically controlled we have lost our final bulwark against oppression and our independence has vanished.

ANOTHER major contest is that between Controller C. C. McGovern and Robert G. Woodside to obtain the Republican nomination for the office now held by McGovern.

Mr. Woodside is a man of high type—capable, popular, energetic. Mr. McGovern has been before the public largely because of his controversies—especially with the County Commissioners. Whether or not for political effect—as has been charged—it does not appear that these controversies have been a detriment to the county at large. Present evidence, with the final outcome unknown, is that his activities have been decidedly beneficial.

It is not any reflection on Mr. Woodside, whose honesty and ability have been proven, to state that he has received the "indorsement" of the bosses. However, it ought to be of political advantage to Mr. McGovern that he has NOT received that approval.

It is a matter of regret that his investigation of the fiscal affairs of the county could not have been completed before the primary. It might have been if he had received co-operation from the County Commissioners instead of resistance.

If there is nothing wrong in the office of the County Commissioners they have nothing to fear at the hands of McGovern. If the records are straight, nobody "has anything" on them. But it is certain there should be a check on the office.

THE practical-minded will see in McGovern a nuisance and trouble-maker. Sometimes it is a good thing for the people—not the politicians—to keep a trouble-maker in office. The County Commissioners have given us good roads, and other improvements, it is true. The question is, have they been costing us too much? Unfortunately, the answer is not yet at hand.

But bear this in mind—a man of the McGovern type in the County Controller's office is certain to keep all other county officials and their employes on their toes all the time.

IN the local political situation everywhere one finds the very few attempting to dictate to and dominate the many.

Everywhere one sees placards bearing names called "Regular Republican" candidates. What supreme confidence these bosses have! The fact is that the "regular" Republican and Democratic nominees will be those emerging from tomorrow's contest as victors.

Don't be fooled by this matter of regularity. One never should be unswervingly loyal to any party regardless of whether it is right or wrong, but even if one is rather strongly attached to his favorite political party, the question of his loyalty to it is not measured by following the dictates of any bosses.

GO to the polls tomorrow and vote!

Let the voice of the people be heard just once in all of its majestic power, and the problem of bosses will be solved.

Remember always that you are your own boss and that the issue with you is a personal one. It is whether you answer to the dictates of your own manhood or servilely respond to the slave-master's lash.

Don't refrain from voting because of fear of being "cheated." There may be attempts to cheat. Public opinion, however, has been aroused against such tactics and the cheater who steals even one vote tomorrow possibly will be given plenty of time in the future to reflect on the real duties of citizenship.

DON'T FORGET TO VOTE!

Coolidge Founder's Speech Would Be an Inspiration

President Coolidge has received an invitation to come to Pittsburgh next month to deliver the Founder's Day address at the Carnegie Institute. It is hoped he may come and it is presumed he will if duty does not call for his presence elsewhere.

It would be an inspiration to hear an address by a former humble farmer boy who climbed to our highest position delivered as a memorial to a former poor boy who also achieved the crown of greatness. Nothing could be more fitting than that our national executive should be speaker at an event honoring one who did so much for the nation and the world.

Mr. Carnegie was an advocate or world peace and Mr. Coolidge's work in behalf of the same cause now is of historic record. Although the labors of each for the same end took different channels their efforts have affected the trend of world events.

An address by President Coolidge would serve to impress on the minds of all of us the inspiration that should spring from the very stones of Carnegie Institute.

We shall not be insistent to the point of becoming a nuisance but we DO hope that those extending the invitation may urge the President with as much polite persuasiveness as diplomatic courtesy permits.

Fewer Suicides

Heartening news is contained in a recent statement of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, which denies the existence of a "youthful suicidal wave."

The company's statistics show that not only is suicide in the United States steadily decreasing, but that the most marked falling off is in the age group from 10 to 19 years.

That our boys and girls as a whole are less inclined toward morbidity than ever they were is good to know.

Four Modest Men

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Modesty is one of the chief characteristics of true greatness. A great man can have no further commendation or no greater bid for popularity than to have it said that he is modest.

This has been a characteristic of President Coolidge. He has avoided the spotlight and attended to the serious duties of his office with becoming humility. His recent word that he did not choose to run for President again should be taken at its face value. It is the solemn dictum of a man who, having achieved the acme of his popularity, desires to step aside. The country has prospered tremendously under his administration, but he is harboring no delusion that he is the only man who can occupy the exalted position of President.

Another man who is winning all kinds of plaudits and reaping all sorts of popularity from his becoming modesty is the Prince of Wales. Of course, he deserves no credit for being born the son of a king, but he does deserve credit for not slopping over. He has managed to say the right thing at the right time and to conduct himself with becoming decorum in whatever limelight he may be placed. While he is not to be credited with the distinction of being born to royalty, he is entitled to the distinction of caring for the duties of this superior place as he should. He is well liked not only throughout the British dominions, but in the United States and elsewhere throughout the world.

To those who have met Jack Dempsey personally he has been a surprise. They expected the Manasa mauler to look like a bruiser. They were surprised to find him gentle, well liked by everybody and courteous. His form is slim and his manner is that of a gentleman. He is affectionate in his family relations and altogether those who know him are not envious of his fame.

The fourth modest man that has recently loomed in the horizon has been Lindbergh. After achieving a feat that brought him the plaudits of kings and nations everywhere he apparently was not possessed of the idea that he was a super-man, but modestly restrained his claims to those of a flying man. He had crossed the ocean alone in a flying plane, but did not suppose that because he had done a stunt with his machine in the air he could do every other kind of thing. It is with a feeling of pride that the people of the country read of the way he demeaned himself in France and in Great Britain and in connection with the officials of this country. As far as we know, he has made no enemies, for the one thing that makes an enemy is over-weaning egotism.

America is justly proud of these four men and principally because they are not proud of themselves especially.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

The Theater of the Clouds

WHEN nature-lovers try to awaken enthusiasm for the Great Out Doors they hardly give a fair share of attention to the theater of the clouds. Everything now tends to draw our minds to the sky. The sky is the blue surface of a greater ocean, seen from below, and composed of a more etheral fluid than water.

The solid surface of the globe is the rocky bottom of this atmospheric sea. We are as much fish as the denizens of the Atlantic deep. But they have hitherto had a great physical advantage over us in relative specific gravity. In their ocean they can rise and sink at will; in ours we have until now been practically confined to the bottom.

Having at last obtained a three-dimensional mastery of our fluid environment, everything related to the before unattainable upper air assumes a new interest. A new link consequently unites us to the clouds. Eyes are more frequently turned up to them, to study them more cautiously. Watching this summer the many airplanes that are daily performing evolutions over and around the old capital of the Dukes of Burgundy—where it is understood that the empire of the world may soon lie overhead, I have incidentally made unwonted acquaintance with the illusory but most imposing and fascinating beings of the cloud world. Whether the peculiar climatic conditions that have upset the atmosphere in almost all parts of the world lately have had anything to do with the phenomenon, or whether, as is more likely, the effect is entirely subjective, I cannot say, but at any rate I have never before seen such skiey pageants as those that have lately floated over Burgundy.

It is a spectacle that makes the whole secret of the naming of the constellations, as well as the origin of the astrological mysticism of the Middle Ages, as plain as day. We still, when in appropriate mood, have the imagination needed to behold these faces and forms, these appearances alternately beautiful and menacing, that pass in the clouds, but fortunately the superstition that hung upon the heels of the imagination in those ancient times has faded in the brighter mental illumination of our day.

Try it yourself when the sky is striped and mottled with speckled bands of cirrus, or curtained with stratus, or cumuli, in their complex combinations driving before slow, conflicting winds. Give rein to the image-making faculty, and see the faces that will startingly loom up there, forming and vanishing like spirits, and often precisely recalling in expression and attitude those that the spiritualists show us on "spirit photographs." The imagination is as effective in the one case as in the other. Great panoramas will roll past you; men, women, children, lions, whales, angels, crosses, mythological characters, armed galleys bearing down to annihilate one another, flags and banners, warriors, charging squadrons, chasing and pursuing monsters which melt and disappear and reform in another shape, or suddenly leave the blue sky where they were plainly visible a moment before. A small party of gazers, with fancies attuned, may find surprising entertainment in the theater of the clouds. "It is only imagination!" Yes, but what is life?

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

People generally despise where they flatter and cringe to those whom they desire to supersede. —Aurelius.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY.

Have It Out

ISN'T it better to have a real fight and come up to an understanding than to avoid a wordy conflict and act grouchy and mean?

You have learned by experience that the bitterest times for you have been those when you entertained some ill-feeling for your life partner but did not express it.

Life is too short to spend days and days in sullen silence.

Have a good spat, and get over it.

Make a fresh start.

Most differences in the home are due to misunderstanding.

Perhaps the husband or the wife fails to do his or her share in the home partnership.

If one is careful in expenditure and the other is not, this difference is bound to be a bone of contention at times.

If one demands more in the way of selfish pleasure in which the other cannot participate, things won't go smoothly.

Domineering makes trouble. Don't let this be the trouble in your home.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

September's Gold

SEPTEMBER'S gold is not like coins men mint, when every hour turns out its stated share; for only time can give this mellow tint that dyes the fields and gilds the wine-sweet air, and only time can turn Spring's tender green, the verdant promise of the budding year, and Summer's ripe fulfillment to such sheen of aureate beauty as is lavished here. On hill and woodland, over field and plain, in every sun-sweet, forest-wild retreat, free from the worldly coins' taint and strain, September's gold is scattered at men's feet. More rare by far than gold base greed desires, than any coinage of the earth more dear, September's gold is forged by heaven's fires and minted from the splendors of the year.

O. O. McINTYRE

In California

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 19.—For some years I yearned for one of those great big storms while crossing the Atlantic and the result was as peaceful as crossing a Central Park pond in a row boat. Then one night about four years ago it happened.

The Atlantic picked up the Olympic and shook it as a terrier shakes a rat. Port holes were broken, life boats wrecked and the bridge was swept away. And I was among the white faced boys and girls kneeling in ankle deep water in a companionway asking the Lord if He could see His way clear to show a little mercy.

Similarily on visits to Southern California I have wished for one of those earthquakes we read about. And the other morning at breakfast everybody was talking about how Mother Earth suddenly turned skittish and executed a neat before-dawn shimmy.

It was a disappointment for us all for even the dog, the lightest of sleepers, slept through it. Now there will be nothing to lie about back home. It would have been great stuff to sit around the big stove this winter and tell of romping into a Spanish castle and carrying a swooning movie star to an open space, whispering: "Fear not, young Jack Harkaway is here," or something.

Out here what we call an earthquake is a "tremble" and that about describes it. Strangers compare their sensation to a tremble to sudden attacks of slight giddiness. In Los Angeles proper during the past 15 years about the only damage has been a few cracked ceilings.

But even so, the earthquake as a topic of conversation is not especially relished on the West coast. Neither is a deadly spider which has made its appearance. However, there is a noticeable improvement in California tolerance. Five or six years ago, people resented jokes about boosters, earthquakes, native sons and climate champions.

Then its future was not assured. Today it has in a measure passed the kidding stage. It does not have to care and it doesn't. Most California rivalry now is among its own cities and that spirit has proved of value in their enormous expansion.

* * *

Los Angeles displays its tolerance in religious and medical affairs. Anyone can harangue from a soap box on any subject in Pershing Square. In the same way the Crown permits malcontents to blow off steam in London's Hyde Park. Perhaps only in Los Angeles could an Aimee Semple McPherson wield her odd sway. This city has more cults and religions than any other on the face of the globe. And there are also about as many medical institutes and houses of health. In a substantial bungalow near midtown I noticed huge signs in the yard announcing among tenants exponents of five different and absolutely new—that is to me—schools of healing; four priests and priestesses of new religious sects, a face rejuvenator, three massage and internal bath experts and five various treatments for scalp troubles.

One is not to infer from this that Los Angeles is any more of a hick town than New York or any other first-class city. Yet it is still in adolescence with growing pains and changing voice. Out here the yokelry is a little more flamboyant. When you see its office buildings, department stores, shops and fine homes—you lose sight of the so-called yaps and yappery, just as you forget the depressing slums and its denizens when you see Fifth and Park avenue in New York.

* * *

In the restaurants are the thousands of prim, anxious mothers with home-town beauty prize winning daughters—just as we so often read about in descriptions of Hollywood. Many have mortgaged their homes to make this supreme and pathetic sacrifice. All warnings have proved futile. Only Hollywood knows the heart-break of beauty prize winners.

* * *

A girl—such as Janet Gaynor recently—comes along and is salvaged, Cinderella-like, out of the waiting extra line and the following week scores of mothers bring their daughters in the hope of meeting with the same success.

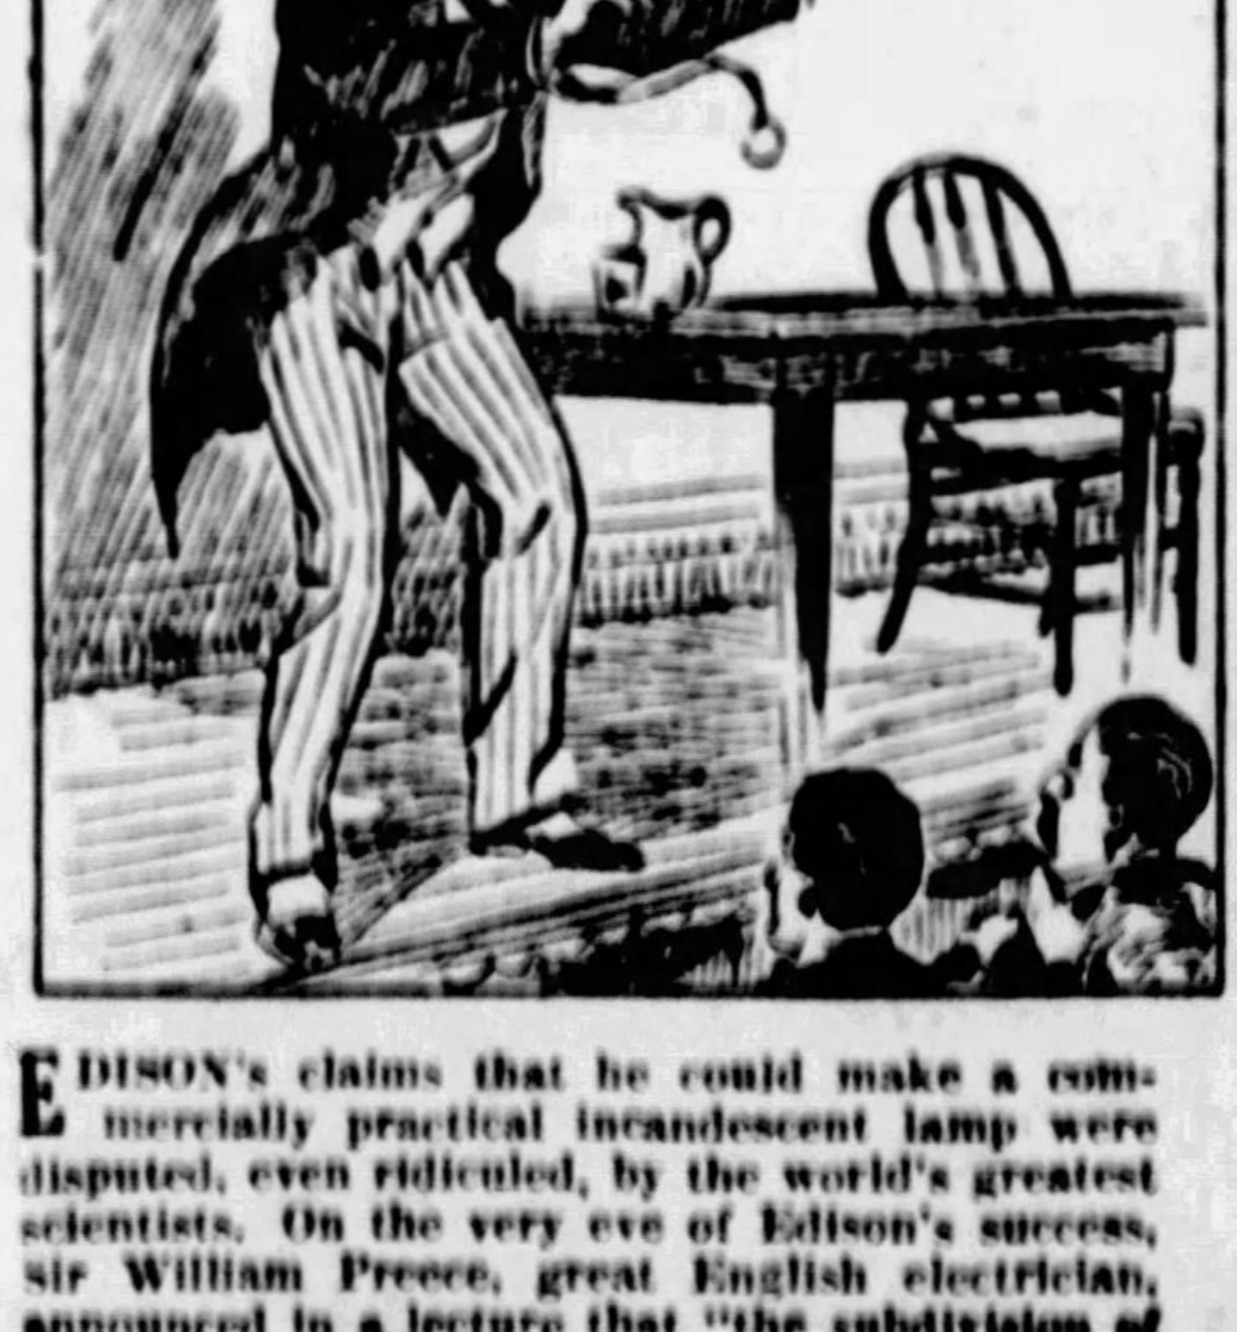
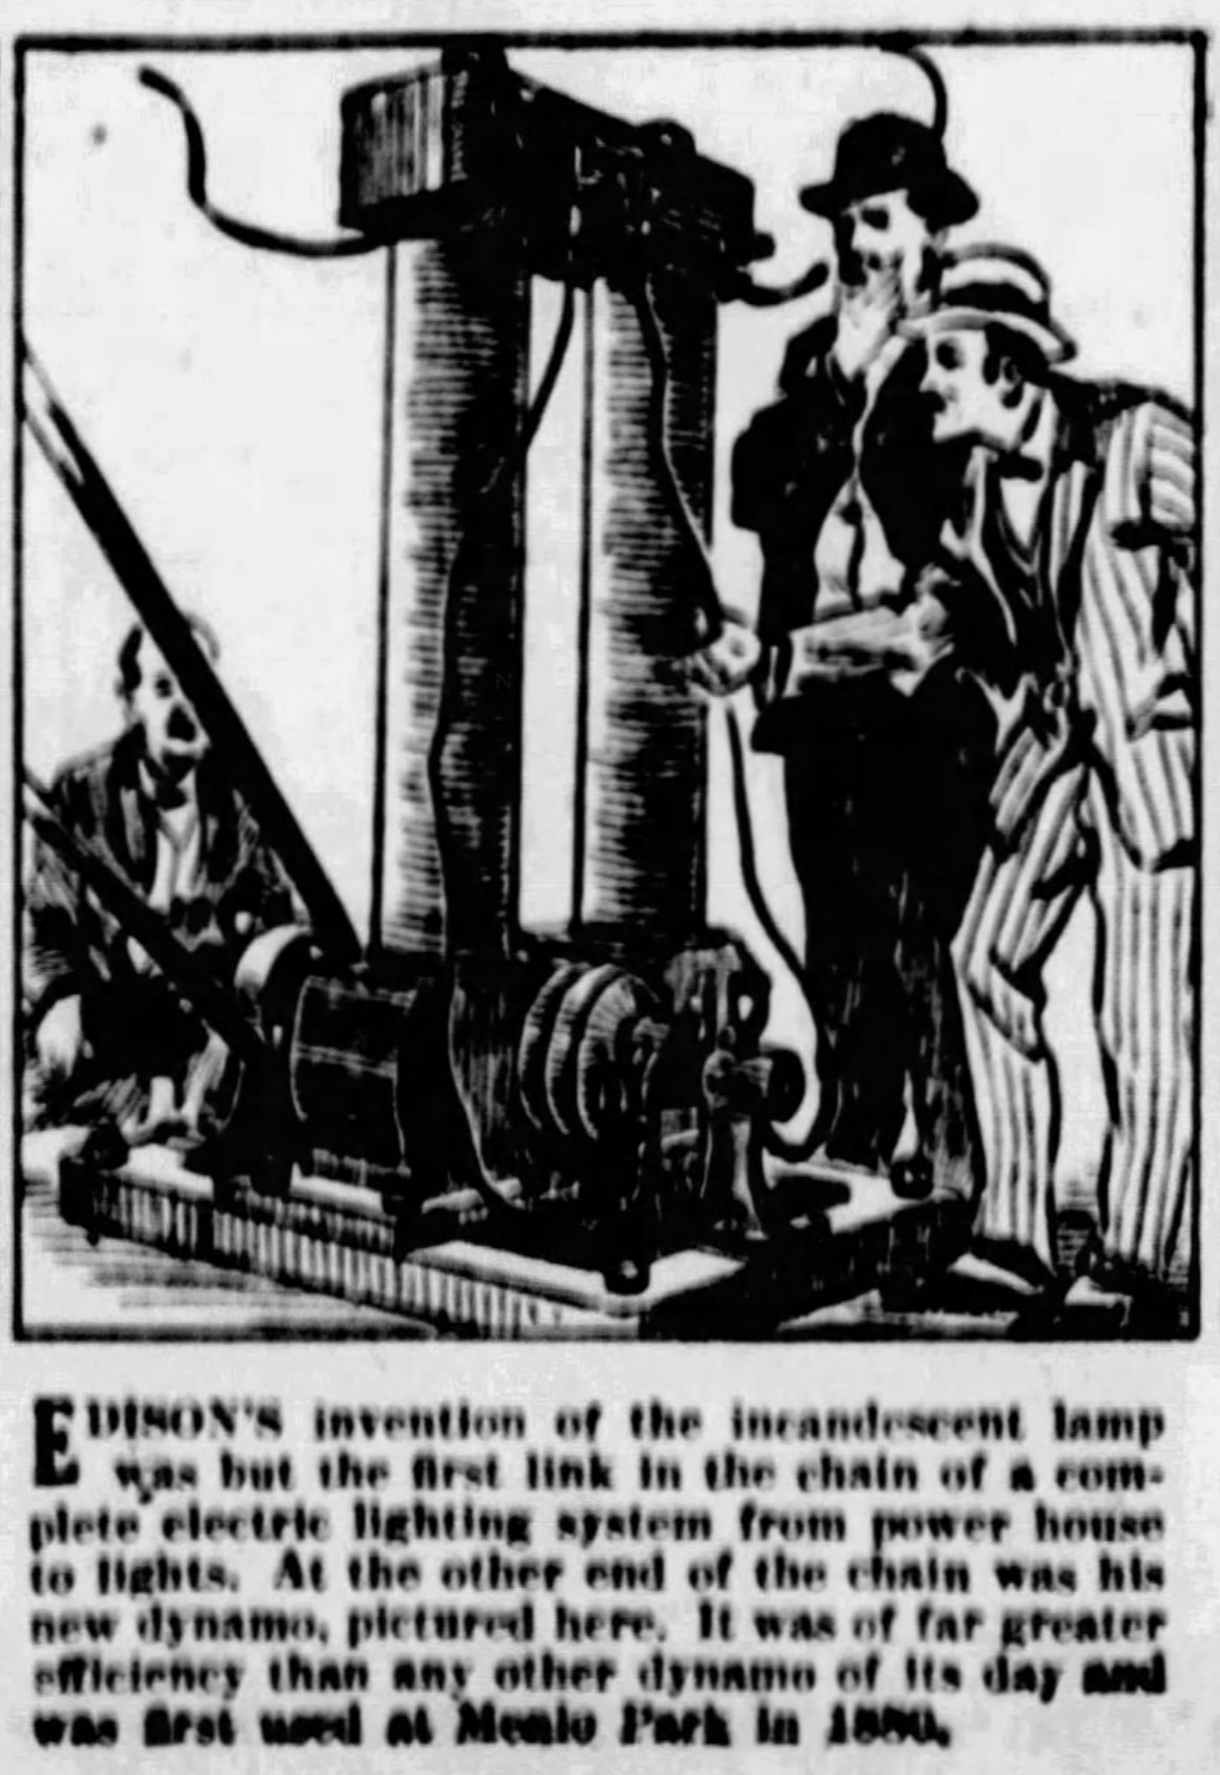
THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

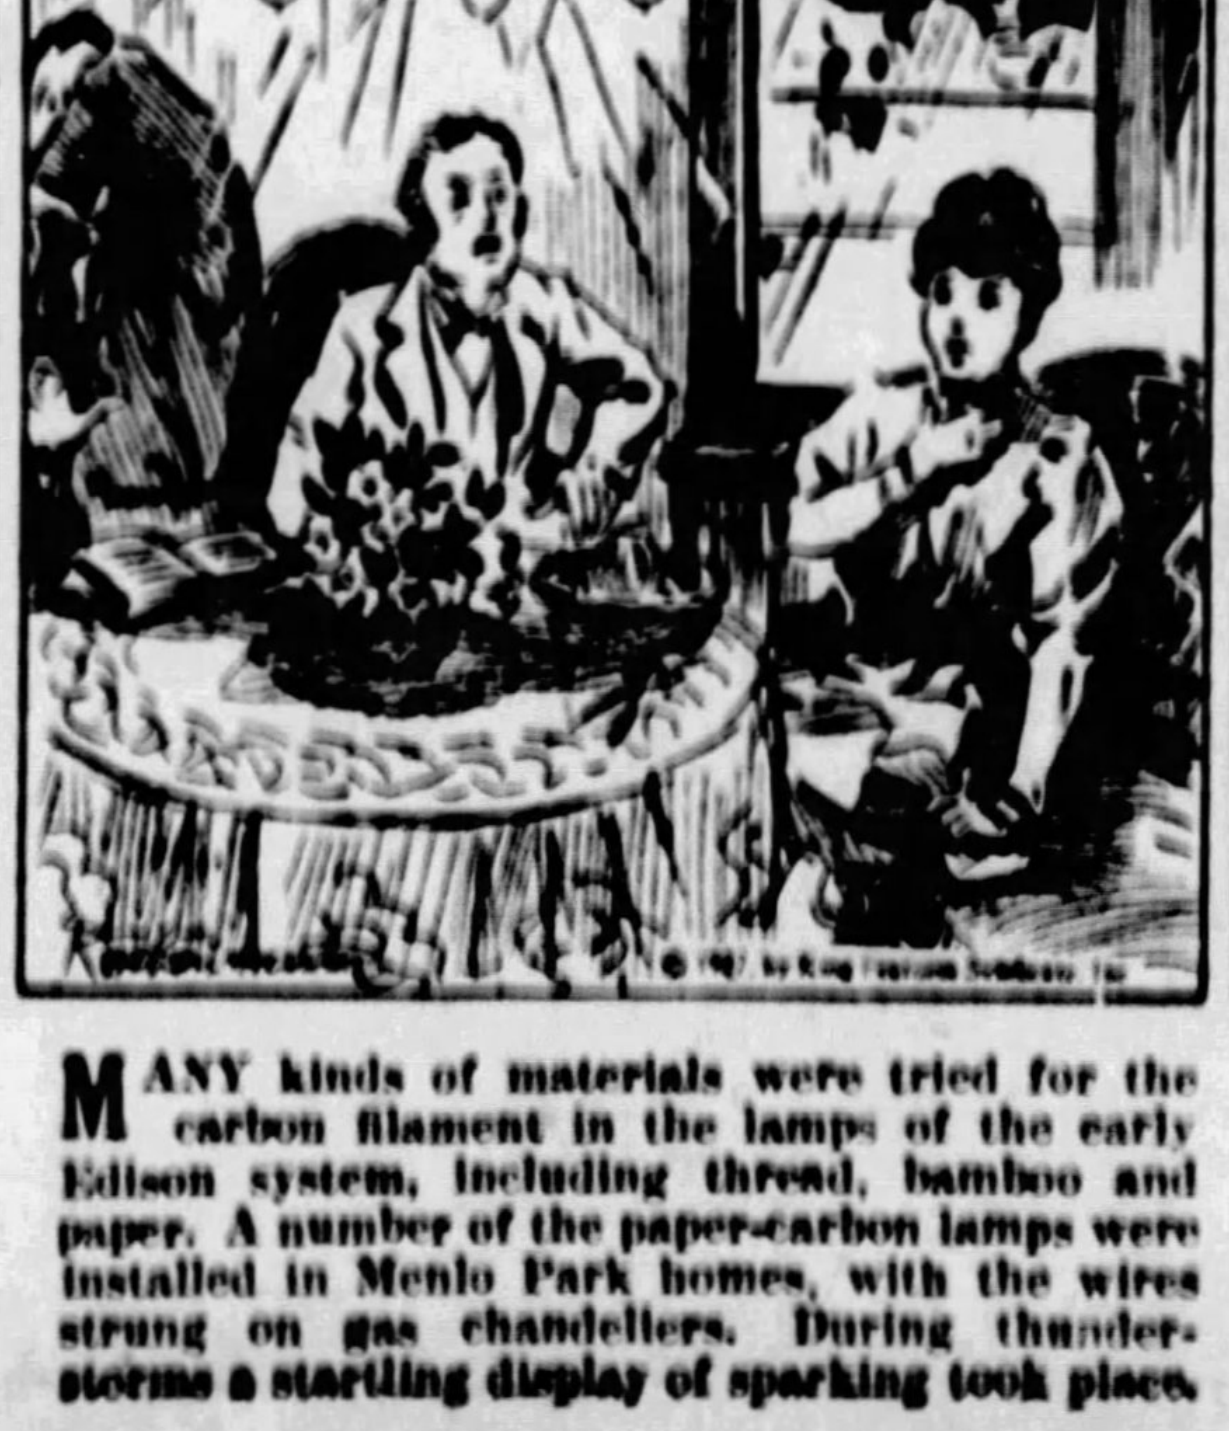
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



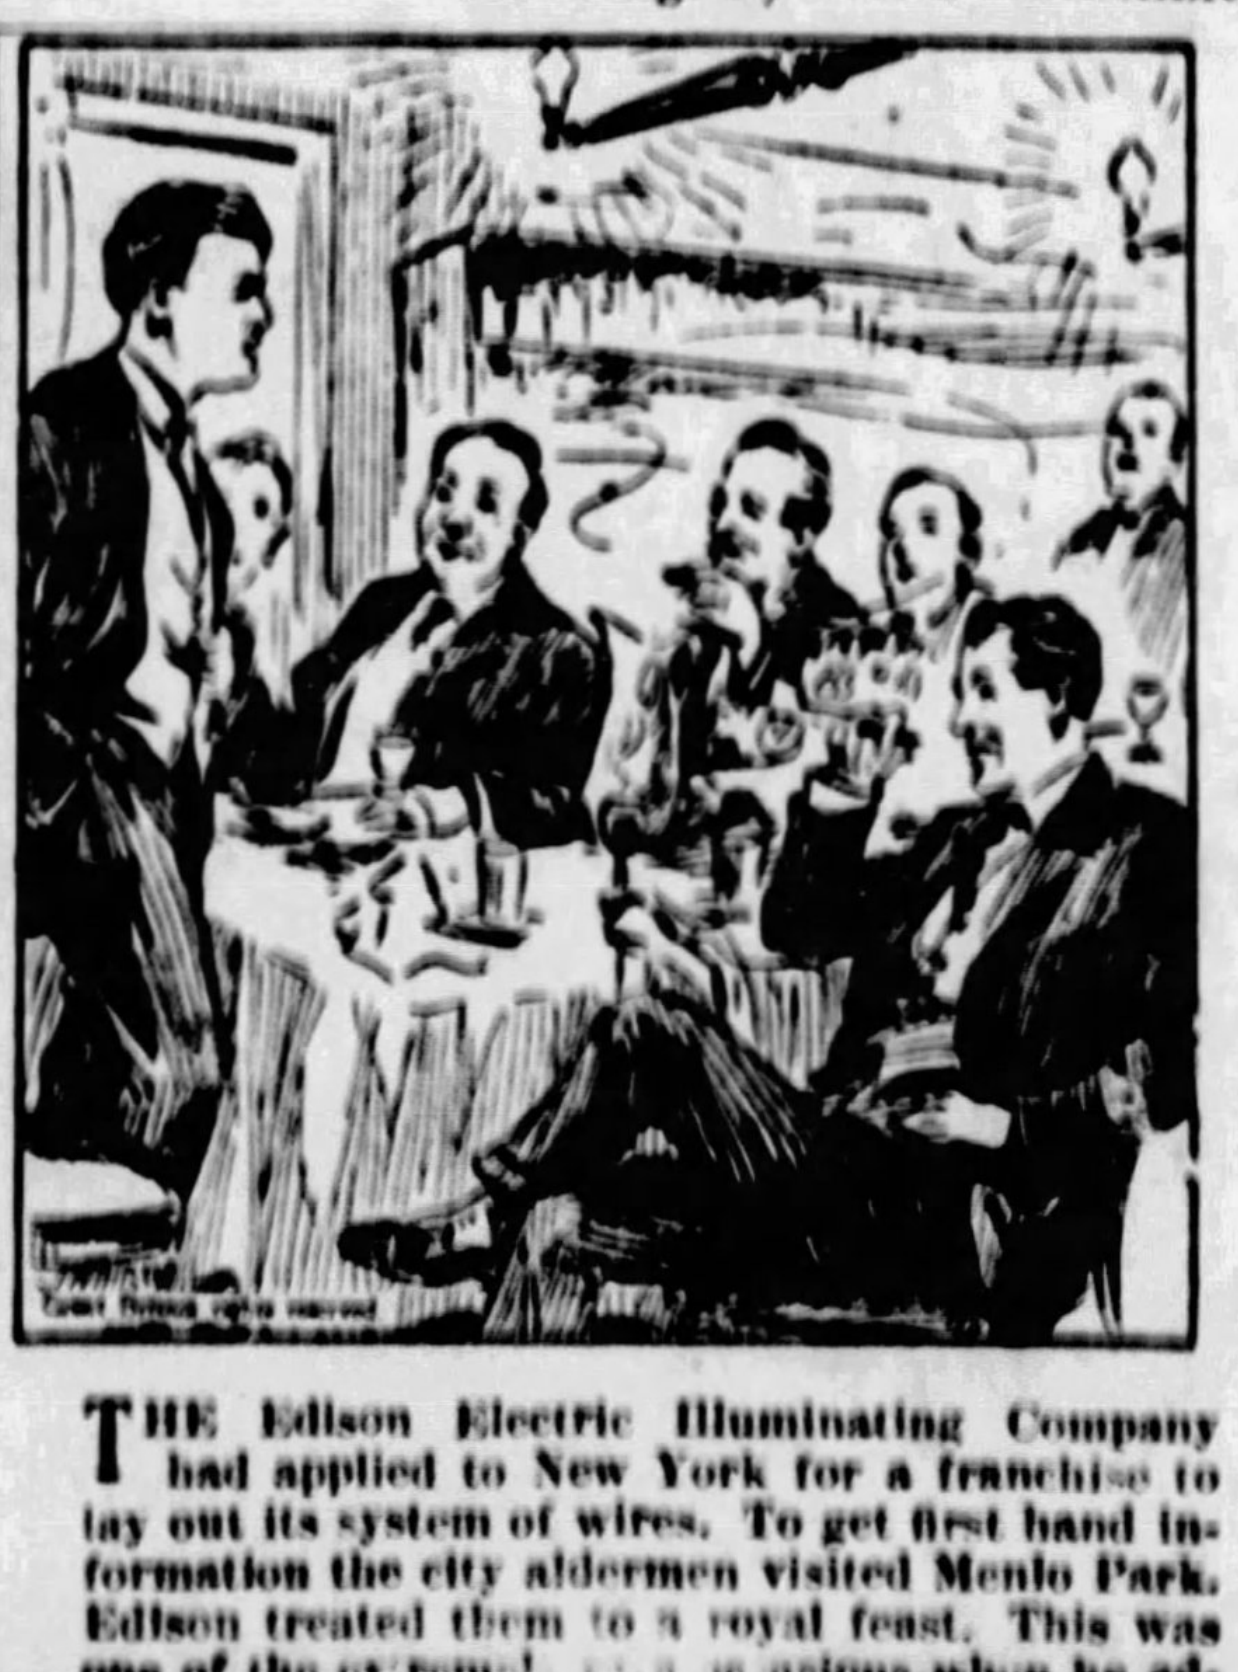
EDISON'S claims that he could make a commercially practical incandescent lamp were disputed, even ridiculed, by the world's greatest scientists. On the very eve of Edison's success, Sir William Preece, great English electrician, announced in a lecture that "the subdivision of the light is an absolute ignis fatuus."



EDISON'S invention of the incandescent lamp was but the first link in the chain of a complete electric lighting system from power house to lights. At the other end of the chain was his new dynamo, pictured here. It was of far greater efficiency than any other dynamo of its day and was first used at Menlo Park in 1880.



MANY kinds of materials were tried for the carbon filament in the lamps of the early Edison system, including thread, bamboo and paper. A number of the paper-carbon lamps were installed in Menlo Park homes, with the wires strung on gas chandeliers. During thunderstorms a startling display of sparking took place.



THE Edison Electric Illuminating Company had applied to New York for a franchise to lay out its system of wires. To get first hand information the city aldermen visited Menlo Park. Edison treated them to a royal feast. This was one of the extremely rare occasions when he addressed an audience. (Continued tomorrow.)
